When we are out of sympathy with the young, then we think our work in this world is over. That is a sign that the heart has begun to wither-and that is a dreadful kind of old age.

There is no man who has so little spare time as the one who is thoroughly idle. Idling is of itself a business which finds even all the waking hours of the day not quite sufficient for its needs.

Do little hopeful things and speak hopeful words whenever you can. They are better than pearls or diamonds to strew along the roadside of life, and will yield a far more valuable harvest.

Advice to Married People.

A worthy wife of forty years' standing, and whose life was not all made of sunshine and peace, gave the following impressive advice to a newly-married pair of her acquaintance. The advice is so good and well suited to all married people as well as those entering that state, that we here publish it for the benefit of such persons:

Preserve sacredly the privacies of your own house, your married state and your heart. Let no father, mother, 'sister or brother ever presume to come between you or share the joy or sorrow that be-long to you two alone. With mutual help build your quiet world, not allowing your dearest friend to be the confidant of aught that becomes your domes-tic peace. Let moments of alienation, if they occur, be healed at once. Never, no never, speak of it outside, but to each other confess, and all will come out right. Never let the morrow's sun still find you at variance. Renew and re-new your vow; it will do you good, and thereby your min's will grow together, contented in that love which is stronger than death, and you will become truly

Antique Tea-Drinking Habits.

Queer stories are told of the advent of tea in the fashionable market. The isnorance of its preparation was illimitable, and fine ladies, determined to tread closely on the heels of fashion, were compelled to take lessons in the art of brewing it. One lady, before consenting to become a candidate for culinary honors, boiled several pounds and served it as a vegetable. Another, equally stupid, set forth her table with it as dried fruit, and naturally failed to relish it. At the tea parties, in the seventeenth century, the leaves from which the tea had been drawn were round to be eaten, as a great delicacy, with bread and butter. To refuse was to affront the giver of this odd entertainment, and to stamp oneself an "outer barbarian" in the realms of gentility. Not so very long ago it was the general custom to carry to New England tea parties one's own cup or tea dish. The latter curious vessel-from eight to ten inches square and an inch deep-gave rise to the phrase "a dish of tea."

Thrilling Adventure With a Shark.

An American ship, named the Olym-pus, archored off the island of Bourbon. in the Indian ocean, and some of the sailors obtained permission to go ashore and onjoy a walk after the day's work. Night was coming on, and the quartermaster on duty, tempted to in-dulge in a bath by the tranquillity of the scene and the delicious coolness of the water, undressed and jumped overboard from the gangway. The quartermaster was a good swimmer, and was soon some distance from the ship, oblivious of danger. But the cook, a negro, who was si arg in the main-chains cooling himse after his hot day's duty, chanced to espy the fin of a shark which was swimming near the surface of the water on the other side of the ship to that on which his shipmate was disporting himself. His first impulse, after making sure what it was (for so large was the size he thought it must be a plank), was to call out and warn him of his danger, but it seemed he wisely determined not to do so lest the news might paralyze him with terror. So he quickly warned some of the sailors, and in little more than two minutes a small dingey suspended at the davits was lowered into the water, and the crew were pull Do not open or shut doors or windows a ling with might and main toward their comrade. Whether it was that only now the shark caught sight of the man in the water, or the noise of the boat attracted his attention in that direction, the huge fish turned and made toward the quartermaster, who, still unconscious of the fearful darger menacing him, continued to swim away with re-doubled energy, as the quick click of the rowlocks warned him of the approach of his shipmates. Reticence would now have been misplaced, as, unweighty topics for conversation when less he was rescued within a few seconds, all would be over with him. "Williams," shouted out the coxswain, "there are sharks near you; be quick-get into the boat, as you value

Apprehending at length the full horror of his position, the quartermaster turned to the little boat, where alone was safety, and being a powerful swimmer was soon almost alongside. But the shark was upon him. "Quick! quick!" shouted his shipmates, while the bowman, glancing over his shoulder, threw in his oar, and, quick as thought, jumped up, boat-hook in hand, to try and help the struggling seaman.

"Way enough," shouted the coxswain, as the boat, impelled by stout arms, shot almost over the quartermaster, who, after a final effort, extended his arms to seize the gunwale of the boat, while two of the crew leaned over the side in order to help him out. But the shark was not to be thus easily balked of its anticipated prey, and as it was near enough to make its venture, darted half out of the water, exposing its prodigious length, and turned over on its side, opening its cavernous jaws. At that moment, when all appeared lost, the bowman, exerting all his strength (and it so happened that he was the most powerful man in the ship), plunged the boat hook right into the mouth of the animal, which, writhing in agony, fell back into the water, and snapped the weapon in two. Turning upon the boat in its fury, it lashed it with its tail with such terrific force that it staved it forward. The sailors had just time to draw in their shipmate, when they be-came aware of the new danger menacing all of them. The boat began to fill, when deliverance came from another quarter. Their cries for help (which, owing to the calmness of the evening, were audible a great distance) attracted the attention of the crew of a schooner anchored near the land, who quickly unched their longboat, and made toward them.

The shark, lashing the water with fury and pain, appeared to be determined to exact revenge, and remained near the spot, awaiting its prey; but it was again balked, for just as the little dingey was settling fast by the head, the friendly longboat arrived upon the scene. The crew, with Williams, were taken out of the sinking craft, and were soon on their way back to the ship, re-oicing in their escape from a terrible

Time Tables and Cars.

A contributor to the International Review tells how the larger railroad corporations make their time tables, and keep account of their cars, as follows:

In one small room there is a board some ten feet square, having on one side the name of every station on the road, and at right angles with this list the time at intervals of five minutes through the day. By sticking pins with threads attached, the position of every train is established, the time table is made up; and with this and the aid of the tele-graph, the responsible head regulates the trains as on a chess-board. In any large station-vard one may see freight-cars marked with the name of almost every road in the country, and the traveler asks himself, how are they ever got home again, and why is not the roll ing stock found scattered in the time of need? This is the bu-iness of every car accountant. To this official every conductor makes a daily return of every car composing his train. The accountant has a table or tables, having on one side the numbers of every car, whether passenger or freight, belonging to the road, and at right angles with it the days of the month. By placing the numbers of the stations against those of the cars and the date, a perfect picture is obtained of the distribution of the rolling stock, which the traffic manager can after at pleasure. The names of toreign roads having connections are added to the number of stations, and indicate who is responsible for missing cars. If the connecting road has the same system, and has sent the car over still another road, it transmits the demand of the owner; and thus a car may be traced all round the United States.

France sent 309,268 soldiers to the Crimean war, of which 10,240 were killed in battle and 85,378 died from other causes. The British contingent numbered 97,864 men, of whom but 4,602 were killed or died from wounds while 17,580 expired in the hospitals of disease. Piedmont sent but 12,000 men to the Crimea and lost only twenty-eight men in battle, and 2,166 in hospitals. The Turks lost 35,000 men from all causes, and the Russians 630,000. The contest cost the allies $793,733,837, and Russia $800,000,000.

While making a call at a neighbor's, a young lady of Madison, Ohio, said to a cat that came into the room: pussy, I haven't seen your babies yet; are they pretty?" The cat immediately went out, and recarned with a kitten in her mouth which she laid at the feet o her questioner.

PERILS OF THE DEEP. The world-renowned swimmer, Capt. Paul Boyton, in an interview with a newspaper correspondent at the sea-shore, related the following incidents in his experience:

Reporter.—"Captain Boyton, you must bave seen a large part of the world?" Captain Boyton—"Yes, sir, by the aid of my Rubber Life-Saving Dress, I have traveled over 10,000 miles on the rivers of America and Europe; have also been presented to the crowned heads of England, France, Germany, Austria, Belgium, Italy, Holland, Spain and Portugal, and have in my possession forty-two medals and decorations; I have three times received the order of knighthood, and been elected honorary member of committees, clubs, orders and societies."

Reporter.—"Were your various trips accompanied with much danger?"

Captain Boyton.—"That depends upon what you may call dangerous. During my trip down the river Tagus in Spain, I had to "shoot" 102 waterfalls, the highest being about eighty-five feet, and innumerable rapids. Crossing the Straits of Messina, I had three ribs broken in a fight with sharks; and coming down the Somane, a river in France, I received a charge of shot from an excited and startled buntsman. Although all this was not very pleasant, and might be termed dangerous, I fear nothing more on my trip than intense cold; for, as long as my limbs are free and easy, and not cramped or benumbed, I sm all right. Of late I carry stock of St. Jacobs Oil in my little boat (the captain calls it "Baby Mine," and has stored therein signal rockets, thermome ter, compass, provisions, etc.), and I have had but little trouble. Before starting out I rub myself thoroughly with the article. and its action on the muscle is wonderful. From constant exposure I am somewhat subject to rheumatic pains, and nothing would ever benefit me until I got hold of this Great German Remedy. Why, on my travels I have met people who have been suffering with rheumatism for years; by my advice they tried the Oil, and it cured them. I would sooner do without food for days than be without this remedy for one hour. In fact I would not attempt a trip without it." The captain became very enthusi-astic on the subject of St. Jacobs Oil, and we left him citing instances of the curative qualities of the Great German Remedy to a party around him.

The ancient Egyptians showed great wisdom and tender care in their treatment of the insane. At each extremity of Egypt was built a temple to Saturn, where lunatics of various degrees were brought by their friends. These temples were adorned by the finest works of art, were surrounded by beautiful shady grounds, and patients were provided with every form of amusement and recreation that could occupy the mind and invigorate the body. Music, wine, employment, fixing the attention and exercising the memory, were the principal remedies used, and none but the most violent maniacs were put under any personal restraint.

Mr. Burnham, the astronomer. pronounces Mount Hamilton, in Santa Clara county, California, the best of all the sites now used telescopically. He found there forty-two clear nights out of sixty-something impossible even to Italian heavens.

The art of obtaining sugar from the cane was discovered by a Venetian in 1503, and for fifty years later a sugar louf weighing seven pounds was considered a beautiful present.

[Chicago Tribune.]

Mr. Ira Brown, the enterprising real estate man, states that he could and would say a good word for the St. Jacobs Oil, which had cured him of a severe attack of inflammatory rheumatism that all other treatments had failed even to allay.

The total number of lunatics in Great Britain is now 77,696—a number large enough to make a formidable army if it could be organized.

Vegetine.

More to Me than Cold.

WALPOLE, Mass., March 7, 1880.

I wish to inform you what Vegeties has done for me. I have been troubled with Erreipelas Humor for more than thirty years, in my limbs and other parts of my body, and have been a great sufferer. I commenced taking Vegeties one year ago last August and can truly say it has done more for me than any other medicin. I seem to be perfectly free from this humor and can recommend it to every one. Would not be without this medicine—'tis more to me than gold—and I feel it will prove a blessing to others as it has to me.

Yours, most respectfully,

Mus. DAVID CLARK. WALPOLE, Mass., March 7, 1880.

NEWMARKET, Ont., Feb. 9, 1880.

Mr., H. R. STEVENS, Boston, Mass.:

Sir—I have sold during the pest year a considerable quantity of your Vegetine, and I believe in all cases it has given satisfaction. In one case, a delicate young lady of about seventeen years was much benefited by its use. Her parents informed me that it had done her more good than all the medical treatment to which she had previously been subjected.

Yours respectfully.

Yours respectfully, J. BENTLEY, M. D.

Loudly in its Praise.

Toronto, Ont., March 3, 1880.

Dear Sir—Considering the short time that Vegetine has been before the public here, it sells well as a blood purifier, and for troubles arising from a sluggish or torpid liver it is a first-class medicine. Our cusiomers speak loudily in its praise.
