There is a proverb which says "What can be done at any time is never done," and applies especially to a class who have become slaves to the habit of procrastination, the habitual postponing of everything that they are not compelled by necessity to do immediately.

Now, delays are not only damaging to present prospects, but they are destructive of ultimate success. A dilatory man is not to be depended upon. The slightest pretext is sufficient for him to disappoint you. If an employee, the sooner he is discharged, the greater the advantage to the employer. There are those who may properly be called "afternoon men." They are always busy getting ready to go to work. In the morning they walk around, carefully inspect their duties, and say: "Plenty to do to-day. I must go to work this afternoon!" About three o'clock they survey what they haven't done, and exclaim: "One thing and another has prevented me from making any headway to-day. I'll quit, and begin bright and early to-morrow morning."

One day with them is simply the reflection of another. There is nothing accomplished in a whole life; and their western sun overtakes them and finds no preparation for the wants and infirmities of age. There is nothing to look back upon but squandered time. One hour's exercise in the morning loosens the muscles of the limbs, sets the blood dancing in the veins, and fits a man physically and mentally for the day's activity; while one hour's sloth after breakfast produces a torpor from which it is almost impossible to rally.

Frozen to Death in the South. Isaac Griffin, a colored man, aged 47, on Friday, was found dead in a very feeble condition for some time past, was found dead on a recent Friday morning in West Feliciana parish, La., on a hill in the rear of the Levy & Adair property. Coroner Ball held an inquest. The facts showed that Griffin met his death from exposure to the cold while in an extreme state of physical prostration, he having laid upon the ground without cover or shelter during the entire night previous.

Honor in His Own Land. Says Comely in his recently issued work, The History of New York State, that he has passed among the benefactors of humanity were allowed to live in ignominious poverty—their sacrifices, their labors, unrecompensed. To-day, the benefactors of the people—the men who devote their lives and energies to the interest of humanity—die in the most honorable of the world's deaths, and whom it rewards with princely fortunes. As an earnest worker for the welfare of his fellow men, Dr. R. V. Pierce has won their warmest sympathy and respect. While seeking to be a servant only, he has become a prince among the men of the immense fortune lavished upon him by a generous people he hoards not, but invests in the erection and establishment of institutions directly contributive to the public good, the people thus realizing, in their liberal patronage, a new meaning of that beautiful Oriental custom of casting bread upon the waters. Noted in both public and private life for his unwavering integrity and all those sterling virtues that ennoble manhood, Dr. Pierce ranks high among the benefactors of his race, whose names the Empire State is justly proud to inscribe upon her roll of honor. Ambitions, yet moved by an ambition strictly amenable to the most discriminating and well-balanced judgment, his future career promises to be one of unparalleled activity and usefulness, and complementing the work he has already accomplished, by a life at once noble in effort, enviable in its grand results. "While Dr. Pierce's genius and energy have won for him an enviable position on the records of a nation, having been elected Senator by an overwhelming majority, his justly celebrated household remedies have gained for him a yet more desirable place in the hearts of grateful people. His Golden Medical Discovery and Favorite Prescription have brought health and happiness to ten thousand households.

Disease Grows Apace. Like an ill wind, and cannot be mastered too early. What is a trifling attack of sickness to-day may, if unattended to, become a serious case in a week. Small ailments at once be nipped in the bud before they blossom into full-blown maladies. If this advice were attended to, many a heavy bill for medical attendance might be avoided. When the system is disordered, the stomach fails, the bowels obstructed, or the nerves disturbed, resort should at once be had to that supreme remedy, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, a few doses of which will put the system in perfect order. MEANS. SERV W. FOWLE & SONS. GENTLEMEN.—Last Spring my little daughter, aged five, became very much emaciated, with loss of appetite, and great prostration of strength, so much so that we were obliged to take her out of school. This continued through the summer, and caused us much anxiety. After trying various remedies without deriving any benefit, a friend of mine recommended the use of PERUVIAN SYRUP. After using it one week we saw a marked improvement in the child's condition, and in a month she was able to return to school, and her appetite being excellent. At this time she is perfectly well, and her complexion is healthy and rosy, and she is again attending school regularly. I therefore feel compelled to state that I believe this personal experience to be a true one, and I can only too highly recommend it as a tonic.

Very respectfully, CHAS. H. COLGATE. PERUVIAN SYRUP.
