An irreverent paper calls Forney an oleomargerine Democrat.

THE efforts to make a statesman out of Hancock are painful in their transparent failure.

Until Col. Forney became a Democrat he never knew what a wicked | wealth. man Garfield was.

MICHAEL STECK, Greenback candidate for Lieutenant Governor in 1878. is out for Hancock.

TAMMANY is auxious for harmony, but only on condition that the other fellows take their place at the foot of

THE Southern Confederates declare that full control of the national government is the only thing that will conciliate them.

DEMOCRATIC papers in Missouri have their tickets thus : For President, Winfield S. Hancock, of Missouri. They claim that his legal residence is in that State.

"MEN without money, brains or influence have no business to buck against me."-Kepler's opinion of Major Woodcock, Col. Peterson and their friends after the Democratic pri-

THE cool weather we have had for a few days is now fully explained. Charles Francis Adams has been declaring in favor of Hancock, and things are temporarily somewhat chilled.

MILLIONAIRE ENGLISH is no longer being heralded as the "poor man's friend," The sheriff of Indianapolis has a dull time of it since English was nominated for Vice President. Foreclosures have been temporarily sus-

LOOK out for the coffee-pot and whisky poem in next week's REPUB-LICAN, - Democrat.

We will have to call on the editor of the Democrat, who has had experience in the business, and get a few "points" before we can give the poem.

THE "free counting" appears to be still going on in Alabama. The Demperatic majority has now reached he knows that such a declaration is pinety thousand, and the returns not sure death to him. In common with all in yet. The Northern Democrats are very glad that Alabama has been the dogs with such a shyster:" carried but some of the discreet ones do wish the majority was not quite so erable time to see some of the Demooverwhelming. It proves more than cratic journals of this district demand their is necessity for.

THE Democratic papers appear to be perfectly happy in the strong belief that their candidate is certain of being President, yet somehow there seems to be an under-current of worriment that somebody may vote for a man named Garfield. Why this worry ?- Derrick.

BEFORE the meeting of the Chicago convention Col. Forney was for Grant; for a week after the nomination he was for Garfield; since then he has been for Hancock. Perhaps he will yet be impartial enough to give Weaver a lift before the end of the campaign.

THE-veteran Union soldiers who have suffered in Southern prisons held their reunion last week at Columbus, Ohio. A correspondent says a vote was taken on their choice for President, and there were upward of 1,300 for Garfield and one for Hancock .-Allegheny Mail.

GEN. BENJAMIN F. BUTLER, for the second time in his life, finds himself bottled up. This time he is politically bottled. The Democrats will not nominate him for Governor or Congress, and there is now no third party in Massachusetts of sufficient proportions to fall back upon.

THE REPUBLICAN will publish a poem entitled "coffee-pots, whiskey jugs and rum" for the benefit of the Republican party. - Democrat.

Whiskey jugs and rum have greatly benefitted the Republican party. Nearly every case of delirium tremens makes the Democratic minority lonesome by one. This is too solemn a fact to make poetry out of.

"WILL you vote the Republican ticket when a Republican Governor refused to pardon one of your countrymen and had him hanged, when his only crime was the killing of his wife? Revenge yourselves by voting for Hancock, English, and the whole Democratic ticket!" That is the argument now being used by the noble Democratic politicians on the Italians in New York.

"A MAN who has assisted in coloring fraudulent naturalization papers is not fit to dictate to the honest voters of Forest or any other county how they shall cast their ballots." The above taken from the FOREST REPUB-LICAN needs some explanation, as some over sensitive individuals may think it means more than it says .- Common-

The individual to whom the above is respectfully dedicated will fully understand who and how much is meant. He will need no further explanation.

Now the Indiana Democrats are very sorry they induced the Supreme Court to overturn the election by which the amendments to the constitution abolishing the October elections were adopted. They thought an October victory would be a good thing, but now an October defeat stares them in the face, and they are trying to induce the court to reconsider the former decision. Is that statesmanship,

THE Fourth of March next will complete the twentieth year since the Democratic party left the White House. The next President will be the twentieth and he uses twenty letters in his name. - Democrat.

Let us count them : JAMES ABRAHAM GARFIELD. Just twenty. K-rect. And with him will begin another twenty years of prosperity to the country and political starvation to the Democratic party. "Hearken unto the words of wisdom. Once I was young but now I am old, yet I have never seen the righteous forsaken nor his seed begging bread."

Dare Mosgrove Answer?

The following from the Indiana Progress covers the case as fully as anything as we could say on the question, and we commend it to the careful perusal of those Democrats and of memory, Greenbackers who are just now in a study whether to vote for a man without the shadow of a principle, or for Gen. White, whose principles are well known to every intelligent voter of the district. Certainly there ought not to be any harm in Mosgrove's telling the people upon what platform he stands, or whom he will support for President ; but he knows there is ; sure death to him. In common with many voters of all parties, we say, "to

We have waited patiently a considof Mr. Mosgrove which candidate for the Presidency shall receive his support at WM. SMEARBAUGH & CO., D. W. CLARK, GEORGE waited in vain. The question remains unasked; the answer is yet to be heard. This is a question the answer to which deeply affects all the parties in the district; but most pleasantly of all the Republican party. Most pleasantly, we say, because no weaker man could have taken the field against Gen. White than the candidate selected by the Fusion leaders. Weak in principle, he has, up till the present time, remained close as an oyster upon this important point. But the time has come when silence will no longer do; when equivocation will no longer satisfy the general public. He owes it to his friends, to the parties who Torms STRICTLY CASH, or Exchange placed him in nomination and to his long-tried and faithful opponent to say into which camp the standard which has been entrusted to him shall be horne. He must signify his intentions in a short time; the question must be answered before the election. The ides of November must not find him standing as he stands to-day—a man before the people as the nominee of two parties combined, yet owing allegiance to neither and withholding confidence from both; a man without a Presidential preference.

Will the Democrats of this district, who have always-until the present campaign-maintained their organization distinct, give this Fusion nomicee their full strength without a pledge from him in return? Is it probable that those Greenbackers who have already given him their votes, will continue to render him allegiance, trusting that be will uphold their candidate for the Presidential chair? To both these questions we answer, No! Mr. Mosgrove must announce his intentions in this matter. He must say he will support either Hancock or Weaver. To make a decision will be a death blow to his hopes, as the members of the party whose nominee he may refuse to support will desert him as rats desert a sinking ship; to fail in announcing his preference will cause a stampede of the intelligent and thinking voters from both parties, thus leaving him a helpless paralytic in the hands of the "forlorn hope," who will have the care of this dead weight until November. Mr. Mosgrove stands in a most unenviable position; but he cheerfully accepted the trust. Its duties, its sacrifices, its toil is before him; he is beginning to realize the responsibility he has assumed, and he must either go bravely forward or sink beneath his FAITHFULLY DONE. load. We, in common with others, place our straw upon the back of this beast of burden. Will he rise or sink beneath this added weight? We know not; time alone will tell, But, with a desire for knowledge, we ask Mr. Mosgrove to announce his preference between Hancock and Weaver, the Presidential candidates of the parties which have nominated him.
