

BOROUGH OFFICERS.

Burgess—N. S. FREEMAN.
Councilmen—Chas. Bonner, M. Kin-stein, J. E. Wynn, Patrick Joyce, D. W.
Clark, Justice Shavkey.

FOREST COUNTY OFFICERS.

Member of Congress—HARRY WHITE.
Assembly—E. L. DAVIS.
President Judge—W. B. BROWN.
Associate Judges—JOHN REBE, C. A.
HILL.

BUSINESS DIRECTORY.

TIONESTA LODGE
No. 369,
I. O. of O. F.
MEETS every Saturday evening, at 7 o'clock, in the Lodge Room in Partridge's Hall.

J. H. FOMES, N. G.
G. W. SAWYER, Sec'y.

E. L. DAVIS,
ATTORNEY AT LAW, Tionesta, Pa.

MILES W. TATE,
ATTORNEY AT LAW,

J. B. AGNEW,
ATTORNEY AT LAW,

ATTENTION SOLDIERS!

have been admitted to practice as an attorney in the Pension Office at Washington, D. C. All officers, soldiers, or others who were injured in the late war,

Lawrence House,
TIONESTA, PENN'A. WM. LAW-RENCE, PROPRIETOR.

CENTRAL HOUSE,
DONNER & AGNEW BLOCK, T. C.
JACKSON, PROPRIETOR.

W. C. COBURN, M. D.,
PHYSICIAN & SURGEON.

J. E. BLAINE, M. D.,
TIONESTA, PA.

DR. E. L. STEADMAN,
SURGEON DENTIST.

MAY, PARK & CO.,
BANKERS

PHOTOGRAPH GALLERY.

TIONESTA, PA.,
M. CARPENTER, Proprietor.

CHARLES RAISIG,
PRACTICAL
CARRIAGE AND WAGON MAKER.

TIONESTA, PA.

TIONESTA, PA.

TIONESTA, PA.

TIONESTA, PA.

TIONESTA, PA.

TIONESTA, PA.

TIONESTA, PA.

TIONESTA, PA.

TIONESTA, PA.

TIONESTA, PA.

TIONESTA, PA.

TIONESTA, PA.

TIONESTA, PA.

TIONESTA, PA.

TIONESTA, PA.

TIONESTA, PA.

TIONESTA, PA.

TIONESTA, PA.

TIONESTA, PA.

INSURANCE
LIFE, FIRE & ACCIDENT.

D. W. CLARK, Jr., Ag't.
FIRE INSURANCE:
Atlas, Liverpool & London & Globe, Lycoming, North British & Mercantile, Hannover, Franklin of Philadelphia,
Continental, Northern, Boston, Springfield, of Mass.

LOCAL AND MISCELLANEOUS.

Condensed Time Table Tionesta Station.
NORTH SOUTH
Train 15..... 7:22 am Train 18..... 10:55 am Train 16..... 11:22 am Train 19..... 1:34 pm Train 17..... 3:04 pm Train 20..... 7:49 pm Train 18..... 5:04 pm Train 9 North, and Train 16 South carry the mail.

—M. E. Sabbath School at 10 a. m., F. M. Sabbath School at 11 a. m., Presbyterian Sabbath School at 3 p. m.

—Winter's backbone seems to be pretty sound yet.

—The Odd Fellows of this place have placed a handsome new organ in their Lodge.

—Postmaster McKay has had some needed improvements made in his end of the office.

—Misses Fanny and Jane Siggins, of West Hickory, visited in town during the week.

—Venor and the groundhog are having "nip and tuck," these days, and the latter holds his own remarkably well.

—A little bit of snow, then a little bit of rain; then a little more snow and little more rain, is about the size of the weather now-a-days.

—Dr. Blaine reports Calvin Arer still on the mend, and thinks he may be considered fairly out of danger, which we are pleased to learn.

—Yesterday was the birth-day of the man who was too noble to tell a falsehood. The day passed without any particular observance in this place.

—We learn with much pleasure that Rev. McFetridge, who was reported fatally injured in a railroad disaster near Allentown last week, will recover.

—Warden Edward S. Wright will please accept our thanks for the annual report of the Inspectors of the Western Penitentiary, for the year 1880.

—Jim. Halings Jr., has gone back to Bradford. Harvey Foreman leaves to-day to resume business in his tank shop at Bordell. He will leave his family here.

—We learn with regret from the Clarion Democrat that Judge Cook, of this county, is lying seriously ill in Pittsburgh, at the residence of his son-in-law, S. W. Calvin, Esq.

—Esquire Brennan has been appointed Commissioner in an equity case, and is now in Franklin taking testimony in the same. We believe S. D. Irwin Esq., accompanied him.

—Judge Jenks, of Clarion county, has decided that parents surrender all authority over their children while the children are in school, and that the teacher has the sole right to say what they shall or shall not study.

—Free Methodist Quarterly meeting will commence at East Hickory, on Thursday evening, March 10th, and last over Sunday. Rev. Barnhart, the former pastor of this charge will preach the opening sermon.

—The Clarion Jacksonian comes to us this week in a bran new dress, and wonderfully improved generally. Editor Carlisle will make the paper team with fresh, spicy news, and he has our best wishes.

—Next week is the time set for the February term of Court. The indications are that nearly all week will be taken up. There are but few causes on the list, but it is expected that all will be tried. We are always glad to see our friends who are here attending court, and hope as many as can will make it a point to call on us.

—We erred in stating last week that no damage was done by the ice breaking up. Mr. Hunter informs us that the bridge sustained damages which it will cost nearly if not quite a thousand dollars to repair. He thinks all the piers will need new ice breakers, and a great deal of riprapping. T. D. Collins also lost two rafts of boat gunnels and a raft of boards, which will amount to several hundred dollars.

—At Tidoute, yesterday, a boy named Jackson, aged 13 years, fell under a moving freight train and had one leg taken off and the other badly broken below the knee. We learn that he has since died.

—Baldwin's Official Railway Guide for February is at hand. The monthly visits of this valuable and highly interesting publication are as welcome as the flowers in May. Valuable additions are made each month, and the Guide is never at a stand still.

—Mr. J. J. Green, Tylersburg's enterprising merchant, will hereafter keep, in addition to his varied stock of goods, a full line of coffins, trimmings, and all kinds of undertaking materials, and invites the citizens of his vicinity to call on him for anything in that line. A complete supply will always be kept in store.

—A Dempseytown correspondent of the Franklin Press has the following about one of Forest's wide-awake citizens: "Our genial friend 'Squire Mc-Clintock, accompanied by his estimable wife, departed for Forest county again last week, after a short stay at home." He reports everything lovely at the "Fort," those luxuriant "nut-toughs" make him look like a "blasted Britisher."

—William Graham, a young man who has been working on Polen's mill on Bobb's Creek, met with a severe accident on Monday morning last. He was running on the morning tour, and it was shortly after the mill had started up at 1 o'clock, when the accident took place. He was standing on the carriage, near the saw, and while another man was fixing a lamp hanging overhead, it fell; in dodging to one side to keep the oil from running over him his right hand struck the saw, which was under full motion, cutting the second, third and little fingers so that nothing was left but the skin to hold them. He was brought to this place immediately and Dr. Coburn dressed the wound; only the index finger and thumb were saved, and the man is resting as easy as possible under the circumstances. His home is in Venango County.

—The suggestion in our last issue
that Kepler be hired to shovel snow
off the sidewalks seems to have touched
the very (?) fine sensibilities of the Knight of the Coffee-pot and so warm
doth he wax that the "pot" boileth
over. He proceeds to twit the editor
of this paper upon his poverty, which
comes with bad grace from a millionaire (?) of such vast possessions. True, we don't own any real estate, neither
do we carry upward of two hundred pounds of it around in a pair of No.
11 boots. It is very inconvenient at times to be poor, but it is by no means dishonest. We have not made a very great start in the world as yet, and we
never want to if we are obliged to run
a "dive" to accomplish it. Had we
been so fortunate as to have a heavily
insured house born down some time
or other, we might have been a little farther along in the world. We do occasionally play the violin for our own amusement, but Kepler has a weakness for that himself, and we've been thinking if we could only secure
a stereotyped diagram of him while he
is playing some of his favorite "horn-pipes," we could soon pile up a fortune printing comic valetines. We
own a setter dog, and a good one, but
as we are too poor to keep him fat his appearance makes him resemble too
closely that of the dried herring Kepler has hired as assistant editor. This is the only fault the canine has, and the poor dog seems to know it for he
blushes every time he meets the "herring" in company. But we must insist
on the council hiring Kepler to shovel
the snow off the sidewalks.

—The suggestion in our last issue
that Kepler be hired to shovel snow
off the sidewalks seems to have touched
the very (?) fine sensibilities of the
Knight of the Coffee-pot and so warm
doth he wax that the "pot" boileth
over. He proceeds to twit the editor
of this paper upon his poverty, which
comes with bad grace from a million-
aire (?) of such vast possessions. True,
we don't own any real estate, neither
do we carry upward of two hundred
pounds of it around in a pair of No.
11 boots. It is very inconvenient at
times to be poor, but it is by no means
dishonest. We have not made a very
great start in the world as yet, and we
never want to if we are obliged to run
a "dive" to accomplish it. Had we
been so fortunate as to have a heavily
insured house born down some time
or other, we might have been a little
farther along in the world. We do
occasionally play the violin for our
own amusement, but Kepler has a
weakness for that himself, and we've
been thinking if we could only secure
a stereotyped diagram of him while he
is playing some of his favorite "horn-
pipes," we could soon pile up a for-
tune printing comic valetines. We
own a setter dog, and a good one, but
as we are too poor to keep him fat his
appearance makes him resemble too
closely that of the dried herring Kepler
has hired as assistant editor. This
is the only fault the canine has, and
the poor dog seems to know it for he
blushes every time he meets the "her-
ring" in company. But we must insist
on the council hiring Kepler to shovel
the snow off the sidewalks.

—The suggestion in our last issue
that Kepler be hired to shovel snow
off the sidewalks seems to have touched
the very (?) fine sensibilities of the
Knight of the Coffee-pot and so warm
doth he wax that the "pot" boileth
over. He proceeds to twit the editor
of this paper upon his poverty, which
comes with bad grace from a million-
aire (?) of such vast possessions. True,
we don't own any real estate, neither
do we carry upward of two hundred
pounds of it around in a pair of No.
11 boots. It is very inconvenient at
times to be poor, but it is by no means
dishonest. We have not made a very
great start in the world as yet, and we
never want to if we are obliged to run
a "dive" to accomplish it. Had we
been so fortunate as to have a heavily
insured house born down some time
or other, we might have been a little
farther along in the world. We do
occasionally play the violin for our
own amusement, but Kepler has a
weakness for that himself, and we've
been thinking if we could only secure
a stereotyped diagram of him while he
is playing some of his favorite "horn-
pipes," we could soon pile up a for-
tune printing comic valetines. We
own a setter dog, and a good one, but
as we are too poor to keep him fat his
appearance makes him resemble too
closely that of the dried herring Kepler
has hired as assistant editor. This
is the only fault the canine has, and
the poor dog seems to know it for he
blushes every time he meets the "her-
ring" in company. But we must insist
on the council hiring Kepler to shovel
the snow off the sidewalks.

—The suggestion in our last issue
that Kepler be hired to shovel snow
off the sidewalks seems to have touched
the very (?) fine sensibilities of the
Knight of the Coffee-pot and so warm
doth he wax that the "pot" boileth
over. He proceeds to twit the editor
of this paper upon his poverty, which
comes with bad grace from a million-
aire (?) of such vast possessions. True,
we don't own any real estate, neither
do we carry upward of two hundred
pounds of it around in a pair of No.
11 boots. It is very inconvenient at
times to be poor, but it is by no means
dishonest. We have not made a very
great start in the world as yet, and we
never want to if we are obliged to run
a "dive" to accomplish it. Had we
been so fortunate as to have a heavily
insured house born down some time
or other, we might have been a little
farther along in the world. We do
occasionally play the violin for our
own amusement, but Kepler has a
weakness for that himself, and we've
been thinking if we could only secure
a stereotyped diagram of him while he
is playing some of his favorite "horn-
pipes," we could soon pile up a for-
tune printing comic valetines. We
own a setter dog, and a good one, but
as we are too poor to keep him fat his
appearance makes him resemble too
closely that of the dried herring Kepler
has hired as assistant editor. This
is the only fault the canine has, and
the poor dog seems to know it for he
blushes every time he meets the "her-
ring" in company. But we must insist
on the council hiring Kepler to shovel
the snow off the sidewalks.

—The suggestion in our last issue
that Kepler be hired to shovel snow
off the sidewalks seems to have touched
the very (?) fine sensibilities of the
Knight of the Coffee-pot and so warm
doth he wax that the "pot" boileth
over. He proceeds to twit the editor
of this paper upon his poverty, which
comes with bad grace from a million-
aire (?) of such vast possessions. True,
we don't own any real estate, neither
do we carry upward of two hundred
pounds of it around in a pair of No.
11 boots. It is very inconvenient at
times to be poor, but it is by no means
dishonest. We have not made a very
great start in the world as yet, and we
never want to if we are obliged to run
a "dive" to accomplish it. Had we
been so fortunate as to have a heavily
insured house born down some time
or other, we might have been a little
farther along in the world. We do
occasionally play the violin for our
own amusement, but Kepler has a
weakness for that himself, and we've
been thinking if we could only secure
a stereotyped diagram of him while he
is playing some of his favorite "horn-
pipes," we could soon pile up a for-
tune printing comic valetines. We
own a setter dog, and a good one, but
as we are too poor to keep him fat his
appearance makes him resemble too
closely that of the dried herring Kepler
has hired as assistant editor. This
is the only fault the canine has, and
the poor dog seems to know it for he
blushes every time he meets the "her-
ring" in company. But we must insist
on the council hiring Kepler to shovel
the snow off the sidewalks.

—The suggestion in our last issue
that Kepler be hired to shovel snow
off the sidewalks seems to have touched
the very (?) fine sensibilities of the
Knight of the Coffee-pot and so warm
doth he wax that the "pot" boileth
over. He proceeds to twit the editor
of this paper upon his poverty, which
comes with bad grace from a million-
aire (?) of such vast possessions. True,
we don't own any real estate, neither
do we carry upward of two hundred
pounds of it around in a pair of No.
11 boots. It is very inconvenient at
times to be poor, but it is by no means
dishonest. We have not made a very
great start in the world as yet, and we
never want to if we are obliged to run
a "dive" to accomplish it. Had we
been so fortunate as to have a heavily
insured house born down some time
or other, we might have been a little
farther along in the world. We do
occasionally play the violin for our
own amusement, but Kepler has a
weakness for that himself, and we've
been thinking if we could only secure
a stereotyped diagram of him while he
is playing some of his favorite "horn-
pipes," we could soon pile up a for-
tune printing comic valetines. We
own a setter dog, and a good one, but
as we are too poor to keep him fat his
appearance makes him resemble too
closely that of the dried herring Kepler
has hired as assistant editor. This
is the only fault the canine has, and
the poor dog seems to know it for he
blushes every time he meets the "her-
ring" in company. But we must insist
on the council hiring Kepler to shovel
the snow off the sidewalks.

—The suggestion in our last issue
that Kepler be hired to shovel snow
off the sidewalks seems to have touched
the very (?) fine sensibilities of the
Knight of the Coffee-pot and so warm
doth he wax that the "pot" boileth
over. He proceeds to twit the editor
of this paper upon his poverty, which
comes with bad grace from a million-
aire (?) of such vast possessions. True,
we don't own any real estate, neither
do we carry upward of two hundred
pounds of it around in a pair of No.
11 boots. It is very inconvenient at
times to be poor, but it is by no means
dishonest. We have not made a very
great start in the world as yet, and we
never want to if we are obliged to run
a "dive" to accomplish it. Had we
been so fortunate as to have a heavily
insured house born down some time
or other, we might have been a little
farther along in the world. We do
occasionally play the violin for our
own amusement, but Kepler has a
weakness for that himself, and we've
been thinking if we could only secure
a stereotyped diagram of him while he
is playing some of his favorite "horn-
pipes," we could soon pile up a for-
tune printing comic valetines. We
own a setter dog, and a good one, but
as we are too poor to keep him fat his
appearance makes him resemble too
closely that of the dried herring Kepler
has hired as assistant editor. This
is the only fault the canine has, and
the poor dog seems to know it for he
blushes every time he meets the "her-
ring" in company. But we must insist
on the council hiring Kepler to shovel
the snow off the sidewalks.

—The suggestion in our last issue
that Kepler be hired to shovel snow
off the sidewalks seems to have touched
the very (?) fine sensibilities of the
Knight of the Coffee-pot and so warm
doth he wax that the "pot" boileth
over. He proceeds to twit the editor
of this paper upon his poverty, which
comes with bad grace from a million-
aire (?) of such vast possessions. True,
we don't own any real estate, neither
do we carry upward of two hundred
pounds of it around in a pair of No.
11 boots. It is very inconvenient at
times to be poor, but it is by no means
dishonest. We have not made a very
great start in the world as yet, and we
never want to if we are obliged to run
a "dive" to accomplish it. Had we
been so fortunate as to have a heavily
insured house born down some time
or other, we might have been a little
farther along in the world. We do
occasionally play the violin for our
own amusement, but Kepler has a
weakness for that himself, and we've
been thinking if we could only secure
a stereotyped diagram of him while he
is playing some of his favorite "horn-
pipes," we could soon pile up a for-
tune printing comic valetines. We
own a setter dog, and a good one, but
as we are too poor to keep him fat his
appearance makes him resemble too
closely that of the dried herring Kepler
has hired as assistant editor. This
is the only fault the canine has, and
the poor dog seems to know it for he
blushes every time he meets the "her-
ring" in company. But we must insist
on the council hiring Kepler to shovel
the snow off the sidewalks.

—The suggestion in our last issue
that Kepler be hired to shovel snow
off the sidewalks seems to have touched
the very (?) fine sensibilities of the
Knight of the Coffee-pot and so warm
doth he wax that the "pot" boileth
over. He proceeds to twit the editor
of this paper upon his poverty, which
comes with bad grace from a million-
aire (?) of such vast possessions. True,
we don't own any real estate, neither
do we carry upward of two hundred
pounds of it around in a pair of No.
11 boots. It is very inconvenient at
times to be poor, but it is by no means
dishonest. We have not made a very
great start in the world as yet, and we
never want to if we are obliged to run
a "dive" to accomplish it. Had we
been so fortunate as to have a heavily
insured house born down some time
or other, we might have been a little
farther along in the world. We do
occasionally play the violin for our
own amusement, but Kepler has a
weakness for that himself, and we've
been thinking if we could only secure
a stereotyped diagram of him while he
is playing some of his favorite "horn-
pipes," we could soon pile up a for-
tune printing comic valetines. We
own a setter dog, and a good one, but
as we are too poor to keep him fat his
appearance makes him resemble too
closely that of the dried herring Kepler
has hired as assistant editor. This
is the only fault the canine has, and
the poor dog seems to know it for he
blushes every time he meets the "her-
ring" in company. But we must insist
on the council hiring Kepler to shovel
the snow off the sidewalks.

—The suggestion in our last issue
that Kepler be hired to shovel snow
off the sidewalks seems to have touched
the very (?) fine sensibilities of the
Knight of the Coffee-pot and so warm
doth he wax that the "pot" boileth
over. He proceeds to twit the editor
of this paper upon his poverty, which
comes with bad grace from a million-
aire (?) of such vast possessions. True,
we don't own any real estate, neither
do we carry upward of two hundred
pounds of it around in a pair of No.
11 boots. It is very inconvenient at
times to be poor, but it is by no means
dishonest. We have not made a very
great start in the world as yet, and we
never want to if we are obliged to run
a "dive" to accomplish it. Had we
been so fortunate as to have a heavily
insured house born down some time
or other, we might have been a little
farther along in the world. We do
occasionally play the violin for our
own amusement, but Kepler has a
weakness for that himself, and we've
been thinking if we could only secure
a stereotyped diagram of him while he
is playing some of his favorite "horn-
pipes," we could soon pile up a for-
tune printing comic valetines. We
own a setter dog, and a good one, but
as we are too poor to keep him fat his
appearance makes him resemble too
closely that of the dried herring Kepler
has hired as assistant editor. This
is the only fault the canine has, and
the poor dog seems to know it for he
blushes every time he meets the "her-
ring" in company. But we must insist
on the council hiring Kepler to shovel
the snow off the sidewalks.

—The suggestion in our last issue
that Kepler be hired to shovel snow
off the sidewalks seems to have touched
the very (?) fine sensibilities of the
Knight of the Coffee-pot and so warm
doth he wax that the "pot" boileth
over. He proceeds to twit the editor
of this paper upon his poverty, which
comes with bad grace from a million-
aire (?) of such vast possessions. True,
we don't own any real estate, neither
do we carry upward of two hundred
pounds of it around in a pair of No.
11 boots. It is very inconvenient at
times to be poor, but it is by no means
dishonest. We have not made a very
great start in the world as yet, and we
never want to if we are obliged to run
a "dive" to accomplish it. Had we
been so fortunate as to have a heavily
insured house born down some time
or other, we might have been a little
farther along in the world. We do
occasionally play the violin for our
own amusement, but Kepler has a
weakness for that himself, and we've
been thinking if we could only secure
a stereotyped diagram of him while he
is playing some of his favorite "horn-
pipes," we could soon pile up a for-
tune printing comic valetines. We
own a setter dog, and a good one, but
as we are too poor to keep him fat his
appearance makes him resemble too
closely that of the dried herring Kepler
has hired as assistant editor. This
is the only fault the canine has, and
the poor dog seems to know it for he
blushes every time he meets the "her-
ring" in company. But we must insist
on the council hiring Kepler to shovel
the snow off the sidewalks.

—The suggestion in our last issue
that Kepler be hired to shovel snow
off the sidewalks seems to have touched
the very (?) fine sensibilities of the
Knight of the Coffee-pot and so warm
doth he wax that the "pot" boileth
over. He proceeds to twit the editor
of this paper upon his poverty, which
comes with bad grace from a million-
aire (?) of such vast possessions. True,
we don't own any real estate, neither
do we carry upward of two hundred
pounds of it around in a pair of No.
11 boots. It is very inconvenient at
times to be poor, but it is by no means
dishonest. We have not made a very
great start in the world as yet, and we
never want to if we are obliged to run
a "dive" to accomplish it. Had we
been so fortunate as to have a heavily
insured house born down some time
or other, we might have been a little
farther along in the world. We do
occasionally play the violin for our
own amusement, but Kepler has a
weakness for that himself, and we've
been thinking if we could only secure
a stereotyped diagram of him while he
is playing some of his favorite "horn-
pipes," we could soon pile up a for-
tune printing comic valetines. We
own a setter dog, and a good one, but
as we are too poor to keep him fat his
appearance makes him resemble too
closely that of the dried herring Kepler
has hired as assistant editor. This
is the only fault the canine has, and
the poor dog seems to know it for he
blushes every time he meets the "her-
ring" in company. But we must insist
on the council hiring Kepler to shovel
the snow off the sidewalks.

—The suggestion in our last issue
that Kepler be hired to shovel snow
off the sidewalks seems to have touched
the very (?) fine sensibilities of the
Knight of the Coffee-pot and so warm
doth he wax that the "pot" boileth
over. He proceeds to twit the editor
of this paper upon his poverty, which
comes with bad grace from a million-
aire (?) of such vast possessions. True,
we don't own any real estate, neither
do we carry upward of two hundred
pounds of it around in a pair of No.
11 boots. It is very inconvenient at
times to be poor, but it is by no means
dishonest. We have not made a very
great start in the world as yet, and we
never want to if we are obliged to run
a "dive" to accomplish it. Had we
been so fortunate as to have a heavily
insured house born down some time
or other, we might have been a little
farther along in the world. We do
occasionally play the violin for our
own amusement, but Kepler has a
weakness for that himself, and we've
been thinking if we could only secure
a stereotyped diagram of him while he
is playing some of his favorite "horn-
pipes," we could soon pile up a for-
tune printing comic valetines. We
own a setter dog, and a good one, but
as we are too poor to keep him fat his
appearance makes him resemble too
closely that of the dried herring Kepler
has hired as assistant editor. This
is the only fault the canine has, and
the poor dog seems to know it for he
blushes every time he meets the "her-
ring" in company. But we must insist
on the council hiring Kepler to shovel
the snow off the sidewalks.

—The suggestion in our last issue
that Kepler be hired to shovel snow
off the sidewalks seems to have touched
the very (?) fine sensibilities of the
Knight of the Coffee-pot and so warm
doth he wax that the "pot" boileth
over. He proceeds to twit the editor
of this paper upon his poverty, which
comes with bad grace from a million-
aire (?) of such vast possessions. True,
we don't own any real estate, neither
do we carry upward of two hundred
pounds of it around in a pair of No.
11 boots. It is very inconvenient at
times to be poor, but it is by no means
dishonest. We have not made a very
great start in the world as yet, and we
never want to if we are obliged to run
a "dive" to accomplish it. Had we
been so fortunate as to have a heavily
insured house born down some time
or other, we might have been a little
farther along in the world. We do
occasionally play the violin for our
own amusement, but Kepler has a
weakness for that himself, and we've
been thinking if we could only secure
a stereotyped diagram of him while he
is playing some of his favorite "horn-
pipes," we could soon pile up a for-
tune printing comic valetines. We
own a setter dog, and a good one, but
as we are too poor to keep him fat his
appearance makes him resemble too
closely that of the dried herring Kepler
has hired as assistant editor. This
is the only fault the canine has, and
the poor dog seems to know it for he
blushes every time he meets the "her-
ring" in company. But we must insist
on the council hiring Kepler to shovel
the snow off the sidewalks.

—The suggestion in our last issue
that Kepler be hired to shovel snow
off the sidewalks seems to have touched
the very (?) fine sensibilities of the
Knight of the Coffee-pot and so warm
doth he wax that the "pot" boileth
over. He proceeds to twit the editor
of this paper upon his poverty, which
comes with bad grace from a million-
aire (?) of such vast possessions. True,
we don't own any real estate, neither
do we carry upward of two hundred
pounds of it around in a pair of No.
11 boots. It is very inconvenient at
times to be poor, but it is by no means
dishonest. We have not made a very
great start in the world as yet, and we
never want to if we are obliged to run
a "dive" to accomplish it. Had we
been so fortunate as to have a heavily
insured house born down some time
or other, we might have been a little
farther along in the world. We do
occasionally play the violin for our
own amusement, but Kepler has a
weakness for that himself, and we've
been thinking if we could only secure
a stereotyped diagram of him while he
is playing some of his favorite "horn-
pipes," we could soon pile up a for-
tune printing comic valetines. We
own a setter dog, and a good one, but
as we are too poor to keep him fat his
appearance makes him resemble too
closely that of the dried herring Kepler
has hired as assistant editor. This
is the only fault the canine has, and
the poor dog seems to know it for he
blushes every time he meets the "her-
ring" in company. But we must insist
on the council hiring Kepler to shovel
the snow off the sidewalks.

—The suggestion in our last issue
that Kepler be hired to shovel snow
off the sidewalks seems to have touched
the very (?) fine sensibilities of the
Knight of the Coffee-pot and so warm
doth he wax that the "pot" boileth
over. He proceeds to twit the editor
of this paper upon his poverty, which
comes with bad grace from a million-
aire (?) of such vast possessions. True,
we don't own any real estate, neither
do we carry upward of two hundred
pounds of it around in a pair of No.
11 boots. It is very inconvenient at
times to be poor, but it is by no means
dishonest. We have not made a very
great start in the world as yet, and we
never want to if we are obliged to run
a "dive" to accomplish it. Had we
been so fortunate as to have a heavily
insured house born down some time
or other, we might have been a little
farther along in the world. We do
occasionally play the violin for our
own amusement, but Kepler has a
weakness for that himself, and we've
been thinking if we could only secure
a stereotyped diagram of him while he
is playing some of his favorite "horn-
pipes," we could soon pile up a for-
tune printing comic valetines. We
own a setter dog, and a good one, but
as we are too poor to keep him fat his
appearance makes him resemble too
closely that of the dried herring Kepler
has hired as assistant editor. This
is the only fault the canine has, and
the poor dog seems to know it for he
blushes every time he meets the "her-
ring" in company. But we must insist
on the council hiring Kepler to shovel
the snow off the sidewalks.

—The suggestion in our last issue
that Kepler be hired to shovel snow
off the sidewalks seems to have touched
the very (?) fine sensibilities of the
Knight of the Coffee-pot and so warm
doth he wax that the "pot" boileth
over. He proceeds to twit the editor
of this paper upon his poverty, which
comes with bad grace from a million-
aire (?) of such vast possessions. True,
we don't own any real estate, neither
do we carry upward of two hundred
pounds of it around in a pair of No.
11 boots. It is very inconvenient at
times to be poor, but it is by no means
dishonest. We have not made a very
great start in the world as yet, and we
never want to if we are obliged to run
a "dive" to accomplish it. Had we
been so fortunate as to have a heavily
insured house born down some time
or other, we might have been a little
farther along in the world. We do
occasionally play the violin for our
own amusement, but Kepler has a
weakness for that himself, and we've
been thinking if we could only secure
a stereotyped diagram of him while he
is playing some of his favorite "horn-
pipes," we could soon pile up a for-
tune printing comic valetines. We
own a setter dog, and a good one, but
as we are too poor to keep him fat his
appearance makes him resemble too
closely that of the dried herring Kepler
has hired as assistant editor. This
is the only fault the canine has, and
the poor dog seems to know it for he
blushes every time he meets the "her-
ring" in company. But we must insist
on the council hiring Kepler to shovel
the snow off the sidewalks.

—The suggestion in our last issue
that Kepler be hired to shovel snow
off the sidewalks seems to have touched
the very (?) fine sensibilities of the
Knight of the Coffee-pot and so warm
doth he wax that the "pot" boileth
over. He proceeds to twit the editor
of this paper upon his poverty, which
comes with bad grace from a million-
aire (?) of such vast possessions. True,
we don't own any real estate, neither
do we carry upward of two hundred
pounds of it around in a pair of No.
11 boots. It is very inconvenient at
times to be poor, but it is by no means
dishonest. We have not made a very
great start in the world as yet, and we
never want to if we are obliged to run
a "dive" to accomplish it. Had we
been so fortunate as to have a heavily
insured house born down some time
or other, we might have been a little
farther along in the world. We do
occasionally play the violin for our
own amusement, but Kepler has a
weakness for that himself, and we've
been thinking if we could only secure
a stereotyped diagram of him while he
is playing some of his favorite "horn-
pipes," we could soon pile up a for-
tune printing comic valetines. We
own a setter dog, and a good one, but
as we are too poor to keep him fat his
appearance makes him resemble too
closely that of the dried herring Kepler
has hired as assistant editor. This
is the only fault the canine has, and
the poor dog seems to know it for he
blushes every time he meets the "her-
ring" in company. But we must insist
on the council hiring Kepler to shovel
the snow off the sidewalks.

—The suggestion in our last issue
that Kepler be hired to shovel snow
off the sidewalks seems to have touched
the very (?) fine sensibilities of the
Knight of the Coffee-pot and so warm
doth he wax that the "pot" boileth
over. He proceeds to twit the editor
of this paper upon his poverty, which
comes with bad grace from a millionaire (?)