THE STATE CAPITOL.

Our Harrisburg Correspondent Attends the Inauguration and Tells About it in Good Shape.

HARRISBURG, PA., Mar. 14, '81. Lought to apologize for neglecting you so long, but various reasons and events, over which I had no control, my regular weekly letter.

and live forever."

I wish to write you about the magnificent procession, extending from Indeed, I heard it remarked in Washington by many that the display would have been comparatively meager, if it had not been for Pennsylvania. Space will not permit me to attempt to discribe the magnificent display of bunting, and decorations, on all the public and private buildings along Pennsyl-Mania Avenue and many other streets, nor of the brilliant pyrotecnic display in the evening. To me the privilege with salient points and noble sentiment, fully paid me for the visit. And then came the ball at the new museum building the same evening, which was known in the city. Eight hundred sets can dance at once in the building. The building starts on the ground in the form of a square, with sides 327 feet extreme length, surmounted by a cross and dome. Within its facades is a net area of about 3 acres under roof. The center of the building is octagonal, surmounted sixteen-sided polygons of eixty-seven feet diameter, which contains a tier of large windows ; walls finished beautifully; floors made of Florida pine. It is intended for a National museum. Now for the decorations; I cannot do it half justice: Over head as a net work of miles of green garlands, studded with flowers, interwoven with charming effect among the lofty arches; when you add to this the rich effect of color produced by the grouping of thousands of State and National flags, made of silk, under the grand illumination, the scene would be bewildering enough without the crash of the music, the buzz of ten thousand voices, the flash of jewels, and the rustling of gorgeous dresses. On the evening of the fifth the museum was again filled with chivalry and beauty (I was there) attending a promenade concert given by the marine band. A delightful musical entertainment which no one in that wast had not rendered a decision upon the audience enjoyed more than your humble servant. You know, Mr. Editor, I am foud of music, and I of

I went across the lawn to the beach, swallowed a few dozen pebbles as mementoes, and sprang aboard the reof listening to President Garfield's turning boat. I shall never forget this inaugural address, bristling all over delightful trip from Washington to Mount Vernon and return. It was full of pleasure to me, and will ever be a green spot in my memory. How many of the five hundred fellow passpronounced the most magnificent ever engers can say as much? Is there one? REPUBLICAN.

THE NATIONAL CAPITOL.

Special to the REPUBLICAN.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Mar. 15, '81 Barring the large crewd of office seekers which kaunt all the Departments, everything moves along smoothly with the new administration. The President is rapidly becoming four acres, more or less. familiar with his duties, the hardest of which at this time being to say "ne" in as many different ways, and pleasantest manners possible, and the Cabinet officers, all of them more or less acquainted with the duties of their various offices beforehand, are as old veterans in the Cabinet service. Secretary Blaine especially, enters at once upon the full discharge of his duties, and from the gusto and vim with which he takes hold of his new work one can easily tell that he is highly pleased with President Garfield's selection of a Secretary of State.

Secretary Windom, of the Treasury, is head over heels in business, and nearly worried to death with importune office seekers. Up to the hour of closing business at the Treasury Department yesterday, the Secretary pending request of the national banks I cannot but speak of my visit to deposited by them for the purpose of FEES OF DOCTORS.-The fee doctors is an item that many persons are interested in just at present. We believe the schedule for visits is $3.00, which would tax a man confined to his bed for a year, and in need of a daily visit, over $1,000 a year for medical attendance alone! And one single bottle of Hop Bitters taken in time would save the $1.000 and all the year's sickness .- Post.
