MEN may come and men may go, but the reduction of the National debt goes on as usual. Its reduction last month of $10,000,000 shows that Secretary Windom caught on exactly where Sherman jumped off.

Mrs. President Garfield has been lying very low with typhoid fever for the past week. It was feared for a time that she was beyond recovery, but her symptoms are some what better now and the prayer of the whole country is that she may speedily recover.

The confirmation by the Senate of Stanley Matthews as an Associate Justice of the Supreme Court of the United States took place last Thursday. The vote stood 22 to 21; close, but sufficient. The nomination was made by President Hayes and has hung fire ever since.

Secretary Windom has met and is still meeting with remarkable success in his method of refunding the sixes and fives. There is a rush to change the higher priced bonds for the lower, and is a very gratifying result to the country as well as the Secretary, as it shows how good the credit of our government is at home as well as abroad and the belief of our people in its perpetuation and stability. The amount of five per cents. turned in Saturday for exchange was $28,829 and since last Thursday $50,536,900. From telegrams received, the Secretary estimates that nearly all the outstanding bonds of this description will be offered for refunding before the limit fixed expires.—Derrick.

A QUESTION of considerable importance to the Republican party must be decided, and the decision announced, within a brief period. The National Convention at Chicago directed the National Committee to prescribe and publish within a year rules governing the election of delegates to the National Convention in 1884, and the year has almost elapsed. Mr. Jewell has issued a circular in which attention is directed to this fact, and suggestions as to the best methods to be adopted are invited from all Republicans. These may be sent to him either of the four members of the sub-committee, of which Mr. Wm. E. Chandler is chairman, and to which the whole subject was especially referred at the meeting in Washington last March.

Why did Auditor General Schell delay settling $3,000,000 of taxes against the Standard Oil Company until the day before he retired from office? It is very generally conceded that the Standard is not liable for taxes in Pennsylvania, as it does no business here. Yet Mr. Schell leaves behind him a settlement of $3,000,000 for Auditor General Lemon to experiment on. As it is morally certain nothing can be collected, the suggestion arises, why was the settlement made and given to the press just as Mr. Schell was retiring? Is it the intention of Mr. Schell and his friends to raise a howl about the non-collection of an uncollectable claim about the time the gubernatorial convention is assembling, in order to further his aspirations?—Venango Citizen.

Conkling and Platt Resign.

Quite a stir was created in political circles around Washington on Monday, occasioned by the resignation of their seats in the U. S. Senate of Senators Conkling and Platt of New York. The contest between the administration and Conkling, growing out of the nomination of Robertson as Collector of the Port of New York, by the President, was the cause of the resignation. Mr. Conkling, finding that all his efforts to prevent the confirmation of Robertson were of no avail, resigned rather than be beaten. It is the opinion of the press generally that Conkling's action was very hasty, and that if he thinks to gain the sympathy of the people thereby he will fall far short of the mark. He tackled the wrong man when he tried to dictate to President Garfield, and he has doubtless found it out by this time. His course is very boyish for so great a man as he, and reminds one of his school-boy days, when the boy who wanted to be boss and could not have his own way would immediately "refuse to play." It is the general opinion that the legislature now in session in New York will re-elect Conkling, which that gentleman will take as an endorsement of his course against the administration; but whether he goes back or not he has learned one thing and that is that James A. Garfield is President of the United States, and perhaps it will be well for him not to forget it.

Republican County Committee.

Pursuant to call of Chairman Jamieson, the Republican County Committee met at the office of Hon. E. L. Davis, on Tuesday evening, May 18, 1881. The first thing in order was to fix the time of holding the Republican primary elections. After a thorough discussion of the matter it was unanimously agreed that the said elections should be held on Saturday, June 18, 1881, commencing at the usual hour, 2 o'clock, p. m.

It was agreed that the Republicans of Lower Howe should be allowed to hold their election at Balltown, as heretofore. Also that the Republicans of upper Green and part of Kingsley should hold their election at the Guiton school house, as usual.

Mr. Chas Griffin was chosen Senatorial, and J. E. Wenk Representative delegates to the State Convention at Harrisburg, Sept. 8th.

After transacting other business of minor importance the meeting adjourned.

In publishing the names of the committeemen last week we made several errors, which were entirely unintentional and we hope the parties will take no offense. In the absence of the chairman we were obliged to depend on the memory of others to furnish the list. Following is a correct list as furnished by the chairman of the committee:

- Barnett—Jas. Ward. Green—Lewis Arner. Howe—J. B. White. Harmony Upper—Chas. Griffin. Harmony Lower—John Thompson. Hickory—Lewis Keister. Jenks—J. J. Parsons. Kingsley—John Osgood. Tionesta—C. W. Clark. Tionesta Boro—H. S. Brockway.

THE NATIONAL CAPITOL.

Special to the REPUBLICAN. WASHINGTON, D. C., May 12, '81. The caucus of the Republican Senators this week have developed several significant facts connected with the contest between the President and Senator Conkling. The Senator has made several long speeches in caucus this week, and while his friends say the effect has been very beneficial to his side of the contest, it is becoming evident that his strength has been overstrained, and that even though he may succeed in carrying the caucus with him, and postponing the consideration of the Robertson nomination until next session if such action is decided upon in caucus it is known that enough Republican Senators will refuse to be bound by it, as to cause the nomination to be brought before the Senate, and this once done, Robertson will be confirmed without much opposition. Senator Conkling is making a desperate fight, and his appeals to the caucus to stand by him are said to have been very able and pathetic; with the confirmation of Judge Robertson goes from Conkling the powerful influence of the New York Collectors, without which his chances for re-election to the Senate are slim. In years past Senator Conkling has managed with one or two exceptions to keep one or two of his intimate friends in this office, and he well knows the effect of a loss of patronage at this time. Though Senator Conkling has as many friends as any other leader of the party, it is known that none but his most ardent supporters are with him in the contest. In fact each day it is becoming more evident that President Garfield carries the greatest weight, and that for once in his political life Mr. Conkling has shot at larger game than he can bag.

At the dedication of the tomb and statue of General Stonewall Jackson, Ex-Confederate President Jefferson Davis in the course of an eloquent eulogy of the dead chieftain, spoke as follows: "He lived for his country never doubting the justice of his cause, believing it was righteous and trusting in it he died as I live to-day feeling that the Confederacy ought to have succeeded because it was founded on truth and justice."

As a result of the investigation of the mail service in the South and the Southwest, the Postmaster General has ordered the discontinuance of a large number of Steamboat routes which will result in an annual saving to the government of seventy-five thousand dollars.

The Family of Hulings.

I regret that I am unable to furnish any connected account of the Huling family: the following notes may, however, be of interest to your correspondent:

August 8th, 1711, Abraham Hulings interred his son Isaac in Christ church burial ground in Philadelphia; January 10th, 1733-4, his son Peter; August 11th, 1734, his daughter Mary; April 27th, 1736, Mary his wife; and December 8th, 1736, his daughter Sarah were all buried in the same ground.

Michael Hulings settled in Lancaster county about 1738.

Watson in the Annals of Philadelphia and Pennsylvania says: "The Swedish family of Huling came originally from Marcus Hook, and settled the fine island now called Duncan's. In the year 1755, Mrs. Huling, with her two children, all on one horse, forded the river and made their escape from the Indians, down to Fort Hunter, now M'Alister's place."

In an extract from a letter, dated Fort Pitt, August 12th, 1763, published in Parkman's Conspiracy of Pontiac in relation to the siege, it is stated: "Nine rank and file wounded and Hulings having his leg broke was the whole loss."

January 5th, 1763, Jonathan Hulings married Mary Emson, and December 7th the same year Marcus Hulings married Williamina Skillings. April 25th, 1768, Susannah Hulings and Joseph Cowperthwait were married.

January 31st, 1766, Michael Hulings was appointed Warden of the Port of Philadelphia.

May 20th, 1775, Michael Hulings was licensed as an Indian trader.

In 1776, John Hulings was a captain in Col. Wood's battalion.

Gen. Richard Butler, one of the commissioners appointed to hold treaties with the Northern and Western Indians, in his journal of October 1st, 1785, says: "I fortunately recommended the employment of one Mr. Huling, who I find to be a very useful, active and ingenious man, he goes ahead with a small canoe to search out the channel, which we find very crooked." This, we no doubt, Marcus Hulings. In the journal of Gen. Joseph Buell, the arrival at Fort Harmer, of "Uling, a trader on the river," is mentioned three times, Nov. 5th and Dec. 3d, 1786, and on the 4th of January, 1787. Col. John May, in his journal of May 7th, 1788 says: "Arrived at Hule's opposite Pittsburgh." This was the large stone tavern and ferry-house of Marcus Hulings on the south side of the Monongahela river opposite the foot of Liberty street; it was afterwards for half a century known as Jones' ferry-house. Col. May makes frequent mention of Mrs. Hulings.

October 2d, 1789, Thomas Hulings was appointed one of the commissioners to view the Susquehanna and Juniata rivers.

In 1790 Samuel Hulings is mentioned as having a pre-emption right to an island in the Allegheny river called Huling's island.

For more than ten years subsequent to 1790, Marcus Hulings was employed by Major Isaac Craig, quartermaster at Pittsburgh, in transporting military stores up the Allegheny to Fort Franklin, and to Presqu' Isle, and down the Ohio and Mississippi to the military posts on those streams. Major Craig's letter-books and papers contains ample evidence that Marcus Hulings was a faithful and reliable man in all his undertakings. The tombstones in Christ church yard, and documents in my possession all spell the name Hulings. I have many of Marcus Hulings' signatures very well written. One of the family represents Venango county in the Legislature.—Harrisburg Telegraph.

GIVEN UP BY DOCTORS.—"Is it possible that Mr. Godfrey is up and at work, and cured by so simple a remedy?" "I assure you it is true that he is entirely cured, and with nothing but Hop Bitters; and only ten days ago his doctors gave him up and said he must die!" "Well-a-day! That is remarkable! I will go this day and get some for my George—I know hops are good."—Salem Post
