If the prosperity of the country can be measured by the miles of new railroads constructed, last year was the most prosperous in the history of the United States, excepting, perhaps, 1871.

The total mileage is, according to the figures of the Railway Age, 7,207 miles of track actually laid on 934 different lines. This falls but little short of 1871, the footing for which is 7,370 miles.

The consumption of malt liquor in this country has increased over 100 per cent. in ten years.

"During 1890," says the Retailer, the organ of the brewers, "taxes were paid on 13,374,000 barrels, or 414,000,000 gallons. This is equivalent to about 150 mugs for every man, woman and child in the country. Leave out the females and children, this vast quantity represents 600 glasses a year for each male over twenty-one years old in the United States."

The new agricultural industry known as the central sugar factory system, which is now established in many sections of Louisiana, was founded by Messrs. Clarke and Steele, formerly of Springfield, Ohio.

Their plantation and works at Lagonda are on a grand scale. These gentlemen settled thirteen years ago and began buying up the cane raised by small farmers who had no mills, and refining the crude masses of planters who did not care to be troubled with the operation, or had not the means to carry it out. There are some large plantations in Western Louisiana now worked on the tenancy system. Small farmers, in companies of five to twenty, are allowed to cultivate as many acres of fine sugar cane lands as they can, free of rent, and are paid four dollars per ton for all they make. Several Chicago and Ohio firms are now planting on the tenancy plan, and many planters of the older sort have followed their example, until there are now twenty-five central sugar factories on the levee and the Atchafalaya. Both these systems are said to work well, and hundreds of tenants have become very easy in circumstances since the industry was established.

The Last American Empire.

The general opinion in Brazil is that the empire will not long outlive the reign of the present emperor, the good Dom Pedro. The imperial form of government does not flourish on the soil of the American continent, and the emperor's personal popularity, which is very great, has kept in check the democratic tendencies of the country, which cannot always be controlled even by wholesome laws and wise liberal and progressive government. Dom Pedro will probably be the last American emperor, and the vast country which he rules with so much intelligence and moderation will be numbered for good or ill among the republican experiments of the continent. The transition from the aristocracy to the democratic form of government need not necessarily be attended by violence or danger to the public peace. The people are educated to self-government to a certain extent, and the change will be one rather of form than of fact or principle.

"Ever Since the Flood."

The inundation of 1771, which swept away a great part of the old Tene bridge Newcastle, England, was long remembered and alluded to as "the flood." On one occasion Mr. Adam Thompson was put into the witness box at the assizes. The counsel asking his name received for answer: "Adam, sir." "When do you live?" "At Paradise, sir." "Paradise is a village about a mile and a half west of Newcastle." "And how long have you dwelt in Paradise?" continued the barrister. "Ever since the flood!" was the reply, made in all simplicity, and with no intention to raise a laugh. It is needless to say that the judge asked for an explanation.

FOR THE FAIR SEX.

How to Dress (with Taste).

The art of dress comprises color, texture, form and ornamentation. The first consideration should be directed to color. The accepting of fashionable shades, without any regard to the complexion, is a great error, and the result is rarely correct. By chance one may sometimes make a good hit in such matters, although by accident some of the best things in existence have come to light. Red, this season, is quite a favorite, and can be worn by the blonde and the brunette but the former must exercise a little discretion in adopting to any profusion this telling dye. The blonde who can befittingly adorn herself in scarlet trimmings, and especially where the hue is in close proximity to the complexion, should be very fast; a clear white skin will beautifully reflect the brightness of the scarlet; whereas a face that has a yellowish hue, or a rather florid aspect, should never appear to favor scarlet; if this color is worn at all by such, let it be far away from the face, except when arranged in an evening toilet. A brunette cannot wear pale green, which is most becoming to the fair beauty. Orange is the brunette's own color; but if the dark belle has blue eyes this dazzling shade will not enhance her appearance. The color of the toilet should be of that nature to impart a healthy tone to the complexion. This idea when effectually produced has a very satisfactory result. Avoid wearing those colors that heighten or destroy either the red, yellow or white in the natural flesh tints.

Women's Work.

Women frequently complain that men do not know how hard they are obliged to work. The many little things they are required to do are quite as taxing upon them, they rightly say, as the larger labor of the masculine sex. The Rev. Thomas K. Beecher says something on this subject which all women will appreciate. "All men," remarks this distinguished gentleman, "ought to go to the woods and do their washing and general work, such as sweeping, house-keeping and dish-washing. The work of women is not spoken of sensibly by men till they have done it themselves. Gentlemen readers, it is easy to talk, but just try it on a very modest scale once and you will honor working women more than ever. Do as I have done—a wash of six pieces, and then remember that a woman turns off 300 pieces a day. Look at your watch and see how long it takes you. Look at your soap and see how much you have used. Look at your white clothes, handkerchiefs and towels and see what work has been done. If never again speak harshly of or to a woman on washing-day, nor of laundry work as if it were unskillful labor. Try it. A sympathetic gentleman, having washed two pieces, will never change his shirt again without a glow of reverence and gratitude. She did this. A similar and salutary consciousness will come over him who darns his own socks, patches his own trousers, splices his suspenders and washes his dishes. Look not every man upon the work of a woman. Such an experience in the woods will go far toward settling the woman question, by teaching us that we are all members of one another, and there must be no schism."

Fashion Fancies.

White pine-apple silk handkerchiefs, embroidered in gold, are worn around the neck.

Embroidery is exceedingly fashionable, and may be found on all manner of fabrics in London.

White in gossamer fabrics is very much used over silk and satin in delicate or bright colors for evening dresses.

Basques are finished on the very edge with large jet beads strung closely together. All well-made basques have beads inserted in the bottom; this holds them in place, especially when sitting.

Velvet, both the stamped and the plain, stands at the head of fashionable dress fabrics this season. The black is more used in the plain, but in colors—blue, wine and purple—the stamped takes the preference.

New styles of collars upon dresses are round and wide, and shaped to extend down the front of basque to waist-line. They are often finished with flat plaitings of lace. It is hardly necessary to add that a collar and trimming of this kind is only becoming to narrow shoulders, and long-waisted figures.

The English corduroy is much in demand. It wears well and does not turn brown, like the ordinary corduroy. A secret that seems to be known by but few, in making up corduroy and velvet, is to make it nap upward; in that way the pile is not so easily flattened, and it has a fuller, heavier look always.

Pretty side-bags are substituted for pockets, and the newest specimens are made of satin, plush or velvet, either black or to match the color of the dress. They are embroidered with gold, silver, steel, jet or colored beads, with silk, or hand-painted, and have a fringe to match all round and tassels on each side, or ribbon bows, according to the strings which fasten them to the waist, whether they are of ribbon or silk cord.

Most fanciful are the collars and ruffs for the throat just now. Some have a tiny wreath of flowers, with drooping buds, put upon lace; other's swan's down, or small marabout feathers, gold or silver spangled between each quilting of the lace, and others are like small collars of black or colored plush with jetted and beaded lace; and so much is worn round the throat now that, in addition to the ruff, a beaded or embroidered band of velvet is sometimes seen.

A Hindoo Festival.

A San Francisco Chronicle correspondent at Calcutta says: The annual festival of Sal Deu, "Red Day," is contemporaneous in principle, if not in age, with our custom of snow-balling, excepting the fact that it is symbolical of a religious rite. If anger is displayed by those who stand in the locality where the water falls, it is a certain sign of apostasy, and clearly evidences the fact that these demurrers do not subscribe to the doctrine of Sal Deu. This is certain to bring forth from the confederates of the Hindoos a fresh supply of red powder from which he drives more water from out of a little brass pot, and if the victim is out of range he fires it on to the next corner—perhaps in the interim having been the recipient himself of active squirts. This is continued for three or four days, and at the expiration of that time every native in town has his clothes bedraggled with red water. Until the British authorities interfered, the Europeans were exempt from this practice, and consequently collisions and probable loss of life on both sides during these festivals were inevitable. We saw, leaning aimlessly against the corner of an old-fashioned building, one of those caricatured wretches afflicted with elephantiasis. Suffering from a written deeply in every lineament of his unnaturally full features, and his voice was full of woe as he with painful effort extended his hands to us and begged for money. There is no cure for this curse of India—nothing to hope for but death. This scourge of the Hindoos is attributed by physicians to the pernicious water and excess of fruit. Here also were bullock carts, paikes, gharrys, trucks, shouting coolies, barking dogs. Screaming kites above and shrieking steam whistles below, beggars for backsheeh, the ayah, the lordly rajan, the ever-important chuprassi and the ubiquitous dhentia-wallah (or water-carrier). This excess of black skins would grow monotonous were they not intermingled with European faces, which we meet with pleasing frequency, and you may hear on Hoogly bridge from the lips of some European tourist: "This is awful jolly."

One of the Viceroy's Duties.

Among the other duties entailed on a new viceroy of Ireland by his first drawing-room is that of kissing the cheek, not only of each fair debutante, but of every lady present. The severity of the duty may in many instances be tempered, yet the administering of many hundreds of courtly kisses in one evening must suggest the physiological fact that even the most exquisite pleasures turn to pain from too frequent repetition.—London Truth.

Wise Words of a Willing Witness.

At the close of a mass meeting, according to the report of the same published in a La Grange paper, reference was made to the phenomenal success of St. Jacob's Oil in the many painful diseases to which mankind is subject. We refer to the above as showing how strong a hold the Old German Remedy for Rheumatism has on the experience and good wishes of the great public.

There are men in Salt Lake City, once well-to-do, who have been literally bankrupted by polygamous families.

Polygamy on a generous scale is exceedingly expensive. The five richest Mormons in Salt Lake City are William Jennings, H. H. Hoover, F. Riddle, H. S. Eldredge and John Shapp. They are not solely ecclesiastical leaders, but are business men, and at the most modest estimate their wealth will average $1,000,000 a piece. Of the five only the two last named have taken superfluous wives. The widely known Orson Pratt is said to be a poor man. The number of his wives is variously stated at from five to eight.
