Some people have asked: "What good can result from finding the pole?" The late Professor Henry is on record as saying the magnetism of the earth requires more observations in this direction than have been made; that we cannot complete our knowledge of the tides of the ocean, or of the winds of the globe without finding the pole; besides that, the whole field of natural history will be eniched by it, especially botany, geology and minerology. The facts about the effect of extreme cold on animal and vegetable life cannot be but interesting. As Professor Henry said, it will lead not only to enlarge the sphere of mental pleasure of man, but will promote the application of science to the arts of life. Professor M. F. Maury puts it in this

"Within this polar area the tides have their cradle, and whales their nursery. There the winds complete circuit, and the currents of the sea their sound, in the wonderful system of oceanic circulation; there the aurora is lighted up and the trembling |needle brought to rest; and there, too, in the mazes of that mystic circle, terrestrial forces of occult power, and of vast influence upon the wellbeing of man, are continually at work It is a circle of mysteries, and the desire to enter it, to explore the untrodden wastes and secret chambers, and to study its physical aspects has grown to

There is an unknown area of 1,131,000 square miles of the surface of the globe that is now a blank. We cannot tell whether this area is land or water. This question, among others, these exdiorations will determine.

Elephants.

The Rev. Mr. Collins, a naturalist, twenty-five years resident in Ceylon, says that elephants there live about 130 years, and "come of age" at forty. There are three sizes of them in the same herds, and when they are young the size that they will attain is pretty nearly known by the number of their toes. Those which grow to the largest size have eighteen toes, five on each of two fore feet, and four on each of the hind ones. Those which grow to a medium size have seventeen toes, five on each of the fore feet, and four on one hind foot and three on the other. The least size of elephant has sixteen toes, five on each fore foot, and three on each hind foot. No Singhalese elephant has a fewer number than sixteen toes. The mahout, or elephant driver, rules his elephant by means of an iron hook, with behind the ear, which causes the most unruly elephant to become submissive. When Mr. Collins was in Kandy, an elephant which had killed his keeper, and which had been shot in the head before it could be captured, had to undergo the operation of naving the bullet extracted, which was performed by the native doctors, the elephant lying quietly down while the mahout kept his took on this sensitive part. The elephant drivers are a drunken set of men, and sometimes, while drunk, will treat their charge unmercifully, and the clephant itself is an animal which bears grudges-the result being that nearly all elephant keepers are soope or later killed.

Thanks.

The following public expression or gratitude was recently inserted by a Saxon farmer and his wife in the columns of a German newspaper: Thanks, most heartfelt thanks, to all those who, upon hearing of our misfortune on Monday, August 16, when a sudden flash of ning felled our two cows and caif to the earth, at once rushed to our assistance. Thanks more especially to the master butchers, Messrs. Thomas, Reichel and Fischer, who kindly slaughtered the dying animals on the spot, thus preserving us from the cruel loss of finding the ill-fated beasts untit for human consumption. Thanks, finally too, to all those who speedily came trom far and near, and bought up the meat with such avidity that by five in the afternoon there was not a scrap left. May heaven mercituily protect them and us all against any similar terror and calamity in future, and bless them a thousandfold for the truly extraordinary sympathy they have shown us C. ## A Wonderful Watch.

Mr. H. L. Borden, of Elgin, Ill., is the possessor of a most wonderful watch. It gives the hours, minutes and seconds, the day of the week, the day of the month, the name of the month, the lunsr month of twenty-nine days, and the phases of the moon at all times. It provides for the thirty and thirty-one day months, twenty-eight days in F bruary, and every fourth year twentydays in February for leap year, making all its own changes at twelve o'clock night. It is a chronograph for timing horses to the fifth of a second. And, lastly, it strikes the hours, quarters and minutes. This extraordinary timepiece was made in Switzerland, and Cost $1,500.

Now comes waltzing to the front the multitudinous annual simanac. And the very same year that was represented as coming in last spring as a light-footed, flaxen-haired little girl, is now seen to be crawling out of the picture as a baldheaded, tottering old man. How could this be, anyway?—American Queen.

Words of Wisdom.

of mankind will follow; or, if it does not, you will be able to do without it. Falsehood, like poison, will generally be rejected when administered alone; but when blended with wholesome ingredients, may be swallowed unper-

An Incident of the Rebellion.

A battery of the First artillery (Federai) halted one night during the Seven Days fight, in a little clearing. The men lay down, unhitching their horses, which he touches a most sensitive part | but leaving them in harness. The first sergeant, now an honored officer of the Third artillery, told me he got up and walked toward one side of the clearing. He was halted, and turned back by a sentinel. Going toward the other side, he was again challenged. "Who comes thar?"

The voice struck him. He replied, "Friend;" and said: "What regiment is that P" The answer came, "Seventh Alabama "What regiment is that on the other side?"

"Fifth Georgia," replied the sentinel.
"What battery is that?"
Here was a situation. The sergeant naturally didn't know the name of a battery in the Confederate army. Hesitation would have been tatal. By a tation would have been tatal. By a lucky inspiration he replied, "One of Stuart's batteries," knowing that Job

Stuart commanded their cavalry.
"Oh," said the other, "then you're a boss battery?" "Yes," said C-. "Good-night."

He immediately awoke the captain, who rather angrily said: "What the who rather angrily said: " duce is the matter now?" "Excuse me, captain," said the sergeant, "but we're camped between a Georgia and an Alabama regiment." It is needless to say the captain got up. Horses were hitched in quietly, and the battery withdrew from between the sleeping regiments, who never knew of the prize that was within their grasp. -Californian.

A Superstitious Composer. Speaking of the late Jacques Offenbach, the composer, the New York Sun says: Whoever has heard his operas may guess what the man himself was. Supersti ion and cowardice were prominent features of his character. He was a great gambler at the roulette, his favorite number being from superstition—the thirteen. One evening at Spathe number came seven times, and Office heads between the seven times. fenbach broke the bank. He had a terrible dread of the sea. Before he could be induced to cross the ocean on his way to America, he spent long, sleepless nights. As he himself writes in his book, he dared not go to sleep, "lest on awak-ing he should not be able to command a smile." He was in the position of the poor fellow in the fable whom the king had ordered to teach his ass to read under penalty of being hanged. The mighty dollar, however, prevailed over his anxieties, and he embarked on the Canada. One night the steamer suddenly stopped to cool her engines. He started out of his sieep. He is agined at once that the vessel had struck against a rock and was rapidly sinking. Offenbach in his night garment, but with his eyegiasses upon his huge nose, rushed on deck pleading for life. The efforts of the captain and of all the passengers were required to persuade him that there was no danger.

Hydrophobia from a Wolf Bite.

A case of hydrophobia resulting from the bite of a mad woif has been brought to the notice of a Pittsburg Chronicle representative who spent a few days in Washington county, Pa. In the spring of 1785—nearly one hundred years ago — Mr. Zachariah Rankin lived in Mt. Pleasant township. One morning he heard a noise in the hog pen, and on going to it discovered a mad wolf in the act of devouring small pigs. The infuriated animal sprang at him, and suns its teeth in his left side, high up. Instantly Rankin brought his powerful arms down upon the neck of the beast, and held it as if in a vice until his wife reached him with a large butcher knife. He then disembowled the wolf, and under the care of a physician the wound in the side of the injured man soon healed. One evening in the succeeding fall, Rankin was suddenly seized with hydrophobia, and his contortions and agonizing shricks paralyzed his father and brothers so that they would not go near his bedside. Two or three physicians attended him, but before morning he was a corpse, after a night of the most intense suffering.

Manufacture of Perfumery.

That branch of chemistry called perumery is a new industry on this coast but with the ample facilities here for its manufacture it will tecome in time of very great importance. The extensive flower farms in the neighborhood of Nice, Grasse, Montpelier and Cannes, in France; Adrianople, Broussa and Uslak, in Turkey, and Micham, in England, in a measure indicate its importance in the world. In the East varieties of herbs are grown that are used to a considerable criteria. siderable extent in pharmacy, but the planting of flowers by the acre for perfumery purposes is unknown in this country. The perfumery manufactured here is from the produce of flowers imported from Europe, and comes here in the shape of a fat or sort of tallow. There is only one firm in this city engaged in its manufacture at present, and this establishment produces an average of 100 gross of bottles per week, though the production varies with the demand. It is entirely for home consumption, though there was recently opened a small export trade with Mexico. natural state, as they are not to be had. Neith r could they very well be imported in their natural condition, on account of the expense attending, and, moreover, in their transportation a percentage of their fragrance would be lost. There is no reason why the cultivation of flowers, flower-farm ing proper, could not be made an important industry here. There is no one engaged in it at present, and it might very well be introduced. Wherever the raw material is to be obtained profitably, there manufactories spring up, and nowhere do flowers grow more luxuriantly than in this State. To convey an idea of the extent of the manufacture of perfumery it may be said that British India and Europe consume annually, at the very lowest estimate, 150,000 gallons of perfumed spirits. The large perfumers of Grasse and Paris employ annually in their manufactures 80,000 pounds of rose blossoms, 60,000 pounds cassia flowers, 50,000 pounds rose leaves, 30,000 pounds jasmine, 30,000 pounds violets, 20,000 pounds tube roses, 20,000 pounds lilacs, beside great quantities of rosemary, mince, lemon, citron, thyme and many odorous plants. The quantity of odoriferous substances used in this way is certainly very great, and beyoud the conception of most people. -San Francisco Bulletin.

Andre's Prophetic Peem. During ithe years 1779 and 1780 Andre was on duty in New York and took a leading part in the social life of that city. He accompanied Sir Henry Clin-ton at the capture of Stony Point, June 1, 1779, and wrote as aid-de-camp upon the glacis of Fort Lafayette the terms of capitulation conceded to the garrison. He kept a careful diary and frequently wrote squibs in prose and verse for the loyalist papers, and in August, 1780, composed at Elizabethtown a burlesque poem entitled "The Cow Chase," in cantos, amounting to seventy quatrains. The subject was the attack made by General Wayne upon a block house near Bull's Ferry, two or three miles below Fort Lee, in order to drive in some cattle from Bergen Neck. By a singular coincidence the last canto of this poem was printed in Rivington's Gazette, September 23, 1780, the day of the poet's capture at Tarrytown. The last stanza is as follows: And now I've closed my epic strain, I tremble as I show it, Lest this same warrior drover, Wayne,

Should ever catch the poet. It happened, singularly enough, that General Wayne was the comma the post at Tappan at the time of Andre's execution. The original of the "Cow Chase," in Andre's autograph, is still preserved, and underneath the abovequoted lines an American pen has added the commentary:

When the epic strain was sung. The poet by the neck was hung,

That "woman's wit is often superior to man's wisdom," was convincingly proved in a circumstance that occurred in this city recently. It appears that Mr. Ludwig Schwarzler, a widely-known Grocer on Station Road, suffered with a very painful rheumatic headache to such a degree, that he was obliged to seek the aid of a physician. All medicines he used were of no avail. This induced Mrs. Schwarzler to buy St. Jacobs Oil. She procured a bottle for her husband. With the second application he found relief. The pain left him, and he is as well as ever again. A remedy acting as promptly as this certainly deserves universal patronage.

Second man .- "Don't swear if she don't fit!"

Third man .- "Hit 'er with the ax!" Fourth man.—"I've been there, and I have no advice to give you."

Fifth man.—"Hello! what's that?

Ah! I see! Bet you ten to five you'll get

Sixth man .- "Ho! he! ho! Well, I never! I always stand on the step-ladder and hammer with a stick of wood!" Seventh man.—This man makes a motion for the man with the stovepipe to hait. He points to the stovepipe and

"Is it to put up a stove with?" "Yes."
