Killed by Lightning.

The heavy thunder storm which passed over the northern part of Clarion county Monday evening was not without its fatal results. A boy named Alexander Harkenrider, aged about 13 years, and living with his widowed mother on a farm in Washington township, two miles this side of Fryburg, Clorion Co., was instantly killed by a stroke of lightning. He was in the barnyard at the time, and his mother stood within twenty feet of him when the bolt came, but was not injured. No marks could be found on his person; the back of his hat rim was slightly torn and his shirt caught fire in the back. The boy was the only real help the bereaved lady had left, her husband, two daughters and an elder son having all been taken off very suddenly by diphtheria four or five years ago. She has the sincere sympathy of the entire neighborhood, over which the sad affair has cast a gloom. The boy was a cousin of Mrs. Thomas Hassey of this place.
