Mr. Spoopendyke's Search.

'Oh, dear I" grunted Mrs. Spoopendyke, "I'm sure I'm going to die I" and the good woman flopped over in the bed and contemplated her hueband with a pale face and a look of general debility. "You'll be good to baby, won't you, dear ?"

"Oh, ho !" returned Mr. Spoopendyke, pounding her tenderly on the head with his big hand. "You're all right. Bear up against it, and you'll be well in an hour or two. I've often had the cholera morbus, but you never see me give up like this. Where's the ginger ?'

"I don't know," moaned Mrs. Spoop endypke. "Look on the top shelf of the closet. If it isn't there, try the bottom drawer of the wardrobe; or it may be in the pantry. Ow-w I" and Mrs. Spoopendyke doubled up and straightened out with a jerk.

" You can't remember any other Congressional districts represented by that ginger, can you?" growled Mr. Spoop endyke, prowling around the room in an aimless but energetic fashion. "You don't call to mind a couple more roosting-places in which that ginger is to be found, do you? Where'bouts on the top shelf?" and Mr. Si oopendyke rat tled around among the old bottles and empty pill boxes. "Look here! I've found that court plaster I wanted day before yesterday " and more than gratified with his find Mr. Spoopendyke utterly forgot the original object of his search.

"You'll send baby to a good school and see that she marries happily, dear?" groaned Mrs. Spoopendyke, adapting a woman's style of hinting that the ginger would be acceptable. bury me by mother?" "And you'll

"Certainly," replied Mr. Spoopendyke, immersed in the contemplation ot the court plaster. "Where's the sheef of fiesh color that was here?" he demanded. "I don't seem to detect the presence of that particular element of adhesiveness | Where's the flesh colored portion of this curative?" and Mr. Spoopendyke ran over the little squares again in a vain search for the piece he missed

"Did you look in the wardrobe, love I' asked Mrs. Spoopendyke, faintly.

"It isn't here !" growled Mr. Spoopendyke, raking over the contents of the drawer and turning them over with h's feet. "What-1 Upon my word! you're a pretty woman ! I thought you said that old razor strop of mine was lost when we moved. Here it is as big as life and twice as dirty. Glad 1 found that strap," mumbled Mr. Spoopendyke, rubbing it tenderly and plow-ing off the dust. "Got a piece of cloth ?"

"Oh, do look in the pantry !" plead-ed Mrs. Spoopendyke. "I'm sure it's in the pantry !"

Mr. Spoopendyke charged on the pantry like a column of horse and hustled around and bumped his head, but didn't seem to meet with much suc-

"I don't see sny," he muttered. "Don't you know where you keep your cloth? I s'pose I might stand round here till doomsday, while moths corrode and thieves do break into this razor strop and steal the whole business without finding a piece of cloth to wipe it on. Haven't ye got an old skirt or something?" And Mr. Spoopendyke drew the strap under his arm two or three times and regarded it affectionstely.

Something Curious Happened.

Brooklyn Eagle.

A boy ten years old pulling a heavy cart leaded with pieces of boards and lath taken from some demolished strue. ture-an every-day sight in all our cities. Tired and exhausted he halted under a shade tree. His feet were braised and sore, his clothes in rags, his face pinched and looking years older than it should. What must be the thoughts of such a child as he looks out upon the world-the fine houses, the rich dresses, the rolling carriagesthe happy faces of those who have never known what it was to be poor? Does it harden the heart and make it. wicked, or does it bring a feeling of loneliness and wretchedness-a wondering if the rich man's Heaven is not so far from the poor man's Heaven that he will never catch sight of their pinched faces?

The boy lay down on the grass, and in five minutes was sound asleep. His bare feet just touched the curbstone, and the old hat fell from his head and rolled to the walk. In the shadow of the tree his face told a story that every passer by could read. It told of scanty food-of nights when the body shivered with cold-of a home without sunshine -of a young life confronted by mocking shadows.

Then something curious happened-A laboring man-a queer, old man with a wood-saw on his arm-crossed the street to rest for a moment beneath the same shade. He glanced at the boy and turned away, but his look was drawn again, and now he saw the picture and read the story. He, too, was poor. He, too, knew what it was to shiver and hunger. He tip-toed along until he covid bend over the boy, and then he took from his pocket a piece of bread and meat-the dinner he was to eat if he found work-and laid it down beside the lad. Then he walked carefully away, looking back every moment, but hastening out of sight as if he wanted to escape thanks. Men, women and children had seen it all, and what a lever it was ! The human heart is ever kind and generous, but sometimes there is need of a key to open it. A man walked down from his steps and left a haif-dollar beside the poor man's bread. A woman walked down and left a good hat in place of the old one. A child came with a pair of shoes and a boy brought a coat and vest. Pedestrians halted and whispered and dropped dimes and quarters beside the first silver piece.

Something curious had happened. The charity of a poor old man had unlocked the hearts of a score of people. Then something strange occurred. The pinched-faced boy suddenly awoke and sprang up as if it were a crime to sleep there. He saw the bread-the clothing -the money-the score of people waiting around to see what he would do. He knew that he had slept, and he realized that all those things had come to him as he dreamed. Then what did he do? Why, he sat down and covered his face with his hards and sobbed like a grieved child. They had read him a "Oh, please find the ginger!" the churches. They had set his heart squealed Mrs. Spoopendyke, as another to swelling and jumping until it choked sermon greater than all the sermons of spasm caught her. "Never mind your him. Poor, ragged and wretched, and feeling that he was no more to the world than a stick or a stone, he had awakened to find that the world regarded him as a human being worthy of aid and entitled to pity .- Detroit Free Press.

Secret Marriages In New York.

The Badger case (which has just been settled by compromise in New York), says a letter from the metropolis, is very emarkable in its character, the facts being as follows : Jacob Badger recently died in his seventy-sixth year. He was a rich old bachelor, and had for many years been at the head of an opulant shipping house. His beirs proceeded to divide the property, when a claim was made by a woman who asserted her dower right as his widow. For thirtyfive years she and "John Baker" had held connubial relations, their home being in Brooklyn. "Baker" nat always conducted himself in an exem plary manner, providing liberally and enjoying the respect of the neighborhood. Every day he went to New York and returned at night, and this uniform life was only terminated by his sudden demise. It was then learned that "John Baker, 'of Brooklyn, and Jacob Badger, of New York, were the same, and the woman was allowed a dower of $42,000. New York contains many such instances, which find protection in that mantle which a great city throws over society. I well remember the flour dealer, Daniel Angerine, who always passed for a bachelor. After his death, however, it was learned that he had a family, which had only known him under a false name. I was also acquainted with another bachelor business man (the late H. N. Ferris), who kept his residence a secret from even his clerks. Every morning he appeared at the store, and at night he left, but no one knew whither he went, and his employes became so accustomed to this mystery that it ceased to be a matter of comment. Eventually Ferris was taken ill and died, and it was then discovered that he had a private establishment in an obscure street, far uptown. R. G. Schnyler, formerly the noted railway con tractor, also passed for a bachelor, until his failure brought out the fact that he nad a wife and family in which he had long been known by the name of Spicer. I could mention a man of wealth and of high family who passes in the Fifth avenue circles as a bachelor, but his friends have long been convinced that he has a wife somewhere in the city Some of these secret marriages occur in the following manner: Young men see the impossibility of supporting those helpless, high-toned city girls who want a fashionable establishment, and hence, going from one extreme to another, they will sometimes marry the daughter of their washerwomen, simply because the latter can take care of themselves. As such a marriage would distress their friends, they keep it secret and pass for bachelors, being thus enabled to retain their position in society. Such are among the strange features in metropolitan life. No man, however, can say he marries below his station if his wife, however humble, is of decent character and possesses intelligence. That false notion concerning men marrying beneath them has led to a vast extent of mischief.

AN OPEN LETTER.

Some Outspoken Statements of Grent Value from factics of the Highest Standing. When the people of Americs become so thor oughly aroused, and on a subject of such sori-ous importance as the preservation of their lives and health, it is but natural that the ones who have been largely instrumental in the origin of the movement should speak frankly and directly to the people most interested. It is for this reason that we thus four before the public and make the following revelations. Every careful observer who has sought to keep pace with the march of events has noted the alarming increase of certain peculiar physical troubles within the past few years. These out avoid the which the past tow years. These troubles have come at unexpected moments and in a most treacherous way. They have mani-fisted themselves in immunerable torms, but they have always had the same cause. They have not afflicted the minor parts of the body, but have gone direct to the strongholds of the sectors work work has madely be been but have gone direct to the strongholds of the system, and their work has usually been as prompt as it is fatal. Their treacherous and uce prive nature has often prevented a careful analysis of what causes them, and, as a result, intense suffering and final disaster have usu-ally ensued. The real cause, however, has been a derangement of the kidneys, and all of these troubles are, in fact, the first symptoms of the terrible Bright a disease, which has east is dark ahadows over so many homes in the its dark shadows over so many homes in the its dark shadows over so many homes in the land and is increasing wonderfully and contin-ually. It is now conceded by the ablest physi-cians in every land and by eminent scientists the world over, that this disease is the result of blood poisoning. This poisoning is brought about by wastet and unhealthy kidneys that permit the poison to remain in the blood, in-tend of throwing it from the science. stead of throwing it from the system. But it is equally evident to all who have studied into the facts and have become conversant with the facts, that a disordered state of the kidneys and liver produces most of the common complaints and pains which afflict the human race, and they can be traced to this source just as cer-tainly as can bright's disease. To purify s discase we must remove the cause. It being true, therefore, that mine-tenths of all human ailments are caused by diseased kidneys on liver, the only certain way to cure these troubles is by treating the organs which cause them. How intimately the kidneys are associciated with the entire system may be under-stood from the fact that over 1,000 ounces o blood pass through them every hour, boing more than 200 gallons, or nearly one ton in the course of twenty-four hours. This wast mass of living fluid is sent to every part of the body, and if the kidneys are diseased the impurities that sie in the blood are not removed, and hence pass through the veins, carrying disease in some of its many terrible forms. The hor-rors which accompany most of the diseases caused by disordered kidneys and liver cannot be described in print, while the dangers sur rounding them are even greater than the agony. And yet a person may be troubled for months without knowing the cause of the dis-cases that have attacked him. Some of the symptoms of the first stages, any one of which indicates disordered kidneys or liver, are these Pains in the back and around the loins, severe headsches, dizziness, inflamed eves, a costeo toogue and a dry mouth, loss of appetite, shilly sensations, indigestion (the stomach never is in order when the kidneys or liver are deranged) a dryness of the skin, nervousness, night sweats, muscular debility, despondency, a tired feeling, especially at night, puffing or bloating feeling, especially at night, puffing or bloating under the eyes, etc. If any of the following things are noticed about the fluids passed from the system it shows that the kidneys and liver are out of order: A red deposit, a seum upon the surface, an unusual thickness or thinness, a very dark or a very light color, a burning sen-sation in passing, a retention or a frequent de-sire to void and inability to do so. The above are a rew of the hundreds of symptoms which indicate the beginning of ag-gravated cases of kidney or liver difficulties, and they require instant attention. If these symptoms are not checked at once, they are ai-

But unpleasant as all the symptoms and even these dis-cases may be, they are as nothing compared to the last stages of the complaints. The kidneys waste away by degrees, accompanied by intense pains; the heart becomes uncontrollable; the unga are oppressed; the eyeballs grow glassy, and the entire system is reduced and debili-tated. For weeks before death comes the sufferer looks forward to it as a blessed relief, and anything that can furnish even temporary help is gladly halled. Then it is that bloaving be-sins; the face becomes puffy and pallid; the breath can only be caught in gasps; speech is impossible and muscular action suspended. "It was long and narrow," replied Mrs. Spoopendyke, almost in despair.

"I ought to find it from that descrip-tion," muttered Mr. Spoopendyke. "Most bottles are perfectly round Here's the arnics bottle upside down, and I told you to keep it filled. 1 might knock my arm into the next Presbyterian general assembly, and I'd have to wait all day before I could get a drop of arnica to soothe my anguish ! ### How a Statesman Controls HIs Temper

When M. de Persigny was French minister of the interior, he received a visit one day from a friend, who, on send ing up his name, was shown into the great man's sanctum. A warm discussion arose between them. Suddenly an usher en-tered and handed the minister a note. On opening it he at once changed his tone of voice and assumed a quiet and urbane manner. Puzzled as to the contents of the note, and by the marked eftect it had suddenly produced upon the minister, his friend cast a furtive glance at it, when, to his astonishment, he perceived that it was simply a plain sheet of paper, without a scratch upon it! More puzzled than ever, the gentleman, after a few minutes, took his leave and proceeded to interrogate the usher, to whom he was well-known, for he himself had been minister of the interior.

"You have," said he, "just handed to the minister a note, folded up, which had a most extraordinary effect up n him. Now, it was a plain sheet of paper, with nothing written upon it. What did it mean ? '

"Sir," replied the usher, "here is the explanation, which I must beg you to keep secret, for I do not wish to compromise myself. My muster is very liable to lose his temper. As he himself is aware of his weakness, he has ordered me, each time, that his voice is raised sufficiently to be audible in the anteroom, without delay to place a sheet of paper in an envelope, and take it to him. That reminds him that his temper is getting the better of him, and he at once calms himself. Just now I heard his voice rising, and immediately carried out my instructions."

Suicide.

The larger number of suicides take place in countries where life is thought easy and happy, as in the kingdom and ducnie: of Saxony, in the smaller German states, and in Denmark. Trustwortby statistics prove that there are and the enraged gentleman thrust his 110 cases of self-murder in France for every sixty-nine cases which happen in England. Suicides are least frequent in Spain, which is, perhaps, of all European countries the most superstitions. There are only thirty female suicides to every 100 men who destroy themselves. The greatest number of suicides occur in summer; the fewest in midwinter. Out of 23,304 French suicides, alone, will ye? ple mention of the words "ST. Jacobs OIL," coupled with terms of indorsement and en-couragement, bring relief and cure to those anf-fering with theumatism. In view of the wonder-ful record of this Great German Remedy in the cure of rheumatism, neuralgia and all painful diseases, it appears in the light of strong duty far everyone to patiently, yet persistently, urge its application in the diseases named, bearing in mind that the bighest good from man to man consists in that which tends to promote their peace, welfare and general health. Among others who have no heatiation in giving free expression to their opinion is Hishop Gilmour, of Cleveland, Ohlo, who has used the Great German Remedy. Sr. Jacobs OIL, and endorses it highly. He writes about it as follows: "I am pleased to say that the use of Sr. Jacobs OIL has benefited me greatly, and I have no hesitation to recommend it to all as an excellent curative."
