WEDNESDAY MORNING, APR. 9, 1879.

-We to-day publish a letter from Hon. N. P. Wheeler, giving his views and reasons for opposing the Allegheny Riot Bill. We have talked to different parties heretofore on this subject, and since receiving Mr. Wheeler's letter we have consulted some of his prominent constituents, and all with whom we have talked seem to favor a bill granting relief to Allegheny county, provided it can be done without taxing oil, directly or indirectly. We give a few of the views and arguments which they set forth, which are about

The Riot of 1877 was pretty general all over the State of Pennsylvania, and in fact United States; and no property was destroyed in Pittsburgh until after the Governor and State authorities had as sumed control, and sent troops there. The destruction of property was not the act of citizens of Allegheny county, but of an organized multitude of insurgents assembled there, in accordanced with their previous arrangements from other parts of of the State, and United States, as well; many of which, it cannot be denied, came from Chicago and other large cities.

'The Penn'a R. R. Co. alone pays into the State Treasury about one million and a half dollars annually for its corporated rights &c., and is entitled to protection of property &c., by the State that guarantees its rights granted under the old and new Constitution, and no matter how much we may desire that it accept the provisions of the new Constitution, we cannot legally interfere with vested rights; and it is wrong to take advantage of the misfortunes of Allegheny county to try to compel the Penn'a R. R. Co. to accept that which it will not accept and which we cannot legally compel it to.

The Commonwealth as bound to proteet her citizens in the peaceful enjoyment of all their rights under the Constitution and laws. Not only their lives, liberty and pursuits of happiness, but the protection of property and all legitimate business, and we cannot establish a bad precedent by doing that which is simply an act of justice. Two wrongs never make

Judge Agnew has given his opinion that the State is legally liable, and we have now, as we had during the war, great respect for his legal opinion and decisions; and if he is not correct we are not in favor of our Great Commonwealth refusing relief to its citizens, who suffered losses by the riot, on a legal technacality or different constructions of the law.

As we understand, the bill, as proposed to be amended by Speaker Long, removes all constitutional objections-reduces the amount to three millions of dollars, and provides that no tax shall be levied on real estate or petroleum. With these proposed amendments it should be acceptable to the people of the oil regions.

Without said amendment we could not favor if, with it, and considering the justice of the measure, our commercial relations with Pittsburgh as one of our lumber markets etc., and the intimate business relations of this section of the State with Pittsburgh, and Allegheny county, we believe it for the best interest of our county and the whole Commonwealth,

As to the sympathy given the rioters by citizens of Allegheny county, there was a certain class all over the State that sympathized with them to a greater or less extent, and in doing justice to the good citizens of Allegheny county, who are innocent of giving any encouragement to the insurection, that should not be taken into consideration.

Harrisburg Letter.

Harrisburg, April 5, 1879. ED. REPUBLICAN:-

Thursday morning Mr. Long spoke in favor of his amendment, and he and Mr. Law had a short war of words. Mr. Wolfe did more than any other towards defeating the amendment. After considerable talk, the year and nays were called. The vote was taken in profound silence. Many were busy tallying, so it was pretty generally known that the amendment was defeated before the speaker announced the decision, 92 to 103. Mr. Hewit then offered the following amendment: After a preamble the substance is 'that when the Supreme Court shall have declared Allegheney county not liable under the law of 1849, and the State to be liable, then the Governor shall appoint two disinterested citizens who shall ascertain what damage was sustained, and by whom, and report to the next legislature." The discussion of this will begin next Tuesday.

I am sorry to give you such a "riotous" letter, but it is the topic of the time, and my sim is to keep your readers posted. Wednesday evening we had a good laugh over Burdette's lecture: "The Rise and Fall of the Moostache." He is the funny man of the Burlington Hawkeye. Nor was it all ludicrous; ever and anon a vein of pathos running through the lecture made dewy tears sparkle even in the sunshine of laughter.

Spring has had a good sized lap full of winter recently, and some ambitiou's young trees on Capitol Hill will have to sheath their leaf-swords they had so Mrs. Hoyt's reception is announced, Jenks township, Forest Co., Pa. and the fair sex are using enough brain force to write a lecture on Conscience, in concocting a stylish spring suit, or an indescribable bonnet, or a 'love of a toilet," for the new season.

With the best wishes for yourself and readers. VERTIAS.
