DEAD!

OUR BELOVED GARFIELD IS NO MORE!

Fifty Millions of People are in Deepest Mourning.

President Garfield is dead. That great, good and noble man whom every heart had learned to love and adore, has been summoned hence. God in His Infinite wisdom and mercy has relieved him of his sufferings. The deepest gloom enshrouds the nation to-day, and all is sadness and sorrow. The President's symptoms became worse on Friday, and on each succeeding day he became feebler, until on Monday night at 10:35 the great man breathed his last. The following from the Pittsburgh Commercial-Gazette on this solemn occasion we can all fully endorse:

"The golden bowl is broken! The silver cord is loosed!" The great heart of James A. Garfield ceased to beat at 10:35 last night, and the Nation mourns his loss to-day. For eleven weeks the hearts of the people have been alternating between hope and fear, sunshine and darkness, confidence and despondency. During the past few days it became apparent to all that the end was approaching—that the President was already under the shadow of the dark wings of the Angel of Death, and that he must surrender the sceptre which a loving and confiding people had so recently placed in his hands. The tender sympathies of a stricken household, the untiring devotion of a noble wife, the touching solicitude of a venerable mother, and the united prayers of a trembling Nation were unavailing to stay the chattering hand.

Great as is this calamity, and far-reaching as it may be in its effects, it cannot seriously disturb the business of the country or interfere with its peace and stability. His own words on the death of Mr. Lincoln are as applicable to-day as when he uttered them: "God reigns, and the Government at Washington still lives!" The country can never know what it has lost in the cruel assassination of its honored and beloved Chief Magistrate. No President, since the time of Washington, has ever excited higher hopes in the public mind, and no one ever gave greater promise of a brilliant administration. He had the intellectual training, the ripe experience in statesmanship, the moral firmness and the sterling patriotism necessary to devise and execute liberal things for the benefit of the whole country. Just why he has been stricken down on the very threshold of his executive career, is a proposition too complex for human solution. It is not for us to question the dealings of Providence with us as a nation or as individuals, but rather to trust and believe in Him who "doeth all things well."

There is some consolation and no little advantage resulting from the fact that the President was not suddenly cut off, as the assassin intended as he should be. Had he died on that fateful second of July, the shock would have been terrible and disastrous. Business would have been paralyzed, and serious consequences would have resulted while the paralysis lasted. All this has been averted, but against the beneficial results must be weighed the intense suffering of the President through eleven long and weary weeks. His struggle for life was heroic. His powerful physique melted away, as it were, to a mere skeleton. His large and vigorous brain was clouded and benumbed, and he became as a little child. All this agony he was willing to endure for the sake of family, friends and country; and, alas! that he should have endured it all in vain!

The whole country has been more or less in doubt as to whether the medical and surgical treatment of the President was the best that could have been obtained, and whether he might not have had a better chance for his life had he fallen into other hands. On this delicate question we have no opinion to offer. The surgeons unquestionably did the best they knew how. The whole subject will come up for discussion at the proper time. It is but reasonable to presume that a post mortem will be made, and the mystery of the location of the fatal bullet fully revealed. In the light of such revelation the surgical treatment will be rigidly scrutinized.

One of the effects of the President's prolonged suffering has been to prepare the country for the change which is to follow. Vice President Arthur will quietly assume the duties of the office, and the affairs of the Government will go on without a jar. This is not the time to speak of the political changes which are likely to follow the inauguration of a new Administration. It is enough to know that the executive power will be continued in a tried and approved Republican, one who has always had the good of the party and the interests of the country at heart, and who will discharge the duties intelligently, fearlessly and patriotically. One of his first acts will doubtless be to call the Senate in extra session, that a President pro tem. may be chosen, and such executive business transacted as may require to be laid before that body.

There is no occasion whatever for alarm, touching either the business or finances of the country. A great man has fallen, indeed—a noble, pure and devoted servant of the people—and another President has fallen a martyr while serving at his country altar. Like that of Lincoln, his memory will be embalmed in the heart of every true American, and his valor, his devotion to principle and his broad humanity will shine brighter and brighter as the pages of history pass under the eyes of succeeding generations.

Late Dispatches.

WHERE THE BALL WAS LODGED. LONG BRANCH, Sept. 20.—An autopsy has been in progress for more than an hour. One of the first discoveries made was a large clot of blood in the heart, which corroborates the opinion of the attending surgeons regarding the immediate cause of death. The statement that the ball was found in the region of the heart has been verified, and it is stated on authority that the developments of the autopsy prove that death was inevitable and the President's life was only sustained by the most excellent nourishing and constant care.

PRESIDENT ARTHUR SWORN IN. Attorney General McVeagh has just received this reply to the dispatch sent by the Cabinet to General Arthur last night. It is addressed to all the members of the Cabinet and says: "I have your message announcing the death of President Garfield. Permit me to renew through you the expressions of sorrow and sympathy which I have already telegraphed to Attorney General McVeagh. In accordance with your suggestion I have taken the oath of office as President of the United States before Hon. John R. Brady, Justice of the Supreme Court of the State of New York. I will advise you further in regard to the other suggestion in your telegram."

[Signed.] C. A. ARTHUR. The other suggestion referred to was that President Arthur came to Long Branch this morning.

SENATOR DAVIES supports the ticket.

My address will be c. Wolfe, Lewisburg, Union County, Pa., after November 8th.

It is predicted that "Reformer" Wolfe will get a good vote in the Northwestern part of the State. If the other counties feel like Forest in this matter, he will not get a vote, unless some of his Democratic or Greenback friends—who are just now praising him up—choose to give him a boost. The Republicans of Forest county don't throw votes away on "kickers."

SENATOR THOMAS V. COOPER, of Delaware county, has been made Chairman of the Republican State Central Committee. Mr. Cooper is a politician, and thoroughly acquainted with every detail of the politics of the State, and no better selection could have been made for the responsible position to which he has been called. Under his management the campaign will be pushed in every county in the State, and a concerted effort to bring out the full Republican vote, which means victory.

MR. REED, the Democratic candidate for Congress in the 2d district of Maine, has withdrawn, leaving the contest between a Republican and a Greenbacker, the latter of whom will be elected without much doubt. This act of Mr. Reed is a sensible move, and is worthy of imitation by all candidates everywhere, who are not running for the purpose of electing Republicans to office.—Commonwealth. Yes; and after all said and done, Ex-Governor Dingley, the Republican candidate, was elected by a majority of over 4,500, when last year the Republican majority was only 1,637. From which it might be inferred that the G. B. cause is waning in even the great stronghold of Maine.

CHARLES S. WOLFE, the "great reformer," announces himself as an independent Republican candidate for State Treasurer. The following from the Franklin Press are our sentiments, and in fact of every Republican paper in the State that has come under our notice, hence we can't understand just where Mr. Wolfe's support is going to come from. His actions are even severely criticised by the men who stood by him in the convention: "In announcing himself as an independent candidate for State Treasurer, Charles S. Wolfe simply places himself in a formal manner where he has been understood to belong for years, outside the Republican party. The fact that his friends entered the State Convention in a spirit of fair rivalry, and that Mr. Wolfe was present to urge counsel and direct them, gives to the act a touch of unmanliness that it might otherwise have lacked. The movement has not surprised those who knew him, and has pained nobody except his friends. While he has not startled his opponents he has grieved his friends and alienated his followers."

Our Candidate for State Treasurer.

General Silas M. Baily served all through the war of the rebellion, and the history of the Eighth Pennsylvania Reserves bears testimony to his bravery and his patriotism. He entered the service as captain of Company I, recruited at Waynesburg, Greene Co. and was commissioned June 20, 1861. In a little less than a year (June 4, 1862) he was promoted to Major, and on the 1st of March, 1863, he was commissioned as Colonel. On March 13, 1864, he was made a Brigadier General by brevet, and on the 24th of May, 1864, he was mustered out with his regiment at Pittsburgh.

The Eighth Reserves was severely tried at Mechanicsville, where the loss in killed, wounded and missing was nearly one hundred. At Gains' Mill it occupied the second line of battle, and made a gallant advance, under Colonel Hayes, in the face of a shower of rebel bullets. Early in this advance Major Baily was wounded and borne insensible from the field. The loss in killed numbered twenty-four, and eighteen were severely wounded. In the succession of engagements following Mechanicsville and ending at Malvern Hill, the loss of the regiment in killed, wounded and missing, was two hundred and thirty. When the movement to Harrison's Landing was made, Major Baily was still suffering from his wounds and unable to take the field, but on the resignation of Colonel Hays and Lieutenant Colonel Oliphant he was commissioned as Colonel. The Eighth was transferred from the Peninsula to Aquia Creek, whence it was ordered to join the army under General Pope. Its part in the Bull Run campaign, and in Maryland at South Mountain, Antietam Creek and Edericksburg, was highly creditable. It wound up its career under General Grant, in the last campaign against Richmond, its time having expired after the battles of the Wilderness at Spottsylvania.

General Baily is a man of unspotted integrity, and possesses in an eminent degree those traits and qualifications necessary to make a watchful and faithful guardian of the public funds. There will be neither speculation in, nor peculation of, the people's money while he has charge of the Treasury. He can be relied on for an intelligent and efficient management of the State finances, such as will reflect credit upon himself and honor upon the party. The nomination is one which will command the respect and strengthen the confidence of the voters of the Commonwealth. It will rally to the support of the ticket the soldier element, who have such an honorable representative in the person of their standard-bearer, and it will drive none away who are sincerely desirous of maintaining the integrity and supremacy of the party. There can be no doubt of the triumphant election of General Baily in November next.
