he Lorest Republican.

PUBLISHED EVERY WEDNESDAY, BY

FIGE IN ROBINSON & BONNER'S BUILDING ELM STREET, TIONESTA, PA.

TERMS, $1.50 A YEAR.

No Subscriptions received for a shorter glod than three months.

orrespondence solicited from all parts he country. No notice will be taken of

The Forest Republican.

VOL. XIII. NO. 33.

TIONESTA, PA., NOV. 3, 1880.

$1.50 Per Annum.

Early Breaufast for Fowls.

In keeping fowls remember that the morning meal with them is the most important one of the day. They are cold and hungry; and for that reason need some kind of warm, cooked food.

Fowls will eat almost anything if it is served up right. Boiled potatoes, turnips, carrots, anything in the vegetable line, mixed with cornmeal, oatmeal, or bran and shorts, seasoned with pepper and sait, and fed warm, will suit them. Feed a few handfuls of wheat screenings at noon, and at night give them a liberal feed of some kind of whole

Sowing Hye Among Corn,

One mode of getting green food for cattle and sheep in early spring is to sown now will give considerable feed settled. As we are likely to lose our clover, I fear, for a term of years, some-

Food for Calves,

They will be easily killed by a variation which an adult would bear with im-

little skimmilk may be substituted for new milk as a part of its mess, but it should be warm as the new milk. By degrees the skimmiik may be increased, if it is fed warm, till the new milk entirely drops out, and no scouring or other ill effects will follow. In the same way, whey sweet and warm may be substituted for skimmilk, or a little

well-cooked meal, or what is better, a little oil-meal may be gradually worked in as a substitute for milk and the

are warm food and show changes, he growing up on other food than new milk, by using milk to start with.

Sweet whey in moderate quantity is good in connection with grass. It would

Household Hints.

much better than the white. Apply to Old potatoes may be freshened up by

Never wash raisins that are to be used in sweet dishes. It will make the pudding heavy. To clean them wipe in a

them into the water one at a time.

In boiling dumplings of any kind put

they are put in together they will mix

Cutlets and steaks may be fried as enough when it throws off a blackish

There is a greenness in onions and digest. For health's sake put them in warm water for an hour before cooking.

The Lord's Prayer.

As indicating the changes which the English language has undergone during the last six centuries, some old English

forms of the Lord's prayer possess a

A. D. 1258.

thi neune, cumue thi kuneriche thi wille

beoth idon in heune and in. The euerych naw bried gif us thilk dawe. And worzif ure dettes as vi vorziten ure dettoures. And lene us nought into temp-

A. D. 1300.

thi name, thy kingdom come. Thy wille pe done as in hevene and in ert he

Nure urche dayes bred give us to-day

And forgive us oure dettes as we forgive

our dettoures. And lede us not into temptation. Bote delyvere us of yvel-

A. D. 1582.

sanctified be thy name.

from eyil. Amen."

heaven in earth also. Grue our super substantial bread.

as we forgiue our debtors.

dom come.

come.

Amen.

"Ovr father which art' in heauen,

us not into temptation. But deliuer us

A. D. 1611.

"Our father which art in heaven, hallowed be thy Name. Thy kingdom is in heaven. Gieue us this day our dayly bread. And forgive us our debts

us not into tempatation, but deliuer vs

from euil. For thine is the kingdome, and the power and the glory for ever.

Thy will be done in ear h as it

Let thy king-

Grue vs to-day

And lead

And lede

Thy will be done, as in

"Fadir our in Hevene, Halewyd by tation, but delyvor of uvel. Amen."

"Fader ure in heune, haleweide beoth

plunging them into cold water before the edges with a brush.

The yolk of an egg binds the crust

Tribune.

cooking them.

with each other.

curious interest:

dry towel.

smoke.

change will not be materially felt.

den.

Il you listened to their talk, as they faltered in their walk, In the moonlight on the terrace, he and

"Do You Remember ?"

You would marvel much to hear, This-" Do you remember, dear!"

Till I almost smiled outright for sympathy Remember this or that; remember how they

Or danced, or talked, or quarreled-who shall say?

It was still the self-same thing-Old beads threaded on the string 'Of the memories that came of yesterday.

Not the yesterday just done; but the one that they begun When they woke the dreamy shadows up again; They for at their allver hair;

They furget the chill night air; They larget the years that wrought their parting pain.

They are back again, I see, in their lovers. When the world was young and trusting-speed the tale! For the heart of love beats on When the fire of youth is gone, And the leaves of autumn rustle down th

-Rochester Democrat.

His Mother's Blessing.

There was the usual crowd at the de-pot. Some hurried hither and thither with sachels, bundles, shawls and all other paraphernalia of the wellquipped traveler, not excepting the much baskets, which filled the mind of be beholder with a vague appetite as is vivid imagination pictured tooth-me report of cold chicken, tongue, reserved aweetments, pies and the like, seted in their dark recesses. Noticeable among the passengers lich filled the ladies' waiting-room deverslowed on the platform were a tinguished pair—notable anywhere, it more particularly here in this heterorecous mass of human beings.

me strong emotion held them both th its deep and carnest spell, but in e the feeling while deeper, was at the me time under better control. There few spectacles more touching than appearance of deep feeling with eviof effort at strong and continued re two persons were mother and the former a widow, clad in the weeds which mutely and sadly d the story of her bereavement, and required but little penetration to perive that this was her only son and ber heart, sore perhaps from reant affliction, was altogether bound up him. She was tall, slender and intely, and on her white brow, touched iere and there by raven tresses, minried with silver, and in the soft, dark there slumbered, rather than shone, that expression of patient resignation, that serenity of heart which omes alone to those for whom affecion has been sacrificed; those who have learned in the midst of crushing sorrow the sublime meaning of those words: "To suffer and be strong." Her son was a tall, slight and graceful youth of about eighteen summers, with the same clear honest eyes, and cheeks bronzed by the sun, but a forehead white as alabaster, surmounted by a waving mass of nut-brown curls, which defied the touch of the hairdresser's oruning seissors, and showed here and there a rebellious lock, as irrepressible, alas! as the owner, the irresolute curves of whose scarlet lips betrayed him an easy dupe, to those who cared to lead him astray.

The preparations grew more hurried as the hour for starting approached. A middle-aged gentleman, portly and good-natured, made his appearance, and seeing ouritravelers, exclaimed, heartily: "How d'ye do, Mrs. Balfour; how are you, Fred? Are you going on this of restraining self-respect.

"I am going to try my fortune in Colorado, Mr. Lawson." "And your mother?" he said, turning to her. "She remains here for the present."

"I thought perhaps it would be better for him to leave home for awhile, especially as he has an uncle there who has often urged me to send him, and has already pictured a bright future for him said the lady, in clear, sweet there. tones, though it was with an effort she kept back the tears. "Quite right," responded Mr. Law-"it will make a man of him to depend on himself. I've no doubt it will presence on his guilt-stained brow. be quite lonely for you, madam, for a while at least. I do not take my own teelings into consideration. I assure you, sir, else I would never give my consent. It is only that I feel that there are better opportunities in the West for a young man who has to make his own fortune, and there are surely no openings for him here. We have tested that pretty thoroughly," she added, with a sigh.

The presence of a third party at this last interview between mother and son was felt to be a relief, for, when the heart-strings are about to be shattered, the untold agony is inexpressible and each utterance is telt to be a pang. The trio beguiled the time in conversation on unimportant and trivial topics until struction. the bell rang. Then the pale mother, clasping her treasure once more in her embrace, and secretly and without ostentation placing a plain gold ring on his finger, while with trembling lips she invoked a silent blessing on his young head, bade him good-bye and saw the swiftly-moving train bear him out of

A year had passed, and with it had brought many changes. Surrounded by dis ant city, are so apt to lead young from his finger, the inscription which feet astray, Frederick soon became an he had once read with such deep emoeasy prey to more than one vice. His tion, met his fevered gaze-"God bless Terrible Fight With a Monster Lizard. FARM, GARDEN AND HOUSEHOLD. uncle was immersed in business cares, and, having no children of his own, was not calculated to scrutinize the actions of his nephew. Besides, most of his derelictions from the path of rectitude monitor. pointing him toward the took place out of business hours, when took place out of business hours, when the old man was "sleeping the sleep of the just," leaving his ward to do the same if he chose. As Fred was for the most part attentive to his mercantile duties, and his uncle over-indulgent hoarsely, as with pale and averted face and trembling hands he replaced the (for the former was really a lovable and prepossessing youth), he took it for granted that all was as well as could be expected, and if not, why, "boys will be boys," he asserted to himself with a chuckle of amused satisfaction. When some of his male friends told him that chuckle of amused satisfaction. When some of his male friends told him that his nephew was "cutting rather a wide swath," his good-humored countenance would cloud up for a while, and then he

But there was one sentinel that kept watch and ward over the fatherless boy. Night and night, while the pale stars ooked down with their solemn, serious eyes, the anxious mother knelt by her couch, and the name of the distant, haste she threaded her way into the wayward, but beloved one, was borne aloft on the pinions of those pure and holy orisons which enter into the court of heaven and plead with strange and uncarthly sweetness there.

Time passed and the letters which had at first been regular, affectionate and satisfactory, were few and brief, and there was a notable lack of information about his duties, pursuits and pleasures. in great contrast to the confidential communications of the past. A deep anxiety took possession of her, when after a long delay she wrote a letter of inquiry to his uncle, to which she received a reply rather evasive, yet cheerful enough for any but the argus-eye of maternal affection. Deeming herself full of terror, despair and agony in that perhaps too solicitous and prone to look dreadful moment, saw and recognized on the dark side of events on account of past vicissitudes, she waited with what patience and resignation she could command for further particulars concerning the success of his business ventures. It boy!" fell on the ears of the astonished multitude. bad been her intention when he left her to join him as soon as circumstances would permit, and now she hastened her those rugge preparations with greater rapidity as weeks passed and she heard nothing save a few brief lines informing her that he was well. As the time of departure drew near a strange presentiment of evil seemed to settle down upon ther spirits. and a deep gloom as of approaching danger filled ber aching heart

It was night in Denver. In one of those gilded haunts of vice so numer and popular in that Western city, the sound of drunken revels could be heard. The waning moon shed a soft, mild luster on the almost deserted street, for the night was far advanced, and the fresher breeze of approaching morning began to make itself felt in the atmosphere without; but within, the fetid fumes of liquor, tobacco and artificial light, together with the stifling warmth, offered a nauseous contract and proved a sickening pabulum for lungs expanded and braced by draughts of the purer evening air of heaven. And if the contrast was distinct in this respect, how much greater, alas! was it, considered in a mental and moral aspect? Within, the dice rattled, the glasses clinked, and rough and burly forms associated, with besotted and degraded faces, lurked around the tables and handled the treacherous ivory, and still more treacherous fluids with which the wearied bartender served the frequenters of the vile and desperate place. From many a belt gleamed the murderous light of a hidden stiletto, and the ready pistol was a necessary adjunct to the "apparel" a necessary adjunct to the which here, as elsewhere, "proclaimed the man." Many nationalities were represented them-Mexicans, with dark, among faces and sombrero hats; Chinese, smooth and oily, with outward stupidity, concealing deep cunning and artifice, and American youths, coarse and debased by habit, association and lack

Amid this mass of human debris, near one of the card-tables, his face flushed with intoxication, his hand trembling with nervous eagerness, and his form carelessly attired, sat Frederick Balfour. How like a fair flower amid weeds he looked, in spite of his haggard face, his reckless air, and his bloodshot eye. The graceful air so natural still lingered in his lithe movements and on the brow and mouth, once so fondly imprinted with a mother's parting kiss, dwelt a shadowy expression of sadness, as if his guardian angel, bidding farewell, had tanned him with her departing pinions and left the fleeting perfume of her holy

The play was at its height when a quarrel arose among the men; the intense eager looks of the players were exchanged for those of malice, hatred, murder! In the dark, wicked faces murder! gleamed a deadly light, as Frederick, with youthful pertinacity and abandon, heeded them not, and by continuous contradictions added fuel to the dangerous flame. He had no more money to stake, and foiled in their expectations, they made threats, both loud and deep, and boldly accused him of fraud and even theft. At this juncture, the eye of one of his adversaries fell upon the ring which still adorned his hand and glittered like a talismanic guard against evil and de-struction. Its intrinsic value was little calculated to awaken the cupidity of any observer, but to a grasping mind the sight of gold, however insignificant, is in itself a temptation "Stake the ring," the Mexican roughly exclaimed. "Yes, the ring," stupidly echoed his companions, who were more inebriated than himself and were ready to greet any brutal iest with oaths and ap-

Freducick looked at his mother's partthe temptations which, in a strange and | ing gift and as he impulsively drew it

With what a thrill of anguish he read the words, and the unconscious little shining circlet seemed a sad and silent hoarsely, as with pale and averted face and trembling hands he replaced the swath," his good-humored countenance would cloud up for a while, and then he would say: "Oh, he will turn out all right. Sowing his wild oats, you know. Blood will tell," and mention other proverbs which can often be made to point many inferior jests and strengthen point many inferior jests and strengthen was a weak argument.

room from which the noise of strife prosurprise. Such a face and presence were never seen in the purlieus of that region before save to pass by in a public convey-ance, perhaps, and then as rapidly as possible, as if to avoid contamination with the coarser elements of the degraded resort.

Tall, stately, with streaming eyes and quivering lips, her black robes sweep-ing behind her as she walked, she entered and saw her son just as he reeled from the blow inflicted by the cruel knife of his vindictive foe. His glance, dreadful moment, saw and recognized her, and his bleeding form fell into her

A bush of respectful sympathy moved those rugged hearts as quickly and carefully they assisted in removing the suf-ferer from the dreadful scene. Speedily summoning aid, the mother drove to the hotel with her cherished burden, once strong and athletic, now weaker and more frail than herself.

A physician was called in, and to her great relief the wounds, though danger-ous, were not pronounced fatal. A faint hope still lingered, and with care and watchfulness he might survive. And seed it be added that there wo lack of affectionate care, when a devoted mother keeps sleepless vigil beside the couch of her suffering, yet youthful and only son.

Reader, would you follow the fortunes of Frederick Balfour, go with me to a great city in 'the West, where the lapping waves of a peaceful ocean caress the beautiful concave of the Golden Gate: where, amid the hum of business, the dreams of the most visionary are often a bright reality; where the tunes, like the far-famed palace of Aladdin, rise in a night and gladden the surrounding plains with their splendor at the rising of the morning sun.

It is the holy Sabbath day, and as the voice of deep-toned bells, calling to cathedral and chapel, linger faintly the air, the throngs of expectant and devout people hasten to the temple of worship. In one of these, the young minister takes his place behind the puipit, and for a few moments bows his head in prayer. In this vast assemblage there is one whose heart throbs with far deeper and grander joy than it ever pulsated before. There she sits. Her pale face has borrowed from excitement a faint tinge of youthful bloom; the clear dark eyes are true and earnest as of yore; and the slightly curling threads of hair which touch her placid forehead so carelessly are now quite silvered, yet seeming to wear heaven's holiest benison nestling among their waves of snow.

The choir began their solemn anthem, God is the refuge of his people," and as the deep, sonorous chords melt and mingle in the lofty temple, and then float away to heaven, a solemnity broods over the hearts and minds or the eager and expectant congregation. The anthem finished, the minister rises. It is the same Frederick, changed more, perhaps, from within than without, for the frank, earnest eyes are still there, the scarlet lips, surmounted now by a brown mustache, the waving locks are brushed smoothly back except where here and there a wayward curl will steal from its restraint, and hint that boyhood was scarcely passed, though stern yet noble manhood, on the brow and in the heart, now reign supreme.

His voice, deep and musical, enchains and enrapts the hearers, as, filled with reverence, fervor and holy enthusiasm, he leads them in prayer, and points with unerring distinctness to the snares and pitfalls of the path once trodden by his own youthful feet, and with glowing zeal invites them to a fairer road, where plossom the flowers of purity and holiness, conducting the tired wayfarer to the recreshing haunts of wisdom, "whose ways are ways of pleasantness and all her paths are peace."-Louisville Courier-Journal

There's a girl in Kansas only nineteen cars old who can knock a squirrel out | cheerful. the tallest tree with her rifle, ride a kicking mustang, help "round up" a herd of cattle and ride down a jack rabbit, and yet, the local paper states in a tone of surprise and no little anxiety she is not married."

It is hard to decide which season of the year is the least expensive. plumber always commences when the ice man leaves off.

The great country lying south of Mexico is rich in trepical verdure and animals. Winter is never known except in the cold winds called northers, that, during the so-called winter, come rushing down from the north, as it to tell the natives that it is not continual summer everywhere.

The land flows with milk and honey, indeed; rich palms and other tropical trees grow in rich confusion; bunches of bananas and cocoanuts await the hand to pick them; a thick underbrush of tangled vines, wound around each other in the growth of ages, forms a jungle that few care to penetrate. For miles the land is covered with this carpet of vegetation, and the swamps and rivers are inhabited only by strange reptiles, birds and insects who prey upon one another in their struggle for existence. The birds are the most beautiful in is thus grown is as nutritious as ordinary pasture or roots, and costs nothing except for seed and cultivating unthe world, and many of the insects have curious lights upon their backs that der. Really the feed costs nothing, for in sowing the rye many weeds are de-stroyed, a new surface is turned up, shine like gas-burners in the night. History tells us that when the Spaniards first saw them, they became alarmed, and thought they were the lights of a moving army. P isonous snakes lurk under the broad leaves, and hugh lizards and the weed seeds which sprout perish in the winter. This alone is ample pay under the broad leaves, and hugh lizards for labor and seed. There is a further creep upon the overhanging boughs of trees.

One of these lizard—the iguana—is 'a naked, as it otherwise would be. Rye

One of these lizard—the iguana—is 'a hideous-looking object. The largest attain a length of ten or twelve feet; the skin is very tight, and covered with knobs or scales; under the mouth hangs large pouch, over which the green, diamond-like eyes appear, shaded by a ridge of bone. Along the back, from the tip of the nose to the tail, is a con-tinuous line of spurs or sharp spines; these, with a powerful mouth, five sharp teeth, long, cat-like claws and enormous, strength to use them, constitutes the make-up of this giant among lizards. Disgusting as they are, the natives use them for food.

Near the head of the river Chagres is a favorite place for them; very few white people ever venture there, and the first who did was witness to a terminal of the control of the cont rible fight between a native and a

The man had been engaged as a guide, and, after a successful day's hunt, they were returning to their camp near the river, when the black man stopped suddenly and pointed to a fallen tree. His companion looked, and soon saw an guana's head peeping over the edge of a og that led into the river. His body was concealed, and he was evidently taking a siesta over the cool water.

The guide laid down his gun, and, taking a club, crept cautiously to him. and, aiming a blow, brought the club down on the lizard (?) No, indeed; the creature was too quick for him; but in its fright it missed its footing and fell nto the water. Without thinking, Quito-for such was the Indian's name-sprang after it, and the two together sank out of sight. and for a moment the splashing and spray hid them from view. A moment more and Quito's head came to the sur-

ing the water in a fierce way, and now they were out of sight again. It was evident Quito had no idea the lizard was so large, for when they came up again he was engaged in a fierce struggle, the water being dyed with blood, from which of them the white man, who was waiting for a chance to At last, creeping shoot, could not tell. out on the log, and looking down into the water, he beheld a fearful sight The lizard, a perfect monster of about twelve feet in length, had fastened its claws into poor Quito, and was writh-face and the tail of the iguana, thrashing and tearing him in a terrible man-The plucky negro had caught him by the tail and throat, and was trying to hold him off. It seemed only a matter of time who should drown first, when Quito struck bottom, and, giving himself a push, he rose to the surface again, still holding the lizard at arms-length.

As it came to the surface it buried its five knife-like claws in the man's face, slitting it in a terrible manner; but even then he held on with the tenacity of a bulidog. The observer on the crept out now as far as he could upon the log and called to Quito to catch the stick he held out, and he would pull him in. After several trials he managed to reach it, and still holding the struggling monster, was hauled, bleeding and cut, ashore, where, with a terrible blow from the gun the reptile was killed. Quito was so weak from his exertions and loss of blood that he could not The creature had bitten him several times, and scarcely a spot on his body but had received a cut like that of a knife, telling the power of the terrible claws. The monster was dragged to the camp, its skin taken off, and after Quito's recovery, and they had gone down to the coast, it was stuffed, and now adorns the collection of a well-known scientific institution.

Words of Encouragement. Never be cast down by trifles. If a spider breaks his web twenty times, twenty times will he mend it. Make up your mind to do a thing and you will do Fear not if troubles come upon you. Keep up your spirits, though the day may be a dark one.

Troubles never last forever, The darkest day will pass away.

If the sun is going down look up to the stars; if the earth is dark keep your eye on heaven. With God's presence and God's promise, a man or child may be Never despair when a tog's in the air,

A sunshiny morning will come without warn ing. Mind what you run after. Never be content with a bubble that will burst, darkness; but that which you can keep, and which is worth keeping. Something sterling that will stay, When gold and silver fly away.

- Liverpool Mail.

or a firewood that will end in smoke and

As a Ward, of Moore's Branch, Kan. The fair is always well attended, es- is outting his teeth. This is the third pecially if it be of the feminine gender | crop. Asa is 102.

One Square (1 inch.) one insertion - $1
One Square "one month - 3
One Square "three months - 6
One Square "one year - 10
Two Squares, one year - 15
Quarter Col. "- 30
Half "- 500 one month - - 3 06 three months - 6 00 one year - - 10 06

Rates of Advertising.

Legal notices at established rates. Marriage and death notices, gratis.
All bills for yearly advertisements collected quarterly. Temporary advertisements must be paid for in advance.
Job work. Cash on Pelivery.

DIVORCES.

The Laws Concerning Them in Different Countries.

AUSTRALIANS .- Divorces have never been sanctioned in Australia. JEWS .- In olden times the Jews had a discretionary power of divorcing their

JAVANS.—If the wife be dissatisfied she can obtain a divorce by paying a certain sum. THIBETANS.-Divorces are seldom alwed, unless with the consent of both parties, neither of whom can afterward Moors.—If the wife does not become the mother of a boy she may be divorced with the consent of the tribe, and she can marry again. ABYSSINIANS.-No form of marriage is necessary. The connection may be dis-solved and renewed as often as the sow rye in corn stubble early enough to get a good fall growth. What feed parties think proper.

SIBERIANS.—If the man be discotisfied with the most trifling acts of his wire, he tears her cap or vail from her head, and this constitutes a divorce. COREAN.-The husband can divorce his wife or treasure, and leave her the charge of maintaining the children. If she proves unfaithful, he can put her to SIAMESE.-The first wife may be di vorced, not sold, as the others may be She then may claim the first, third and fifth child, and the alternate children are for sheep and cattle this fall, and more yet in the spring before plowing. This spring feed is especially valuable for ewes with lambs after the ground has yielded to the husband.

ARCTIC REGION.—When a man desires a divorce he leaves the house in anger, and does not return for several days. The wife understands the hint, packs her clothes and leaves.

DRUSE AND TURKOMAN. — Among these people, if a wife asks her husband's permission to go out, and he says "Go," without adding "but come back thing must be found to partially take its place. Drilled corn and millet may be substituted as winter feed, but they are not available for late fall or early spring.—Correspondence of Country Genagain," she is divorced. Though both parties desire it, they cannot live together again without being remarried.
COCHIN CHINA.—If the parties choose to separate they break a pair of chop-The cause of calves scouring is a change in their food too wide and sud-Animals but a few days old sticks or a copper coin in the presence of witnesses, by which action the union is dissolved. The husband must restore can bear but a little change in their food.

to the wife the property belonging to her punity. Calves, like infants, are too often made sick by a change of one cow's milk for that of another. The prior to her marriage. AMERICAN INDIANS .- Among some tribes the pieces of sticks given the witcow's milk for that of another. The food of calves may be modified almost indefinitely, but it must be varied gradually. When they get more age they will bear change better. When taken from the cow, feed first the mother's milk warm. The difference between sucking and feeding is change enough to begin with. In a few days a little skimmilk may be substituted for nesses of the marriage are broken as a sign of divorce. Usually new connections are formed without the old ones being dissolved. A man never divorces his wife if she has borne him sons.

TARTARS.—The husband may put away his partner and seek another when it pleases him, and the wife may do the same. It she be ill-treated, she complains to the magistrate, who, attended by the principal people, accompanies her to the house and pronounces a formal divorce.

CHINESE.—Divorces are allowed in ali cases of criminality, mutual dislike, jealousy, incompatibility of temper, or too much loquacity on the part of the wife. The husband cannot sell his wife until she leaves him, and becomes a slave to him by action of the law for desertion. A son is bound to divorce his wife if she displeases his parents. P. W. C. will bear in mind that the essential points in feeding young calves

CIRCASSIANS .- Two kinds of divorce are granted in Circassia—one total, the other provisional. When the first is will not only stop the mortality in his herd but he can have thrifty animals allowed the parties can immediately marry again; where the second exists the couple agree to separate for a year, and if, at the expiration of that time, the husband does not send for his wife, be found an improvement that would her relations may command of him a more than pay cost and trouble to distotal divorce. solve a little oil-meal in it.—New York

GRECIANS .- A settlement was usually given to a wife at marriage for support in case of a divorce. The wife's portion was then restored to her, and the husband required to pay monthly interest for its use during the time he detained it from her. Usually the men could put their wives away on slight occasions. Even the fear of having too large a family sufficed. Divorces scarcely ever occur in modern Greece.

HINDOOS.—Either party for a slight ause may leave the other and marry. When both desire it there is not the least trouble. If a man calls his wife mother," it is considered indelicate to ive with her again. Among one tribe, the "Gores," if the wife be unfaithful, well as broiled, but they must be put in hot butter or lard. The grease is hot tie husband cannot obtain a divorce unless he gives her all the property and children. A woman, on the contrary, may leave when she pleases, and marry another man, and convey to him the entire property of her former husband. potatoes that renders them hard to ROMANS. - In olden times a man might divorce his wife if she were unfaithful, if she counterfeited his private keys, or drank without his knowledge. They would divorce their wives when they pleased. Notwithstanding this, 521 years elapsed without one divorce. Afterward a law was passed allowing either sex to make the application. Divorces then became frequent on the slightest pretexts. Seneca says that some women no longer reckoned the year by the consols, but by the number of their husbands. St. Jerome speaks of a man who had buried twenty wives, and a woman who had buried twenty-two husbands. The Emperor Augustus endeavored to restrain the license by penalties .- Bench and Bar.

Indian Images.

Some of the Indians at Zuni, New Mexico, having been converted to Christianity, have no turther use for the images before which they tormerly bowed down. Two images have been taken from an old stone church near Zuni and sent to the Smithsonian institution. One represents a man and one a woman. Each is cut from a solid block of wood, with the exception of the shield, the arms and the wings, which are attached. The man image has lost his arms and wings, but wears his shield intact. Both images are so hideously ugly as to excite wonder that even New Mexican Indians could see their way clear to fall down and worship them. Both of them bear inscriptions which have not yet been translated from the queer language in which they are written.

The fisherman's wages may be called et proceeds .- Bome Sentinel.