

The bill to punish tramps and repress vagrancy in this State, which passed the House recently, provides that any person going about from place to place, begging, shall be deemed a tramp and guilty of a misdemeanor, and on conviction shall be sentenced to solitary confinement, at labor, or in the county jail or work-house, for not less than six months nor over eighteen; provided, that if he can prove that he does not make a practice of going about begging he shall be discharged; also, that any tramp who shall enter a dwelling-house against the will of the occupant, or kindle a fire in the highway or on the land of another, or be found carrying any dangerous weapon, or do or threaten any injury not amounting to a felony, shall, upon conviction, be sentenced to solitary confinement at hard labor for not over two years.

The passage of the bill in the House by a vote of 123 yeas to 50 nays would indicate a certainty of its passage in the Senate when it comes before that body.

Harrisburg Letter.

HARRISBURG, April, 19 1879.

The Riot Bill, whose cabalistic sign "103" has danced through the dreams of weary members for many weeks; whose pending form has overshadowed all other legislation; in whose favor many tongues have spoken, and in whose disapproval orators have waxed eloquent; the Riot Bill, I repeat, is no more. Chris. Magee and Sam. Josepha have departed to the climate most favorable to the growth of a certain specimen of twining honey-suckle familiar known as woodbine. The third House (the lobbyists) has adjourned sine die. The final decisive vote was taken on Wednesday morning. The question was upon the reconsideration of the vote defeating the bill; the friends of the bill were advised to vote "aye," the enemies "no." The result was, yeas 98; nays 101; Vale! Vale! The next fight in the House is over the Border Raid bill, and Anti Discrimination.

Tuesday Gov. Hoyt went to Philadelphia to attend a reception and banquet given to him by the Union League of that city. Thursday evening occurred the last reception of the season at the gubernatorial mansion. The rain fell steadily but it had no effect on the bloom and beauty gathered within the walls where all was light and luxury. Governor Hoyt is a man of commanding presence, and is quite popular. His wife is a social favorite; kind, affable and pleasing. Near them stood Lieut. Gov. Stone and Mrs. Stone, while in the next parlor, Miss Hoyt, a friend, Miss Pomeroy and Ex. Gov. Hartranft received the handshakings of the brilliant crowd. Flowers were scattered in profusion throughout the lofty apartments. Quaint Japanese many-mouthed jugs bore great creamy, half blown buds, pyramids of Easter lillies, baskets of vines and blossoms, bouquets, espargues, etc., gave out delicious perfume as the air was swayed by the rush and rustle of silks, velvets and laces wrought into miracles of loveliness to adorn fair women. The principal floral ornament was the State coat of arms. A shield with a ship, plow, and three sheaves of wheat upon it; an eagle on top, and a rearing horse on either side,—anyone versed in Heraldry might beautifully mystify this description, but this is plain English—on a scroll beneath, the motto "virtue, liberty and independence." The horses, made in white flowers with hoofs of violets and tails of pampas grass, were well executed. Dancing was allowed on the second floor, and refreshments were served in an appropriate apartment. Prominent among distinguished guests was Hon. Galusha A. Grow, revealing in his noble face the good character he bears, for it is a given fact that a man's countenance must bear the impress of his life whether for good or for ill. Speaker Long, wife and daughter, many members of the House, among them your representative, Mr. Wheeler, wife and sister; Senators and their wives; guests from Wilkesbarre, Philadelphia and other cities, together with the elite of Harrisburg mingled in the throng, and everybody seemed well pleased with themselves and the world in general. Such gatherings engender social good feeling and keep alive the mania-makers. So bidding adieu to the flowers and flirtations, the music and maidens, the statesmen and soldiers, the dames and diamonds, we extinguish ourselves in the drizzle and darkness of a wet April night.

Our Washington Letter.

SPECIAL TO THE REPUBLICAN.

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 17, '79.

The dreary mass of platitudes with which Beck and Withers and other ex-Confederate leaders propose to cover over and hide the damaging exposures of their conspiracy against the government, made by the Republican orators in Congress, is filling the Congressional Record and the newspapers; but it cannot deceive the intelligent constituencies of this nation. Mr. Blaine's noble speech was especially annoying to the Bourbons, who are plotting against the Federal power, while putting the Army forward as a pretended scare-crow. He exposed the hallowness and hypocrisy of their trick in a masterly way, and they are working desperately for the invention of means to offset its influence with the country. It is too late. They may not realize it soon enough to save themselves from disaster and the country from restoration to an honest and loyal party. But they are preparing their own burial in more ways than one. The threat to coerce all the other Departments by the legislative branch now controlled by ex-Confederates is but a part of the awful example which is to work good through its evil design. The methods they adopt in the smallest affairs of legislation are of a piece with the whole plot. The very manners of their presiding officers and communistic leaders are enough to alarm the lovers of the Republic. The other day Vice President Wheeler was called away from his post, and the Democrats at once elected Thurman President pro tempore of the Senate. Thence began a different aspect of affairs. Yesterday there was an example of it while Beck was making his harangue. Senator Hoar asked him a question. Thurman thereupon, instead of adopting the usual form of the presiding officer in such cases, "does the Senator yield?" etc., said "does the Senator submit to interruption." Truly plantation manners seem to have been imported by the Southern Brigadiers to their Northern allies, and Thurman is bidding high for the nomination next year. Randall's rulings are of the same character, and it has got to that pass that he has to submit to the dictation of the inflationists and repudiators, who demand rulings in behalf of their heresies notwithstanding he represents an honest money constituency. The fact that the Democrats make Congress wait upon their caucuses, and that their bills are all perfected in those political meetings, as boldly declared by their Senators, presents a novel and alarming picture for the contemplation of the loyal American citizen. We can congratulate ourselves that such things cure themselves in this country, and that the revulsion of feeling is so great now that many thoughtful Democrats concede the hopelessness of maintaining the present domination after the extra session shall have accomplished all the mischief it can.

While there is every disposition among Republicans here, and who come here from all parts of the country, to unite upon the candidate of the next national convention, whether he be Grant, Blaine, Windom, Chandler, or any sound able man, there is also a very general agreement among them that no method such as that adopted by a certain New York paper to force any one man to the front as the only one who can have full Republican support, will promote the party's interest. It is remarked as singular that the Times has suddenly turned from foul abuse of Gen'l Grant to fulsome praise, and this is suspicious. Does it desire to create dissension in the party? It is too late in the interest of the party, to force candidates forward in the way it is doing. When the time comes the North-west may desire to honor a worthy man like Senator Windom, while the East will have other candidates, like Blaine, Conkling and Wheeler.

The only bill thus far passed this session is the one providing for the construction of a refrigerating and disinfecting vessel, on the plan of Prof. Gangee, designed to prevent the introduction of yellow fever at Southern ports. The President will probably sign it at once, and the vessel will be ready for work in two months.
