BURIAL OF THE NATION'S BE-

honored and loved.

On Monday September 26, at Cleveloved President, the man whom we had learned to admire, respect, and given back to the mother earth.

From all parts of the land, -North, sumed utterly. - Derrick. East, South, West,-the funeral procession had gathered, and fully fifty thousand people were assembled to do henor to the nation's dead, and sympathize with "the little woman" who had so faithfully watched and nursed,hoping against hope,-with the good old mother whose life had been bonored by the noble son,-with the children who had found the father could live even amidst the turmoil of public life. The sorrew that enshadows our land, the grief that imbitters the great soul of the nation, is shared alike by all; it has fallen close down sickening pain, the dead weight of clash of factions, the strife of parties, the vail of party is drawn aside, and we view him as our ruler, -his integrity, the shield of his manhood, shining untarnished, illuminating the lands sorrowing with us!
