JOHN CHINAMAN IN NEW YORK.

Life in the Transplanted Section of the Flowery Kingdom—The Interior of a Chinese Store.

The great obstacle in the way of the growth of the Chinese population of New York city at present is the difficulty they have in procuring buildings for habitations and business purposes in any desirable part of the town. They are now scattered in all sections of the city, by twos, threes and half dozens, in the laundry business, but their quarter is the lower end of Mott street. There their peculiar institutions flourish; there their stores are; there their firecracker and tea-chest lingo is flaunted glaringly upon red paper at almost every door.

Here in New York there is not, as yet, any such overcrowding as in San Francisco, yet the manner in which they utilize space is really remarkable. Take Wo Kee's store for example. It is the principal Chinese store on Mott street, consequently the leading one in New York. It contains apparently somewhere near a million different things of the most incongruous character. There are an infinity of diminutive pasteboard boxes, filled with Chinese medicines—gigantic pills, roots, herbs, barks, seeds, and such like. There are incense sticks, jade bracelets; strange evolutions of Celestial fancy in the way of ornamentation, like glorified valentines; quaint and pretty tea services, dried sharks' fins, looking like bangled strips of amber-tinted glue; ducks split, baked in peanut oil, and flattened out dry, so as to look like strange caricatures of dragons; sweetmeats in infinite variety, nuts that nobody but a Chinaman knows the name of, dried mushrooms, opium and pipes for smoking it, tobacco, teas of many kinds, some of them exquisite and much more expensive than any American store sells; silks, fungus-looking black lumps, of which it is guaranteed that a small bit will make the drunkenest man immediately sober; sandals and Chinese clothing. In short, it is grocery, dry goods store, jewelry shop, drug store, curiosity shop, and twenty other things, and yet is all comprised in the space of a small front parlor, with a narrow branch into a back room, necessarily small, so as to leave space for a well-patronized lodgings department. There is a little open space in the center of the store, just enough for three or four customers to stand in, but beyond that not an inch is wasted. On a little table near the window stands the inevitable tea pot and a number of little cups, preparation for a hospitality that the Chinese merchant extends to every one. Behind the narrow little counter is Wo-Kee himself, bland, courteous, deft in running up sums with the buttons of his Chinese abacus, artistic in the manipulation of the camel's hair brush with which he paints the mysterious symbols of his account books, graceful and exact in the weighing out by his ivory and thread balance (on the steelyard pattern) of the minute quantities of opium constantly in demand by his customers.

In the basement of Wo-Kee's house meets the Po-Lan-Gung-Se, a benevolent society of Chinamen numbering about seventy-five members. Further down the street is the meeting place of the Sam-Hop-We, another association for mutual benefit.

The Chinese quarter contains a couple of opium-smoking shops, where the slaves of the soporific drug lie in narrow bunks and sleep dreamful slumbers. Those addicted to this vice show it in their listless, indifferent stare, stupidity and bodily weakness when it has gained a great hold upon them, but nearly all the Chinese seem to smoke opium to a moderate extent without suffering any harm from it. There are no Chinese liquor shops, and a drunken Chinaman is exceedingly rare, although most of them drink a little beer. They have no temple here as yet, and no theater, but in course of time hope to have both, when they are here in sufficient numbers for the support of such institutions. In neither devotional nor histrionic exercises have they any disposition to favor amateur effort. The one vice most prevalent among them seems to be gambling. They play for very small stakes generally, but with an eagerness and infatuation that no other people can excel. Their games no white man ever dreams of undertaking, and hence it is that when a party of Chinese gamblers are arrested it is hardly possible, except by a stretch of presumption under the law, to convict them. They have, however, a wholesome respect for American law, and are extremely cautious in admitting a stranger to any knowledge of their sports of chance. Reporters the more ignorant of them fear more than policemen, for their interpreters have taught them: "It is only by the publication in the newspapers of the matters you permit the reporters to know about you that the police ever find out anything. So long as the policeman is left to the resources of his own intelligence you have nothing to fear from him." So it is very hard to get any information from them about their lives and habits. When a Chinaman is very sick and feels that he can afford it, he goes to an American physician for treatment, but for ordinary ailments, just beyond the limits of his own knowledge of the resources of Wo-Kee's red boxes, he goes to the one of the two Chinese physicians located here, Chun-Man-Wy, their principal physician, does quite a thriving trade upon a basis of prices regulated to meet the financial abilities of his countrymen. Sometimes a Chinaman pays him as much as $2 for being thoroughly cured. Quong-Lee affirms that there has never yet been a case of leprosy among the Chinamen in New York.

There are six flourishing stores on Mott street, dealing almost entirely in imported goods, paying high rents, and doing a thriving business. Not the least amusing feature of the transactions in them is the frequent occurrence of Chinamen coming in to have reweighed on the honest scales of their countrymen the small packages of goods purchased from grocers and other shopkeepers who are not Chinese. They say that it is a rare thing for them to find a package that is of full weight. "No such business in my store," said Wo-Kee, proudly. "I give full weight of all I sell." There has been two Chinese women here, but one of them started for Havana with her husband. No women have arrived among the recent comers from California, and none are expected.—New York Sun.

FOR THE FAIR SEX.

Fashion Notes.

Beaded trimmings are in great vogue

Some of the new suits are flounced to the waist.

Everything odd, everything quaint is considered stylish.

The fashionable hat of the summer will be a broad-brimmed Tuscan straw.

Mercutio plumes and Prince of Wales tips will be the feathers worn this season.

Jet fringes, passementerie and the new "blackberry buttons" of fine jet are used on rich black dresses.

For full-dress bodices a new cut is coming in, viz., high on the shoulders and en cœur back and front. It is not becoming.

Polonaises are too useful to be set aside, and are being resuscitated in Paris as "over-dresses," often made with paniers.

Black polka-dotted grenadines are made up over black satin, and there are very fine black cashmeres embroidered with polka dots to be made up with plain black cashmere.

Long scarfs of black twilled silk to be worn in mourning are made double, edged with black footing, and are shirred a short distance from the ends to give the effect of tassels.

Embroidery is invading all domains, and only awaits the spring to blossom in full splendor—embroidery in silk or chenille, mixed with beads, embroidery entirely of beads, in various colors, or of one color only.

A narrow knife-plaiting of dark red satin is around the bottom of the skirt of nearly all the French dresses, no matter how light or how dark the material of the dress is; indeed, this gay finish is seen as frequently as were white lace or muslin balayeuses on dresses last year.

Dark blue linen and navy blue Scotch ginghams are made into short dresses with striped claret-colored borders, or else the gayest Turkish red calico with palm-leaf figures is used for the cuffs, collars, pockets, borders and for a full guimpe, which is finished at the top with a frill.

Harper's Bazar says that in New York white petticoats are entirely abandoned, and there are in preparation petticoats of black foulard or Surah, trimmed with narrow flounces which are edged with white lace, or else with lace embroidered with silk or wool in red, rose, blue or orange.

Diagonal bands crossing the front of the underskirt are a favorite way of arranging beaded embroideries. Pearl and satin beads are often mixed in these bands, and the surface is usually quite covered.

One of the new ways of making over worn polonaises is to keep the upper part unaltered, and to replace the lower breadths by draperies of brocade stuff, long enough to hide all of the underskirt except the flounce.

Plain round skirts, simply stitched on the lower edge, and surtout overdresses opening in each seam below the waist, are the coming style for traveling dresses. Those who do not like them will wear suits with the overskirt and jacket like those in fashion last winter

How They Feed a Prima Donna.

This being the age of indiscretions, remarks the Parisian, we are almost bound to be indiscreet. For the benefit, therefore, of future cantatrices we will reveal la Patti's diet. When she wakes in the morning she drinks a cup of chocolate. This habit is invariable. On days when she has not to sing she eats heavily of underdone meat. She has, too, a strong liking for a certain garlic soup, which has been invented especially for her by an ingenious cook. On days when she sings la Patti breakfasts at eleven on eggs and meat, with Bordeaux wine and seltzer water. This is the only serious meal she eats until after the performance, when she sups. On her singing days la Patti does not dine. After breakfast she retires to her room and sleeps for a couple of hours. About four o'clock she dresses, takes a ride, then returns home and practices at the piano for an hour. Before going to the theater she drinks a clear consomme. This hygienic system is scrupulously observed by la Patti. We may add another detail. She never opens her mouth until she has taken her chocolate; then she tries her voice by calling Caro, her chambermaid, with all her might.

He Found a Bowery Boy.

It is related of Thackeray that, being very desirous to see a "Bowery boy," a New York rough of twenty years ago, he went with a friend into the haunts of that peculiar creature to look for one. Very soon his companion pointed out to him a genuine specimen, standing on the corner of a street against a lamp-post, red-shirted, black-trousered, soap-locked, shiny-hatted, with a cigar in his mouth elevated at an angle of forty-five degrees.

After contemplating him for a few moments, Thackeray said to his friend that he would like to talk to the fellow, and asked if he might do so.

"Surely," he was told; "go to him and ask him to direct you somewhere."

Thereupon Thackeray approached, and said, politely:

"My friend, I should like to go to—" such a place.

"Well," replied the Bowery boy, in his peculiar tones, and without moving anything but his lips, as he looked up lazily at the tall, gray-haired novelist—"well, sonny, you can go, if you won't stay too long."

Thackeray was satisfied.

A Kansas Spitter.

As the train stopped for ten minutes, and that individual who goes along tapping the wheels with his hammer was passing rapidly by the smoking car, one of the windows was hoisted and a torrent of spittle was ejected. The machinist paused a moment and, wiping some of the stream from his person, said to the offender: "Mister, what part of the country did you come from?" "Me?" said the spitter, puckering his lips for another expectation, "I come from Kansas." "I thought so," said the machinist, "for if you had lived in Massachusetts or Connecticut they would have had a water-wheel in your mouth long ago."—Boston Commercial Advertiser.

NATURE'S REMEDY. VEGETINE THE GREAT BLOOD PURIFIER.

FEVER AND AGUE.

TARBORO, N. C., 1878.

DR. H. R. STEVENS:

Dear Sir—I feel very grateful for what your valuable medicine, VEGETINE, has done in my family. I wish to express my thanks by informing you of the wonderful cure of my son; also to let you know that VEGETINE is the best medicine I ever saw for Chills, Shakes, Fever and Ague. My son was sick with measles in 1873, which left him with Hip-joint disease. My son suffered a great deal of pain, all of the time; the pain was so great he did nothing but cry. The doctors did not help him a particle; he could not lift his foot from the floor; he could not move without crutch. I read your advertisement in the "Louisville Courier-Journal," that VEGETINE was a great Blood Purifier and Blood Food. I tried one bottle, which was a great benefit. He kept on with the medicine, gradually gaining. He has taken eighteen bottles in all, and he is completely restored to health, walks without crutches or cane. He is twenty years of age. I have a younger son fifteen years of age, who is subject to Chills. Whenever he feels one coming on, he comes in, takes a dose of VEGETINE and that is the last of the Chill. VEGETINE leaves no bad effect upon the system like most of the medicines recommended for Chills. I cheerfully recommend VEGETINE for such complaints. I think it is the greatest medicine in the world.

Respectfully, MRS. J. W. LLOYD.

VEGETINE.—When the blood becomes lifeless and stagnant, either from change of weather or of climate, want of exercise, irregular diet, or from any other cause, the VEGETINE will renew the blood, carry off the putrid humors, cleanse the stomach, regulate the bowels, and impart a tone of vigor to the whole body.

Druggists' Testimony.

MR. H. R. STEVENS:

Dear Sir—We have been selling your remedy, the VEGETINE, for about three years, and take pleasure in recommending it to our customers, and in no instance where a blood purifier would reach the case, has it ever failed to effect a cure, to our knowledge. It certainly is the ne plus ultra of renovators. Respectfully,
