[TRADE MARK.] The Best Remedy Known to Man The Best Remedy Known to Man!

Itr. Clark Johnson having associated himself with Mr. Edwin Eastman, an escaped captive, long a slave to Wakametkia, the medicine man of the Commetion, is now prepared to lend his aid in the introduction of the wonderful remedy of that tribe. The experience of Mr. Eastman being similar to flat of Mrs. Class Jones and son, of Washington Co., lows, an account of whose sufferings were trailingly marrated in the New Fork Herald of Dor. 15th, 1878, the facts of which are so widely known, and so nearly parallel, that but little mention of Mr. Eastman's experiences will be given hers. They are, however, published in a neat volume of 300 pages, entitled, "Sevenand Nine Years Among the Commuches and Apaches," of which mention will be made hereafter. Suffice it to say, that for several years, Mr. Eastman, white a captive, was compelled to gather the roots, guns, barke, herbs and berries of which Wakametkia's medicine was made, and is still prepared to provide the sawn materials for the successful introduction of the medicine to the world; and assures the public that the remedy is the same now as when Wakametkia compelled him to make it.

Wakametkla, the Medicine Man Nothing has been added to the medicine and othing has been taken away. It is without doubt a BEST PURIFIER of the BLOOD and RENEWER of ne System ever known to man. This Syrup possesses varied properties.

Good Fishing.

"When I got ashore I found an old fellow that lived near the pond fishing for bull-heads. 'Be you from the city? he asked. I said I was. 'Ketchin' pick'rl?' he asked. I told him I wasn't. Want to?' he inquired. If I could get hold of a few good ones, I'd be suited to death. 'Wud y' like t' pay a couple of dollars t' git some good ones?' I replied that I would a adily invest that much for a little genuine sport. "The Pike county man stopped to at-tend to a bite on his line. He pulled out a bull-head the size of a pug dog, took it off his hook, dropped it in his boat on top of about half a bushel others, leisurely wound up his line, and then said 'Come along o' me.' I followed with my pail of bait-fish and my tackle. The Pike county man took me half a mile through the woods. There we came to a pond about the size of the fountain basin in City Hall Park. 'Now, h'yer ye'll have some fun,' he said. I was sweating and puffing like a horse after a four-mile race. 'I'll take the $2 right h'yer,' he added. 'F you don't ketch any fish, y'll find me over t' Big Walker yankin' bull-heads, 'n I'll refund.' He showed me a box made with slats, and having a lid with leather hinges. One end was stuck down in the mud, and the box was half full of water. The countryman told me to open the lid and put fish in that box as fast as I caught them, and that would keep them fresh and nice. I thanked him, and he went away with my $2 bill in his pocket.

"I began to fish. The first throw I caught a pickerel that would weigh two pounds easy. 'This is pretty good,' I thought. I kept on fishing, and every little while I'd haul out a pickerel. I put the fish all in the box, as I had been instructed to do by the Pike countian. I caught twenty pickerel before it began to strike me as something singular that they were all as near one size as could be. After my twenty-fifth pickerel it occurred to me as being a little motion in the box. When I opened it and put my twenty-sixth pickerel in, I pulled it out on shore. There wasn't a fish in the box. One slat was off the fish in the box. One slat was off the fish in the box bad been in the remarkable that there was so little comwater, and the pickerel had passed back into the pond as soon as caught.

"I started back after the Pike county man. He had probably caught all the bull-heads he wanted, for he was no-where to be seen. Then I went over to Little Walker and told John C. about the twenty-six splendid pickerel I had caught, and how they got away. John smiled.

"'Don't feel so bad, Judge,' said he.
'You only lost one fish. That's old Bullhead Lee's pet pickerel. He's always hungry, and you've caught him twenty-six times."-New York Sun.

How to Get a Lover.

In Lancashire, if an inquirer wishes to know the abode of a lover, an applepippin is taken between the thumb and finger, and, while moving round, squeezed out, when it is supposed to fly in the direction of the lover's house. These words are said at the same time:

Pippin, pippin, paradise, Tell me where my true love lies; East, west, north or south.

Pilling Brig or Cockermonth Halliwell, in his "Popular Rhymes" (1849), says that girls formerly practiced divination with a "St. Thomas onion," which they peeled, wrapped in a clean handkerchief, and laid under their heads, saying the following

Good St. Thomas, do me right, And see my true love come to night, That I may see him in the face, And him in kind arms embrace.

In Shropshire, to find one's future partner the blade-bone of a lamb must be procured, which is to be pricked at midnight with a penknife, and these words repeated:

' is much its bone I wish to pick,
But my love's heart I wish to prick;
If lor comes not and stemas to thele
It lories and prick it let us light.
In Derbyshire they have a method which it would take a bold heart to perform; the young woman, to find out her future husband, runs round the church at midnight, as the clock strikes

12, repeating the following:
I saw hemp-seed hemp-seed I sow;
He that levies me best

After which her destined partner is believed to follow her.

The Three R's. Somebody mourns because he has nothing but the three R's to teach. Poor soul! From the very depths of our feelings we pity you. Nothing to teach! The world is before you. Sun, moon and atoms, stars and comets, a whole universe full, and nothing but the three R's left you. But after all we suspect you have not taught those branches very much. Can you read? We should like to examine you. How we would try you all the way up from Mother Goose to Milton. Can you write? We would give you a pen, and ten minutes in which to write a thought worth remembering one second. Then arithmetic! Why, my dear, ignorant soul! do you not yet know that arithmetic is the science of sciences, that even the highest calculus is only an expand-ed arithmetic? Go home! Leave your work to others who will honor the grandest of all studies, reading, writing and arithmetic. There are those who understand that to know these well is to be well learned. God bless the teacher who knows the three R's! God bless the child who learns them !- Educational Monthly.

A Grammatical Error.

Colorado has the most delightful climate in the world, and bed-bugs. A mother in Israel residing there requires her granddaughter, a young High School miss, to read to her daily some portion of the Good Book. While so engaged recently the young lady sud-denly stopped, and exclaimed: "Why, grandma, I declare here is a grammatical error.

The old lady only replied: "No matter, darling. Kill it, and go on."-Harper's Magazine.

THE foundation for the meanest man is haid when a small boy turns the wormhole in an apple for his companion to Making a Father's Grave.

The Sandusky (Ohlo) Register relates the following story: A little girl with tangled locks peeping from under a calico bood, clad in a dress of chintz, loitered behind as the great dusty crowd moved out of the gates of Mount Adna the other stay, after they had scattered their flowers and done honor to the dead. Dreamily she gazed after them, her eyes filled with a far saway look of tenderness, until the last one had disappeared and the rattle of the drums had died away, Then she turned and vaguely scanned the mounds that rose about her, clutching still tighter the fading bunch of dandelions and grass that her chubby hand held. An old man came by and gently patted her curly head as he spoke her name, but she only shrank back still further, and when he told a passing suranger that the little one's father had died on shipbeard and been buried at sea, there was only a tear doon in the child's eye to tell that she heard or knew the When they were gone she moved on further to a neglected, empty lot, and kneeling down she piled up a mound of earth, whispering as she patted it, and smoothed it with her chubby hand, "This won't be so awfully big as the others, I guess, but may be it will be big enough so that God will see it and think papa is buried here." Carefully she trimmed the sides with the grass she plucked, murmuring on: "And maybe it will grow so that it will be like the rest in two or three years, and then maybe papa will sometime come back and—" But she paused as though it suddenly dawned upon her young mind that he rested beneath the waves, and tear-drops that sprung to her eyes moistened the little bunch of dandelions that she planted among the grasses on the mound she had reared. When the sexton passed that way at night as he went to close the gates he found the little one fast asleep, with her head pillowed on the mound.

Tobacco Slaves.

A writer in the Gentleman's Magazine relates the following instances to show what a hold the habit of smoking may have upon persons: A city man that I know gets halfan hour for his luncheon home every evening; and he smokes incessantly during the walks each way. He dines at six o'clock, and then smokes without ceasing until bedtime. On Sunday he smokes all day, except during meals; he will never attend a place of worship, because it would curtail his smoking. He will never go into society with his wife, and, indeed, will not readily talk to her at home, as it disturbs his smoking. In all other respects this man is a good husband and father. Another acquaintance of mine, who is a highly-intellectual and deeply-read man, will tolerate nothing that may postpone his smoke. At dinner he is in perpetual drive to get done, so as to begin his pipe; he wants no pudding, cheese or desert; taking these would involve loss of time, and put off the smoking period'a few minuteslonger. He likewise requires no tea or supper, protest-ing he is not hungry and that he does not wish to be disturbed in his smoke. Another man that I know is in a government office, and when the usual publie holidays occur, such as the queen's birthday, his treat is to lie in bed all day and smoke. The gentleman is married, and always smokes his last pipe in bed

Looking for a Dying Man to Marry.

A French lady recently applied at Guy's riospital, in London, saying that a young woman, a relative of hers, was entitled to inherit some property if mar-ried; but, being single, there was a prospect of her losing it. As no suitable husband seemed likely to appear, she was desirous of finding some "dying" man, of what position it mattered not, to whom she might be formally married and so obtain the property, while at the same time the link might be slender and soon broken. This they had not been able to manage in France, and they had accordingly sent over to London, where they hoped for success. The steward was requested to find such a bridegroom. The extraordinary application was refused.

Subduing and Avoiding Fever and Ague.
Of all chronic diseases, fever and ague is perhaps the least conquerable by the ordinary resources of medicine. There is, however, a remedy which completely roots it out of the system in any and all of its various phases. Phis celebrated anti-periodic is vegetable in composition, and is not only effencious but perfectly saie, a thing that cannot be predicated with truth of quinine. Hostetter's Stomach Bitters is, besides, a most efficient means of defence against malaria, as it endows the physique with an amount of stamina which emplies it to encounter miasmatic influences without prejudice to health. Persons about to visit, or living in toreign countries, or portions of our own where intermittent or remittent fevers prevail, should not omit to lay in a sufficient supply of the great preventive, both to avert such diseases and disorders of the stomach, bowels and liver common to such localities.
