Dead From Homesickness.

The St. Louis papers tell this pathetic story of how a Swiss emigrant girl living in that city died from homesickness. Pauline Fuchs lived with the family of a distant relative, all crowded together in two little rooms over a shop...

She alarmed her father by threatening to run away and come to America, where Mary Fuchs, her cousin and friend, had come a few months before. The threat was constantly repeated...

At last they took steamer passage on the steamer Canada, arriving in Castle Garden three weeks ago; remaining there a few days they came to St. Louis, where Mary Fuchs and her brother had been living since April. Mary is flaxen-haired and rose-cheeked. She was overjoyed to meet her friend Pauline, who seemed especially pleased to see her...

This was all that she ever said on the subject until Friday, when she grew so sick that they begged her to go to bed. She would not, persisting still that there was nothing the matter. In the evening she said to Maria Fuchs, her cousin: "I want to go back to Einsiedeln; I must go back, for I cannot live here."
