

DR. CLARK'S INDIAN BLOOD SYRUP

The Best Remedy Known to Man!
 Dr. Clark Johnson having associated himself with Mr. Edwin Eastman, an escaped captive, long a slave to Wakametta, the medicine man of the Comanches, is now prepared to lend his aid in the introduction of the wonderful remedy of that tribe. The experience of Mr. Eastman being similar to that of Mrs. Clara Jones and son, of Washington Co., Iowa, an account of whose sufferings were minutely narrated in the New York Herald of Dec. 15th, 1878, the facts of which are so widely known, and so nearly parallel that little mention of Mr. Eastman's experience will be given here. They are, however, published in a neat volume of 300 pages, entitled, "Seven and Nine Years Among the Comanches and Apaches," of which a free copy will be made hereafter. Suffice it to say, that for several years, Mr. Eastman, while a captive, was compelled to gather the roots, gums, herbs, and berries of which Wakametta's medicine was made, and is still prepared to provide the same materials for the successful introduction of the medicine to this country, and assure the public that the remedy is the same now as when Wakametta compelled him to make it.

Wakametta, the Medicine Man
 Nothing has been added to the medicine and nothing has been taken away. It is without doubt the BEST PURIFIER of the Blood and RENOVATOR of the SYSTEM ever known to man. This Syrup possesses varied properties. It acts upon the Liver, it acts upon the Kidneys, it regulates the Bowels, it purifies the Blood, it cures the Nervous System, it promotes Digestion, it nourishes, strengthens and invigorates, it carries off the old blood and makes new. It opens the pores of the skin, and effects Healthy Perspiration. It neutralizes the hereditary taint, or poison in the blood, which generates Scrofula, Erysipelas, and all manner of skin diseases and internal humors. There are no other employments in its manufacture, and it can be taken by the most delicate babe, or by the aged and feeble, care only being required in attention to directions.

The Mormon Creed.
 The Mormons, it seems to me have no religion. They, however, have a creed and believe in it. They have a system of theology, too, but such a system as never existed in the history of the world. It is worthy of mention only as a curiosity. It teaches primarily that there are many gods and that eminent spirits become gods in heaven. They rise one above another in power and glory to infinity. Joseph Smith is now the god of this generation. Above him is Jesus or Nazareth, whose superior god is Adam. Above Adam is Jehovah, and above Jehovah is Elohim. These all have many wives and they all rule over their descendants, who are constantly increasing in number and dominion. The glory of a saint when he becomes a god depends in some degree upon the number of wives and children which he has. Hence it is that polygamy is taught and enforced as a duty. Wives are sealed to saints here on earth to increase their dominion in heaven. The gods are in the form of men, and are the fathers of the souls of men in this world. The ten commandments are the rule of life, together with a revelation given to Joseph Smith in 1833. This revelation is called "A Word of Wisdom," and is regarded simply as counsel not as law. According to the Mormon creed infant sprinkling is condemned. At eight years of age children are baptized. Baptism for the dead is practiced, a living person being baptized for one or more dead persons. Some of the great men of the nation and of the world are by proxy members of the church of Latter-Day Saints as Washington, Franklin, etc. There have been many dispensations of religious truth, but the greatest of all is that made through the Prophet Joseph. This dispensation will culminate in the settlement of the saints in Jackson County, Missouri, whence they were expelled. Here will all the saints be gathered in the time, and all others be cut off. All preaching, so far as doctrine is concerned, is riging a change on these points. The people know their articles of faith by heart and are not allowed to forget them. Neither can a Gentle, though a fool, fail to learn what the saints believe. It is an eclectic theology that they hold, made up of contributions from every creed. It is a compound of Christianity, philosophy and mythology in about equal parts. The form of church government is that of the Methodist Church, although the leaders were originally Congregationalists in the matter of church order and Baptist by profession.

This conglomerate theology is diametrically opposed to the doctrines of the Bible, (1) in being purely materialistic, (2) in teaching the eternity of matter, (3) in declaring the pre-existence and transmission of souls, (4) in preaching a plurality of gods, and (5) in advocating the doctrine of a plurality of wives or celestial marriage.—Sunday Afternoon.

Grappled by a Mexican Lion.
 A Texas frontiersman and hunter named Franklin, a dweller on the lone some banks of the headwaters of the Little Wichita, led his rangers for the purpose of bagging some wild turkeys and other game for breakfast next morning.

The hunter was dressed in the broad slouched hat so common in Texas, with boots over his shoulders, a six-shooter belted in his waist, and his trusty rifle slung over his shoulder. His venture was quite successful, Franklin being a center shot. Following the banks of the Little Wichita, he brought down three fine gobblers with his niece, and human-like, tied all of them with a leather thong, slung the turkeys over his shoulder, and started for his sylvan home, or rather camp. The shadows of night had already partially fallen on the murmuring river, and the somber gloom of deep solitude fallen on the trees that line the banks of the Wichita. Franklin was plodding along in the dim shades, unconscious of danger from man or beast when he felt a sudden shock, as if a great load had been precipitated on his back. He turned around and started, the hunter arose from the crouching position into which he had been thrown and grappled with his unknown and mysterious assailant. His first idea was that it was some devil-fish by some curious chance turned loose on land.

A fierce combat ensued. His assailant grappled with him, but seemed to direct his strength against the weight carried on his back. Franklin could not use his gun or his pistol, but stuck at the "varmint" with his fist and endeavored to free himself from the intruder much after the manner of the character in the "Ahabian Nights," on whose back was saddled the Old Man of the Sea. At last the animal for some Franklin at length overpowered it to the succed in scamping of with one of the claws, followed by the hunter, who now drew his gun as well as knife.

He fired one shot at his assailant, but this only enraged him and the animal, making a deadly spring, alighted on Frankin, at the same time planting its claws deep into his neck and cheeks. The hunter was also fearfully torn and mangled about the arms, legs and other parts of the body, where the sharp teeth of the brute were rapidly planted. As the last spring when the animal had fastened its ugly claws in his face, Franklin slung his knife into his enemy, who fell dead on the ground. On examining the "varmint" the hunter found it to be a Mexican lion of large size. Such was his own enfeebled condition, after such a death struggle, that it was with difficulty Frankin reached his ranch, where his wounds were dressed.

 Twenty women are pursuing the medical course of studies at the University of Bern, and will graduate as doctors of medicine.
 The admission of women to the departments of arts and laws in University College, London, has developed no difficulties, as was anticipated.
 A lady of fashion has a fan each stick of which was painted by celebrated American artists. It is a curious and harmonious mosaic of pretty pictures.
 Miss Dods, the Philadelphia cooking teacher, wears a black gown and white apron while lecturing, and decorates herself with a gold necklace and a locket as big and bright as a pie plate.
 It is said there are 100,000 women in New York city who support themselves, 50,000 of whom receive less than $3.50 a week. Many girls work in stores for $2 a week and board themselves.
 In a recent return to the Registrar-General of a marriage solemnized in the North of England, the clergyman states that the woman married, aged nineteen, is the thirty-seventh child of her father, by his fifth wife.

It is announced that six of the eight young ladies who acted as bridesmaids when Nellie Grant was married have already found husbands. The moral is—be bridesmaids to the daughter of a President if you want to marry early.
 Miss Virginia Hicks, a young lady of Wyandotte, Indian Territory, was thrown from her saddle by her horse. She struck on her head, and a high tortoise shell comb which was in her hair was driven into the brain, causing almost instant death.
 Referring to the allowance of pin money given to English ladies, the London Queen, a high authority, in an article on the subject says that $2,500 a year is the usual sum allotted in the highest grade of life, even in the case of men who have from $100,000 to $150,000 a year. A lady whose husband has from $15,000 to $20,000 would get annually from $1,000 to $2,000.

TOILET OF ANTIQUITY.
 Certain prized records have come down to us descriptive of the toilet of matrons in antiquity. One of these chronicles is entitled, "Employment of a Sabine Lady's Morning." It is a wonderful production, introducing us to every necessary of female attire, and teaching the way they were put on before the time when those full-skirted Sabines were so roughly handled by Roman warriors. The writer leads the reader to the lady's bedside and through her earliest ablutions to the completion of her toilet, a fact or finale she announced by spitting on a mirror which one of her attendants handed to her. The ceremonial observed for the adornment of a Roman patrician was no less minute than the care lavished on her person in order to enhance beauty with regard to form and color. The extreme simplicity of the Roman and Greek costume dispensed with prothorice other than in the matter of headdress and graceful draping, but the embellishment of the human face has always charmed the female mind. In countries where dress styles had a permanent cut, women were well versed in the elaboration of cosmetics, and directed to the preservation of their skins the arts now resorted to, mostly, for fascination by means of dress. No wonder that a whole morning was devoted to toilet. Ladies who, in our days, uphold the uniformity of costume in antiquity should consider what a loss of time permanent cuts will cause, and no longer maintain that the women of Rome or Greece were wiser than ourselves. Many who are weary of the whims of La Mode are not only urging reputed fashion writers to advocate a return to the pepum, etc., but are suggesting that literary ladies are the proper persons to set this example by adopting the antique costume themselves.

In the government of Cherson, Russia, in the bed of a river, a peasant found an egg of unusual size. It is equal to forty hen's eggs, whereas the ostrich egg is equal to only twenty-four. It is of a yellowish color, and being found between the clay and gypsum layers, is supposed to belong to the tertiary formation. The purchaser of this egg offered it to the Imperial Academy of Sciences, St. Petersburg, for 10,000 roubles. The academy failed to buy it, on account of lack of means, but asked permission to take a mold from it. The British Museum has now bought this unique egg, to the grief of the Russian students of natural science.

Condolas.
 The gondola of the present day is, in general style and character, just what it was in the days of Venice's glory, but the gondolier of to-day is doubtless a less noble type of his class, and as lazy as the day is long. Gondolas, according to their size, have one or two gondoliers, who row with a peculiar motion, standing up in the ends of the boat; these use but one oar, which is quite long. The gondolas are always painted a dead black, without a line of color to relieve its somber appearance, but the better class of them are, for all that, quite ornate in the elaboration of wood-carving and upholstery, with a neat and cosy cab covering the center, which is generally taken off in fine weather. The gondola is the only means of conveyance between different parts of the city, though all points may be reached on foot by means of the narrow little streets and bridges. It would baffle the attempts of any stranger, however, to find his way about alone.—Letter from Venice.

Protect the System from Malaria.
 It is possible to do this even in regions of country where miasma is most rife, and where the periodic fevers which it causes assume their most formidable types. The immense popularity of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters is very largely attributable to the fact of its efficacy as a remedy for chills and fever, bilious remittents, and as a preventive of the various forms of malarial disease. In those portions of the West and South where complaints of this nature prevail, and in the tropics, it is particularly esteemed for the protective influence which it exerts; and it has been very widely adopted as a substitute for the dangerous and comparatively ineffective alkaloid, sulphate of quinine. Physicians have not, upon the last to concede its merits, and the emphatic professional endorsements which it has received have added to the reputation it has obtained at home and abroad.

A Mystery Explained.
 Parlor scene: Mrs. Brown, who has spent the summer among the White mountains in search of health, and who seems to have searched the whole mountain side without being able to find a pair of blooming cheeks or an inch of skin. Mrs. White, who very largely has remained at home because her husband could not afford to go, but whose fresh complexion and bright eyes seem to have caught their bloom and brightness from mountain breezes.
 Mrs. B.—Dear me, Mrs. White, how well you look! If I could only see you here, I would not be so healthy in this dreadful city? I have been to the White mountains, go there every summer, in fact, and I can't keep off the doctor's list at that.
 Mrs. W. (smiling)—I'll tell you the whole secret, Mrs. Brown. You remember how poorly I was last spring, how my eyes were confined to my bed. Dr. — told Mr. White to send me to the mountains, but I know he couldn't afford it, and I tried Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. Its effects were so marvelous that I also tried his Golden Medical Discovery, to cleanse my system. In my opinion, one bottle of his Prescription and the Discovery is better than six weeks of the White mountains for a sick woman. I have only been out of the city a week during the whole summer; then my husband and I went to Buffalo and stopped at Dr. Pierce's Invalids' and Tourists' Hotel. The baths and mechanical apparatus for treating patients were alone worth going to see. Best of all, accommodations were better than we had at Long Branch last year, and the drives and scenery are superb. Let me advise you to use Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, and try the Invalids' and Tourists' Hotel next summer instead of the White mountains.
 A speedy quietus is given to a hacking cough by the inestimable specific for pulmonary, throat and bronchial complaints, Hall's Balsam for the Lungs, which cures consumption, bronchitis, pneumonia, pleurisy, labored breathing and other disorders of the respiratory organs. When a cough manifests itself, the early use of this beneficent medicine is earnestly recommended, as the difficulty is more easily overcome in its incipient stage than later on.
