The nomination of Hon. Alfred Short for Congress by the Greenbackers at Erie has created a great deal of discord in the Greenback camp.

A BET having been made by a Democrat in the oil exchange yesterday, that there were more Hancock than Garfield men among the soldier members, a vote was taken, which stood eighteen for Garfield to nine for Hancock.

At the Greenback Congressional Conference held in Corry, Assemblyman Short, the presumed Democratic nominee, was nominated on condition that he subscribes to all Greenback principles.

THE National Democrat quotes from Wm. B. Mann's speech as follows: "A victory for Hancock now means that all who fought on the right side shall give way and make place either to those who fought on the wrong side or who sympathized with them."

Most people with two eyes and sense enough to use them will see that Col. Mann is about as near the bull's eye as possible, but the Democrat don't think so and gives this as a reason: "We call the attention of our readers to the appointment of Major General James A. Longstreet as collector of customs under Grant's administration."

As was indicated from the beginning the Greenbackers and Democrats in Maine have coalesced. There is no reason why they should not. They have one common, animating purpose, which is to possess the offices, and that they are thoroughly united.

full Republican vote, while the late attempt of the Fusionists to possess the State by fraud will lose for them many votes. The contest this year is a most interesting and important one, and no pains should be spared to insure such a decided Republican majority as can neither be questioned nor miscounted.

Just now it would be very proper and right for Mr. James Mosgrove, Greenback-Democratic candidate for Congress in this 25th Congressional district, to make known his intentions with regard to the Presidential tickets. He has given his pledge to do all he can for General Weaver, the Greenback candidate, and yet his Democratic friends assert that he is going to disrespect that pledge and vote for Hancock.

The Republicans are forming the line of battle in the State of New York. There is every reason, remarks the New York Tribune, why the Republican party should thus unite with more than its usual heartiness, and with only a generous rivalry between contending factions as to which shall be foremost in good work. Gen. Garfield is the candidate of no faction, and he stood in the way of no rival. He was nominated as a spontaneous choice, and as a relief from a dead-lock.

General Hancock's Ancestry.

Much has been said and written by Democrats and Democratic newspapers about the pedigree of Winfield Scott Hancock, the Democratic nominee for President. It is claimed by these Democratic papers that he is a descendant—the grandson—of the signer of the Declaration of Independence, John Hancock.

'Squire John Roberts was of an old-time and a distinguished Montgomery county family. One of his near relatives, Job Roberts, was a member of Congress at a time when a national Representative was looked upon with a feeling akin to awe.

ley's son, old Jacob moving some time ago into North Wales village. 'Squire Roberts was a bachelor, and unless report belie him, a rollicking one, and even added years did not bring to him that sodateness that popularly attaches to a hoary head. The 'Squire with an utter disregard of the frowns and winks of his neighbors, made one day an addition to his household in the person of—well, some say she was a housekeeper and others insist that she was an ordinary domestic, but all agree that she was pretty.

"What shall I call her?" said the master. "Benjamin Franklin Hancock," replied the 'Squire, and in that way was the first Hancock brought to the attention of the people of Montgomery township. People are still living here who went to school with the boy, and who remember when he first came within the reach of Master Colms' ratten.

"Why I remember Benjamin Hancock well," said old John Kibblehouse, whose weight of 81 years did not prevent him from nimbly stepping from his porch to the roadside. "I went to William Colms' school until the War of 1812 was over, and I played ball with 'Benny' Hancock many's the time. It was nothing against him, you know, but all the boys knew that 'Benny' was taken by the 'Squire out of the 'Poohhouse.' As to the correctness of John Kibblehouse's belief that Benjamin Hancock has been a charge upon some county, opinion differs. Other men who are not quite octogenarians, but who are related upon their mother's side to the Hancock family, and are cousins of the Democratic Presidential candidate, say that 'Squire Roberts received the boyish charge from a lady in Philadelphia. Folks round about Montgomery Square, after taking one look at Benjamin Franklin Hancock, had made up their minds as to his paternity.

Without receiving the name of Roberts, there had been visited upon him the cognomen of two men, much thought of and much talked of in those days—Benjamin Franklin, philosopher, and John Hancock, patriot. Thus did he come by the name of Benjamin Franklin Hancock.

The Democrats have achieved the greatest blunder yet, in uniting with the Greenback party of Maine. They give by this move, the lie to one of the prominent planks in their platform and show that they are prepared to go to any length to win their point. It is an alliance that any well bred and honest Democrat will blush to own. It must certainly be looked upon with mortification and regret by the Democrats at large, who are hard money men and see the transparent hopelessness this step reveals by the Democracy of Maine.
