THE U. S. Senate has adjourned sine die, and the Senators have all gone home. The country will now have a breathing spell for some time.

GENERAL WEAVER, the great Greenback apostle, has cancelled all of his Eastern engagements to address Greenback meetings, pleading other engagements elsewhere. This probably means that General Weaver will devote his time to the West, which is better Greenback ground than the East.—Venango Spectator.

EDWARDS PIERREPOINT, who stood by General Grant through thirty-six ballots at Chicago, says: "I cannot see how the Republican party can be benefited by throwing the Senate into the hands of the Democrats as this course does." A good many others of the 306 have the same trouble with their vision.

JUDGE ROBERTSON'S confirmation as Collector of the Port of New York, took place in the U. S. Senate on Wednesday last. There was very little opposition, and the vote was nearly unanimous. Hon. G. W. Scofield, of Warren, Pa., was confirmed Judge of the Court of Claims, and Ex-Senator Bruce takes Scofield's place as Register of the Treasury.

THE gratifying announcement is made that the condition of Mrs. Garfield is hopeful. The political excitement of the past few days has not shut out from the public mind the fact that a grave anxiety reigned in the family of the President, and has not prevented expressions of sympathy from going out to him upon all sides. There will be a universal hope that the encouragement offered in the later bulletins respecting Mrs. Garfield's condition will be amply justified, and all cause of solicitude removed.

SECRETARY WINDOM is resolved to administer the Treasury Department in the very strictest sense in accordance with law, requiring of all auditors, heads of bureaus, chiefs of divisions and clerks the same rigid performance of duty in the very closest conformity to law in reference thereto. In a vast organization like that of the Treasury it is almost impossible to evade irregularity. It will creep into transactions in shapes at once dangerous to the public interests and damaging to the reputations of public officials. Recent acts show this, but so stern is the present direction of that department that only resignation would satisfy the Secretary for such dereliction. This looks like business.—Harrisburg Telegraph.

GLENNI W. SCOFIELD'S appointment as a judge of the Court of Claims is an honor well bestowed and will be worthily won. In 1850 and 1851 he was a member of the lower house of the Pennsylvania Legislature, and in 1857 and 1859 he served in the State Senate. In 1861 he was appointed President Judge of the Eighteenth Judicial district, and in 1862 he was elected a Representative from the Erie district to the Thirty-eighth Congress, to which he was re-elected repeatedly. At the bar, on the bench and in Congress, Glenni W. Scofield has displayed abilities of no common order, and commanded confidence and respect which gave him prominence in all bodies in whose deliberations he took part. In the debates of Congress he bore himself the equal of any man in the House while he was a member of it, and in the Treasury Department, as Register, his great legal ability without a doubt won him the place he now goes to fill on the bench of the Court of Claims, which will last during good behavior. In 1863 Mr. Lincoln appointed David Wilmut and Joseph Casey to the bench of the Court of Claims, both of this State and both of whom had served in Congress, the former having served a short term in the Senate and for several Congresses in the House.—Harrisburg Telegraph.

THE House is really down to hard work at last, and accomplishes more in two hours than it did in two weeks a month ago. There will be no trouble about getting through with all the needed legislation by the 2d of June. Some bills of course, will not be acted upon, and they would not be were the legislature to remain here till August. The reformers can blame the Times and the Press of Philadelphia for this failure. There cry on the start has been "On to Richmond" with the army in no fit condition to move. The blackguard course of these two papers towards the members of the legislature has been carried on without rhyme or reason, and no wonder that a reaction has set in. We may coax men, but our representatives would be wanting in manhood to be coerced and threatened into the support of any measure; no matter how meritorious. In relation to the hue and cry about the tax bill for Philadelphia, we are satisfied from a candid examination of the matter, that it is all cry and very little wool. If the people paid up their taxes when they should the office of delinquent tax collector, would be worth nothing. As it is, this officer saves a large amount of taxes to the city; and it is not his fault if his fees aggregate in proportion to the delinquency of the taxpayers. The tardy taxpayer is compelled to pay these fees and the city loses nothing. The same argument holds good for the Recorder's office in Philadelphia.—Harrisburg Saturday Night.

THE NATIONAL CAPITOL. Special to the REPUBLICAN. WASHINGTON, D. C., May 21, '81. All is quiet on the Potomac. The political storms which have swept from the White House to the Senate are rapidly passing away and Washington is settling down to its long summer sleep. Judge Robertson was confirmed yesterday and there is but little of the excitement remaining occasioned by the resignations of the New York Senators. The question now is will the Senators be returned. Some of Conkling's friends say that he is in earnest, and even if elected will decline the Senatorship. They say that he would now even decline the use of his name as a candidate for re-election, were it not for the fact that such an act on his part might be construed by his enemies as an intimation that he feared the result. Hence, they say, he will allow his name to be presented as a candidate, and if he succeeds, will at once decline. The word "if" used here is likely to mean more than is now thought. The anti-Conklingites claim strength enough to postpone the election until next winter, and this taken in connection with the fact that the enormous patronage of the New York Custom House will in a few days pass into the hands of his enemies, and with all its powerful influence may in the almost evenly divided State of the contestants, result in the final defeat of Mr. Conkling. Another version of the outcome of the resignations, told by Mr. Conkling's friends is, that it is already "fixed" that both Conkling and Platt are to be re-elected, but that Platt will agree that Conkling be elected for his, the long term, he taking the short term. If such an arrangement be brought about, it will give Conkling a term in the Senate until 1887, which will be two years beyond the term of President Garfield, and leave him absolutely foot-loose to antagonize the President without the worry of looking out for his own Senatorial bacon in 1884. There is a rumor that General Grant has written a letter to President Garfield deprecating the appointment of Judge Robertson. A copy of this letter is said to be in possession of Senator Jones, of Nevada. This Senator said he delivered a letter to the President from General Grant, but it had reference only to General Badeau, who by the way has declined.

Yesterday the Senate sent a committee to the White House, to enquire of the President if he had any further business for the session. The committee upon its return announced that the President had two hundred nominations yet to make. A weary expression settled down on the faces of those present, and the Senate immediately adjourned until to-day.

Final adjournment may be had on Saturday. It is now declared that if the Senate failed to pass upon the nomination of Wm. E. Chandler to be Solicitor General of the Treasury, that President Garfield contemplated re-nominating him. In such event, in the absence of the Senate Mr. Chandler could take the office at once. It is thought however that he may be confirmed by the Senate, now that the Robertson complication is out of the way. His ability to fill the place is conceded.

The following order has been issued by the Post Office Department: "On and after June 1, 1881, no printing or writing will be permitted upon the addressed side of postal cards, except that imprinted thereon at the manufactory, and such as may be necessary for the proper direction of the same. All postal cards bearing any other writing or printing upon the address side are declared unmailable, and must be returned to the sender by the postmaster at the office where they may be mailed. Such cards may be treated as "spoiled," and redeemed by any postmaster upon application of the holder, as prescribed in section 171, postal laws and regulations 1879. Future supplies of postal cards will be printed on the address side with the words, "Nothing but the address can be placed on this side."

A LOSING JOKE.—A prominent physician of Pittsburgh said jokingly to a lady patient who was complaining of her continued ill health, and of his inability to cure her, "try Hop Bitters!" The lady took it in earnest and used the Bitters, from which she obtained permanent health. She now laughs at the doctor for his joke, but he is not so well pleased with it, as it cost him a good patient.—Karrisburg Patriot.
