

Harrisburg Letter.

HARRISBURG, March 22, 1879. ED. REPUBLICAN:—

The Senate has been discussing the Judge's salary bill, as the most prominent of their week's work.

In the House the following bills passed third reading: "A bill to protect fruits, gardens, growing crops and grass, and punish trespassers."

"An act to define and punish tramps." This is similar to the law in New Hampshire on that subject, which works well there. It is one our State needs badly.

The Salary Bill for reducing salaries of Senators, Members and employes about the Capitol passed second reading. Mr. Wheeler of your county voted in favor of an amendment to make the reduction in salary apply to the present members instead of their successors, but the amendment was lost.

Bill 103, Riot claims, was reached Wednesday afternoon. Speaker Long called Crawford of Philadelphia to the chair and took the floor making a speech of about an hour and a half in its favor. On Thursday morning the Bill was taken up again, Mapes, of Venango, speaking against it, and Walker of Allegheny for it. In the afternoon Wolfe made an able speech questioning the constitutional right of the State to assume Riot claims.

Speaker Long attempted to answer. Then Hewit of Blair offered an amendment providing "that when the Supreme Court should pronounce unconstitutional the laws of 1841 and '49, under which Allegheny Co. was made liable for riot losses, should decide that the State was liable, then the Governor shall appoint three commissioners who shall determine and settle the amount of the riot losses etc., as recited in the Bill."

The new county bill, under which Titusville hopes to be made a county seat, has been reported favorably. Also a bill requiring Railroads to fence their road or be liable for stock killed by them.

Our Washington Letter.

SPECIAL TO THE REPUBLICAN.

WASHINGTON, D. C., March 20, '79.

Do the people of this country—the intelligent masses who endured all the sacrifices demanded for the suppression of a wicked and causeless rebellion which the Democratic party had been secretly nourishing for years and finally precipitated; who have with little repining endured all the business prostration and ruin which more remotely but none the less surely followed that war, and who have patiently and lawfully abided the return of prosperity—do they appreciate the full significance of this extra session?

Do they fully appreciate the fact that it was forced, just as confidence had been so far restored that business was seeking old channels, was making new ones and promised to make this season an exceptionally prosperous one, for the one sole purpose of enabling the partisan advantage? There is no pretense that all necessary legislation might not have been enacted by the 4th inst., and the disturbing effect on business of Congress in session have been avoided after that date.

Nothing stood in the way of that consummation but the determination to throw down every bar to illegal voting, to abolish every restraint on the spirit of mob violence at the polls, to encourage bulldozing and tacitly endorse the wholesale assassinations of the past decade, by the absolute repeal of the U. S. election laws especially enacted to preserve the purity of the ballot box, to give due and full effect to the ballot of every legal voter, and bearing on every section of the country with precisely equal force. All the disastrous effects on rich and poor that are certain to grow out of an extra session convened under the peculiar circumstances attending the present one, must be endured that this old party of slavery, perjury and treason of which it doesn't even pretend to have ever repented, may systematically enter upon the task of disfranchising the Republican party South without let or hindrance, and that it may at once set about the work of organizing its armies of illegal voters in Northern cities with a view to the campaign of 1880, without fear of successful interference by Federal authorities. And finally, do they understand that almost the first work after organization was to add another to the long partisan outrages which have been perpetrated in contested cases without the slightest regard to facts, law or equity, since Democracy's restoration in the House?

Despite the free whiskey, the aid of braggarts, the championship of the party bullies, the advocacy of the lobby and its tools and the ecclat imparted to Blackburn's canvass to the more disreputable elements of the party, Randall was enabled to win easily over his Democratic competitor. And though the latter is stalwartly partisan; though his rulings and decisions have been openly in contempt of the impartial position the Speaker should occupy; though his votes on occasions of close contest have been of more than doubtful propriety, about everybody estimating Blackburn's antecedents, the present direction of his sympathies and the character of his following from a loyal standpoint, rejoices at the election of Randall as infinitely the least of two evils that menaced us. Those, especially, who have fought the fiat delusion, are particularly gratified, as Blackburn's election would doubtless have been constructed as conferring the widest license in the way of financial tinkering and experiment.

Only one of the little handful of greenbackers—Ladd, of Maine, and a double and twisted Bourbon—could be brought to endorse the enormity of seating the Democratic contestant from the 2nd Florida district. All honor to the others for their maiden vote in behalf of justice and equity.

It is generally believed the President will veto the repeal of the election laws, but speculation beyond that takes the widest range. It seems the general feeling to confine legislation to the appropriation bills and the political amendments attached during the last session.

The Cameron-Oliver suit has resulted disastrously to the ancient complainant by the production of her legal husband in court.

DE SOTO. Freeborn Minn. FREEBORN, March 15, 1879. ED. REPUBLICAN:—

Observing in your column that correspondence is solicited from all parts of the country, we will try to give you a brief account of our six month's sojourn in the "Wilds of Minnesota."

We left "Old Forest" on the 1st of Sep. We stopped one day and a half at Edinboro, Erie Co., to say farewell to the present to our brother there at Normal School. The trip proved both pleasant and interesting, as we passed through almost all kinds of country, in going about 1,100 miles from the old native Pennsylvania, to the far west—the horse of our long estranged mother, and sister.

Arriving at Delavan, Faribault Co., Minn., on the 7th inst., we were not long in finding our friends, for whom we had undergone the pang of parting with old and esteemed acquaintances.

The next day—the Sabbath—proved very pleasant, and we viewed for the first time, the beautiful, rolling prairies of Southern Minn. After enjoying the exhilarating morning air for an hour or so, we repaired to the church, and there heard a good sermon by a blind lady, who was traveling from one town to another, thus gaining an honest livelihood.

Monday morning you should have heard the buzzing of the threshing machines in all directions, many of which were in sight. The contrast between a Pennsylvania and Minnesota threshing season is almost to groat for comparison. No "chaff-pilers" in Minn; but instead ten horse separators.

After this season is over the farmer is engaged in marketing the plump and heavy wheat; but sorry to say it commanded but 40cts per bushel, which price was never heretofore known in this fertile region.

We are now in Freeborn county visiting our mother. Sabbath again and we accompany (for the first time in fourteen years) our mother and sister to the house of God.

Winter is now almost upon us, and soon the grass, sward and brown, will be covered with "the beautiful." But, alas! for the sleighing.—It is a buggy, two for the snow remained but a day or two, there being but an inch or two at any one time. Indeed we have had but the small amount of nine or ten inches in all.

Winter spent and lively times. March is here, and the farmers are plowing, dragging or sowing grain, as their circumstances may necessitate. Some were fortunate enough to have completed their preparations for the coming seedtime, in the fall, but others were not. However, all will be in fine growing order in less than forty days. We do not think that Forest county can compare with this country, and would advise all young men as did Horace Greeley, "Go West young man go West!"

Respectfully Yours, B. J. REYNOLDS, L. G. REYNOLDS.

—My daughter twelve years old, complained of headache and her skin was a dark yellow; also the whites of her eyes were very yellow. We all said she had the Jaundice. I bought a bottle of Boronia, Bachu, Backache, Liver and Kidney Cure, and a box of Dandelion and Mandrake Pills, and by the time the medicine was used she came to her right color again in a week or ten days. I call it a good medicine. It did the business up right. HENRY HOOVER.
