Che Forest Republican IS PUBLISHED EVERY WRONENDAY, MY J. E. WENK. Office in Smearbaugh & Co.'s Building, MAM STREET. - TONESTA, PA. TERMS, 61.50 PER YEAR.

No antisoriptions reveived for a shorter period time if the months. Carry produces solicited from all parts of the country. No notice will be taken of anonymous Wannering floin riome to Home. Whan swallows were building in early spring. And the roses were fed in June; When the preat white lilles were fair and sweet, In the heat of the Asgust noon; When the winds were blowing the yellow

Wheals And the song of the harvest nigh,

The beautiful world lay calm and sweet, he joy of molendless sky-

o swallows were full of glad content to hope of their Northern nest; sure that the land they were tarrying

Il other lands was the best. they had heard in those blissful days Voice they must heed say, "Go," had left their nests with a keen regrot. their flight had been sad and alow.

len summer was gone and flowers pro dead.

ge brown leaves fell with a nigh, watched the sun setting every day on in the northern sky. Voice was sweet when it hid them core cager for sonthward flight, beat their wings to a new-born they went at the morning light.

way was long, yet the way was glad, they brighter and brighter grew, dipped their wings in the glowing hey still to the southward flew: bay found the land of the summersun, he land where the nightingale singe, joyfully rested 'mid rose and song air beautiful weary wings, swallows we wander from home to p birds of passage at besta spot we have dwolt awhile Thave built us many a nest. t the heart of the Father will touch our hearts. He will speak to us soft and low, Wa shall follow the Voice to the better land, And its bliss and its beauty know.

-Mary A. Barr, in Harper's Weekly.

CHRISTINA.

BY MRS. REBECCA HARDING DAVIS.

She was the result of an experiment -a desperate experiment. How desperate it was some of the girls who read the Companion no doubt know from experience.

Mother and I lived alone in the dear old homestead, just outside of a drowsy village in Delaware. Old Sanders worked the farm and lived in the tenant house, as he had done for thirty years, but he was getting old and cranky, and threatened every month life needs a little cheering. to leave us. But our great misery-"the messenger of Satan sent to buffet ly, I confess, and mother laughed.

ns"-was the "girl" who was not in bring in Blue Peter out of the alms [ here. She says it is so beautiful; so ] house, who set fire to the barn. Well, plenty to eat; it is like the Garden I'll show her about the supper." of Eden. If her mother and Jan

VOL. XV. NO. 38.

Christian followed me-dumb and could come, she would have nothing watchful-from kitchen to dining- more to ask." mom, while I Inid the table, prepared the muffins, fried chicken and made coffee. She did not offer to touch anything send for them.

"I am horribly bored by this unend-

"It is the only thing she knows,"

" Do keep her away from me to-day,

"To-day was to be signalized by an petty willful pettishness.

eyes suddenly sparkling.

saucily.

solid h

for to help me. But the next morning, when I went down to make ready the reakfast, there was the table laid, and One or two thousand dollars. No: e chicken, muffins and coffee preely as she had seen them the night lefore.

She was faithful and imitative as a humming a song, while Christiana ainaman, and she was already a good | turned hopelessly to her work. ok and dairy maid. She learned a words of English, and with them own tongue, however, had made the showed her gratitude for any simple iness shown her. We fancied, too, she took pleasure in the beautiful her; told her her story a hundred the room. itry about her. times.

never looked more beautiful than it did that summer. The great orchards ing talk of 'mutter, mutter,' and ' Jan. were red with fruit, constant showers Jan,' said Julia, stretching her tiny the forests pure in tint, the wild mouth in a yawn. and sweet briar covered every field and roadside. said mother, gently.

But the poor Norwegian was wretchedly unhappy. Her unsmiling then," impatiently, face and wide sad eyes seemed to carry misery into the barnyard and dairy, and leavened the very bread we ate. When she was safely in her own room I heard her stifled sobs until late in the night.

"One is almost tempted to remember your convict theory," said mother, anxiously, one day. red as a peony.

"It doesn't matter. We'll keep her if she were Lucretia Borgia herself," I said luxuriously leaning back in the rocking chair on the porch. "The idea of being free from pots, pans and brooms at last !"

We tasted our comfort at leisure: brought out some fancy work and books which we had never hoped to find time to read.

Then came a letter from Julia Webb. It was a thunder clap in our clear sky. Julia was a cousin only by the shearest courtesy; a beauty; a spoiled heiress; a belle with a dozen lovers. She was coming en route to Newport, to spend the wind. She stood on the bow, her a week with us. red ribbons fluttering, kissing her hand

"Very likely some of these troublesome men will follow to find how your hermitage suits poor little butterfly she cried. "But you will make me," she wrote. them welcome, darling auffile? There is a Count Pasco who is my chief nuisance just now. Such a charming, ridicalous creature! I shall be delighted to give him a peep into an American middle-class interior. And it will be a good opportunity for you and Cousin Martha to have a glimpse of a foreign nohleman. Your gloomy

I tore the letter up, a little vicious-"Never mind, Mattie," she sa

TIONESTA, PA., WEDNESDAY, DECEMBER 20, 1882.

Che Forest Republican.

tenant house, I said, carelessly :

thing yet to be done for the new farmer.

"I hope," she said, in her pleasant broken English, "he will be goot neigh-

I nodded. I was too excited to speak. When we reached the steps mother came out, her face all in a and she skipped out of the kitchen glow.

> could wish," she whispered eagerly, "One minute, Christina," and she ran to the astonished girl, smoothing her wegian dress, with honest blue eyes, stood waiting, and beside him a tall erect old woman, with a peculiarly gentle, kindly countenance. They were both greatly agitated and scarcely noticed me, their eyes being on the door.

a half sob: "Go in, child. God bless you," and Christina came in.

still, her handsstretched out in amazewere supposed to act as cooks and serment. Then came the cry: "O, Mutvitors, but Christina dld all the work. ter! Motter! O, Jan!" She built the fire of driftwood ; cut > of years forcing its way into speech. We came out and left them alone

> Mother and I had prepared a little feast for them; a good substantial supper as foundation, and frosted cakes, flowers and grapes as embellishments.

to it, but they only ate to please us. They were too deeply moved for such little pleasures.

kitchen and the old mother, looking at the fire upon the hearth that had been kindled for them in a strange land, said a few words in a low voice, and they all sank 'reverently upon their knees while she prayed.

Mother and I kn elt with them. What us as we kneeled side by side.

as we went home that night, "God ness of her danger, sprang on the low. Youth's Companion. A heavy flaw came just then and the ## Agricultural Wonders.

A beautiful tuberose, with a stalk

$1.50 PER ANNUM.

Western Siberians. The Yuraki and Samoyedes wander about clad in winter in reindeer skins from head to foot, leaving exposed only a small portion of the face. They are excellent archers, and in hunting they still use the bow, fire arms and powder being not yet easily within their reach. The women use a good deal of ornament on their dresses, in the shape of pieces of bright colored cloth, while on their tresses, thrown behind, dangle a number of trinkets, as odd sometimes as the lock of a gun. Their shamane or priests cover their dresses with pieces of metal, which make a noise in their religious dances. They use also a magician's drum, which is found among the Laplanders. The Yuraki are among the least Christianized of the Siberian tribes. In many cases they transform the trunks of trees into idols. Among those furthest north, dogs are used for draught, and occasionally are allowed to come within the owner's habitation, but they are not affectionate animals, having to be ruled by fear rather than by love. The Russian exiles living on the Obi are not in confinement, but are placed in the villages to get their own living, or partly so. This they do by commerce, fishing and hunting. They go about in winter on snow-shoes. Occasionally the better educated among the exiles find employment in teaching and in photography. Mr. Lansdell, in his recently issued "Through Siberia," says: "That the commercial value of the basin of the Obi, and a large part of Western Siberia, is not yet realized by European capitalists is the opinion of most of those who have been there.' He speaks of the Altai mountains as rich in silver, copper and iron, and of a belt of black earth, 600 miles wide, like a vast tract of garden land, well suited for the production of wheat, oats, linseed, barley and other cereals, and from which the inhabitants can easily obtain a great deal more corn than is needed for their consumption. -London Graphic.

Cheap Living in Saxony.

A correspondent of the Chicago News writes that while everything was exceedingly cheap in Saxony, none of the Americans with whom he had been talking had been able to live on less money per diem than it cost them to live at home, but they had all lived more luxuriously.

"I am taking music lessons here," said a young fellow from Cincinnati, who does not talk much. "I take two lessons a week. I pay for the lessons about twelve and a half cents each, or $1 per month. I pay all the teacher asked.

"I am paying fifty cents per lesson to a teacher of German," said another. "I paid $15 for this suit of clothes," and another, "and I couldn't buy it in

RATES OF ADVERTISING.

 One Square, ong inch, one insertion
 $1.00

 One Square, one inch, one month
 3.00

 One Square, one inch, three months
 6.00

 One Square, one inch, three months
 6.00

 One Square, one inch, three months
 6.00

 One Square, one inch, one year 10.00

 Two Squares, one year
 15.00

 Quarter Column, one year 30.00

 Half Column, one year
 50.00

 One Solumn, one year
 100.00

100 00 One Column, one year.....

Legal notices at established rates. Marriage and death notices gratis. All bills for yearly advertisements collected quarterly. Temporary advertisements must be paid in advance. Job work, cash on delivery.

Giving and Gaining. Though the river to the sea. Is forevar flowing-Though the blossom greets the bes. All its sweets bestowing: Still the river floweth fleet-

Still the rose's heart is sweet. 'Tis the grand eternal law, Giving is but gaining; Nature knows no single flaw

In her wise ordaining: He who gives 'mid plenty stands-Who withholds hath empty hands. -Carlotta Permi

HUMOR OF THE DAY.

It may be set down as an axiom that when a person grows fat he grows waistful.

Late in life George Washington rode in his own carriage, but in his earlier years he took a hack at the cherry tree.

We sneer at the Siamese for worshiping the elephant; but think of the money that is paid here annually just to see it!-Saturday Night.

Charming frankness: "You have lovely teeth, Ethel." "Yes, George," she fondly lisped ; "they were a Christmas present from Aunt Grace."-Puck.

When a man gets into a fit of temper, do not allow his example to be-come contagious, for there is a law against counter fits.-Boston Transcript.

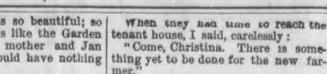

It is said that trained dresses for evening wear are coming back into favor. It is very evident that if they were not trained it would be very hard for the wearers to manage them .--Lowell Citizen.

First masher: "Well, did you make the acquaintance of that strange girl you were raving over?" Second ditto: "Yes, followed her home." First M.: "How did she strike you?" Second ditto: "She didn't at all; she got her big brother to do it."-Philadelphia News.

The difference : A young gilded (or, as they now say, nickel-plated) youth ot New York ordered a pair of pantaloons of his tailor and returned them as too tight. "You told me to make them skin-tight," said the man. "Yes," said the youth, "but I can sit down in my skin and I can't in these."-Puck.

It was at the house of the bride's parents after the wedding. On a table were exposed the costly presents. Two gentlemen were examining them. Said one suddenly: "These, you say, are the bride's presents, but what does the groom get?" "Oh," replied the other, "he gets the woman." First gentleman: "Is that all? Poor fellow!"-Boston Transcript.,

A chicken at Alliance, Ohio, went

"She might save her money and "It costs a good deal, It would take bor. It is nice house. It is as goot as her years to earn so much. Besides, our pastor lives in at home. This is Jan is under bonds to pay a debt of fine country for the poor, Mamzel Marhis father's, I don't know how much. tha.'

she'll have to carry her burden like the rest of us. Where's the count?"

"They are inside. They are all we The few stammered words in her poor girl a slave to Julia. She followed fair hair, retying the gay handkerchief her around from that day, waited on about her neck, while I hurried into

A heavily-built man in the Nor-

It opened. I heard mother say, with oyster-bake on the shore of the bay. She stood one moment dumb and The count and four other worshipers the bread ; made the coffee and baked It was the pent-up love and longing the oysters, running incessantly to Julia with the biggest, her round face together. It was a gray, gusty day, too gusty for us to use the little sailboat which was drawn up on the beach. This disappointment offered Julia a chance for "Too provoking! I had set my heart on a sail!" she cried, pouting. After awhile we brought them out 'I will wager a rose against a pair of gloves that I have it yet, count !" her

After supper we went into the The bet was taken. Half an hour afterward we missed Julia, and the next moment saw her in the cockleshell of a boat drifting out of the little cove, the sail half raised, flapping in > did it matter that the words were in a strange tongue. We understood her, and the Great Father of us all heard

"I think, dear little mother." I said, heard your prayer when you went out to find your savage that day."

Julia, terrified by the sudden conscious-"He always hears," she said, quietly.

Stalks of wheat six feet high, with heads six inches long, are the pride of California farmers.

the kitchen.

With all the neighborhood we de- people." pended for servants on the free negroes, who invariably decamped in a body to mother, even if potatoes turn out well, the girl went down. the fields or the great canning-houses as soon as the peach crop came in.

seen better days; and she disappeared with my one silk dress.

and "tried" a succession of poor creatures who left us with our patience worn to the last thread.

One night mother announced: "I am going to try an experiment. It shall lieved that she had. be with a foreigner who cannot speak a word of English, who never heard of did Count Pasco. privileges,' of canning-houses, of the fashions or the beer-shop. I will go to Philadelphia to-morrow, board an storm all day. emigrant ship and carry off an untamed savage-a woman Friday." .

ing," adding, after a little pause: "May the woman I shall bring be we help her upward in her way through life."

"Well, mother," I said, doubtfully, as we started up to bed, "I never knew you to ask the Lord before to with her. control the kitchen affairs."

"Some people," she said, gravely, "think it an insult to the Almighty to work in the upper, world, just as He cheeks. has in this. I don't know. But I do "Wh know that He does attend to all the underst things that. I ask Him about."

Mothes was as simple and direct as a child, [ven in her religion.

The dixt day she visited the city, we had a Bremen vessel and mistake." hinning home-Christina. She was hipuslin waist, short gray woolhall the en ticoat and heavy shoes, he U. . cannot speak a word of Eng-/ery d

"It is true; we are middle-class "It isn't that.

we shall not have a dollar over when the year is out. How are we going to count. "She swims like a frog !" We tried a wandering woman; she meet this high tide of company and drank. A genteel woman who had fashion and foreign nobility? Julia is wet and drabbled butterfly, in her quite capable of staying a month if the arms.

whim for 'hermitage' life seizes her." During the whole spring and sum-mer mother and I worked, cleaned, canned berries, milked and churned, "But even with that the table must be very plain."

I wondered secretly if the blessed woman had put this calamity in the jured, and was laid up in bed for a care of the angels. Afterward, I be- month. Mother and I had her work

Julia came; so did the lovers; so port, village inn, but they took our house by

There were charade-parties, picnics, excursions. Julia trailed her magnifi-I laughed at it as a joke, and was a cent silks or gauzy lawns up and good deal startled that night when down the wet meadows; she called mother at prayers asked that she "might be successful in her undertak-ing," adding, after a little pause: "adding, after a little pause: "adding, after a little pause: "adding after a l with the great glittering plane of the of help to us in making our daily life bay beyond, as a "nice little effect;" more cheerful and peaceable, and may and told Count Pasco that mother and injuries in my behalf. So I wrote to I were "queer bits of human bric-a- our consul in Christiana to pay Jan's brac."

and willful that nobody could be angry told me that old Sanders had finally with a blue silk wrapper perched on a him and his mother into the tenant flour barrel, while Christina, standing house? I have ordered from New suppose that He concerns himself before her, poured out a flood of words, York a few odds and ends to make it about our little worries. Perhaps He sobbing and wringing her hands. has His messengers for such small Tears, too, had wet Julia's rose-leaf rive in Philadelphia on next Monday."

"Pretty well. You know I passed a summer in Norway and picked up a to surprise her. We had grown very aim it has in view is to supply a certhing !

"By mistake?" "Yes. It seems they were frightant any jan skin, blue eyes, a funny lit- fully poor-her mother and brother ing for a house. Christina helped to I on The bo of hair atop of her head, a and herself-and she went as nurse clean the house for "the new farmer," with some tradesman's wife to Bremen. and to arrange the pretty furniture. When her time of service was out she was sent home, but by some mistake, delphia to meet the steamer. She was children at an expense of about fifteen ins soulis said mother, looking half scared. at night, was put aboard the steamer to come down in the morning train for Philadelphia instead of for Chris- next day. I watched it pass on to the a sa hor wegnin. The agene said for Finnerpine instant of for only the day. I doe not be the said of the car is the said of th he is an escaped convict, no been concerned in a case of kidnap-urs, little mother, induced you to "No. Better bring her family out "No. Better bring her family out leaped into the surf with a fect high, is the pr splash ! It was Christing divested of R. Lutz, of Lancaster, Pa. shoes, stockings and outer petticoat,

But you know, striking out holdly for the place where the South was on exhibition in North "Hurrah for old Norje !" cried the

"I have won! I have won the bet !"

"Put about!" shouted the count.

We rushed down to the edge of the

"Mon Dieu ! I cannot swim," cried the count. 'The other men were in the same case. Two of them, however, threw themselves into the water manfully, but were washed back. A water, all shouting orders at once.

You are going out to sea !"

boat was capsized instantly.

She came back with Julia, a very

There was no justice to my mind in charming as ever; but poor Christina had been thrown against the hull of the boat. , She was quite badly into do, while Julia took wing to New-id Count Pasco. "Things are strangely ordered in There was a regiment of them at the this world," I said, as I laid down a ginning to limp heavily about in the same farm. kitchen,

"They always come out right," said

"Oh, by the way, I thought I owed 'Old Norje' some reparation for her debt for me, and to send him and his But she was so pretty, and brilliant, mother out by the next steamer. You grumbled himself into his grave. Why One day I found her in the kitchen not take Jan as farm hand and put comfortable for them. They will ar- before proceeding to smoke it, and to to Julia," I said. We agreed not to tell Christina, but good deal of the language. Poor fond of the patient, affectionate crea-She was brought here by ture with her everlasting chatter of new suit of clothes at Christmas each "mutter and Jan."

The "odds and ends" proved to be a very complete, though plain, plenish-On Monday mother went up to Phila-

A handkerchief waved out of the car three years.

perty of Mr. A.

The longest cucumber ever grown in Carolina. It is forty-seven inches long. The corn crop of Texas this year is estimated at 140,000,000 bushels. The value of the agricultural products of that State is $94,071,998.

The largest tobacco leaf reported this season was grown by John C Dougherty, of Lancaster county, Pa. It is forty-six inches long and twentyseven wide.

William Pfeiffer, of Gunpowder, Md., exhibits a stalk of corn measuring sixteen and a half feet from the root to the top, and ten feet two inches from the root to the ear.

Griffin, Ga., has the largest peach orchard in the South, containing 50,half-read letter from her one day in 000 trees and covering nearly 600 October, full of her gayeties and suc- acres. Four hundred grafted apple cesses, and glanced at Christina, be- trees and 5,000 pear trees stand on the

There are 12,000 head of Jersey catle on the Isle of Jersey and 6,000 on tions from both are nearly 3,000 head per year. Several hundred come to the United States.

A rose bush bearing over 00 buds is the pride of a garden in Estown, old, and Mass. It is thirty-five y it covers over 100 squ feet of ground. A single stem had sixteen buds, and stems having twelve, ten or less were quite numerous.

Smokers of cigars in the cafes in some parts of Germany make it a rule to cut off carefully the end of the cigar deposit the piece so severed in a metal I could hardly finish; the tears box or tray placed to hold it in the cen-"What is the matter? Can you choked me. "I have been very unjust to Julia," I said. in the cafes by a benevolent society which has numerous branches, and the tain number of poor children with a year. The statistics furnished by nineteen of the branches in the Rhenish provinces show that in 1881 no less than 4,500 pounds of tobacco were collected in this way. This was sold for £1,200, a sum which sufficed to prowide an outfit for over 1,700 poor shillings each. The branches of the society are steadily increasing in num-ber, and have doubled within the last he United States for $40. They were made to order for me."

"I pay twelve marks, or $3, per month for my room, with coffee every morning," said another.

"I rode in a beautiful carriage from 11 o'clock until 6 o'clock yesterday. I had a splendid driver. I had beer, and so did he. The day's amusement cost me $3. It would cost more than that for the privilege of taking off your hat to an American hackman."

Other adventures and experiences of a similar character were gone over. 1 have just given enough to show why it is that people of small means in England flock to Saxony. They can live well here for what it would cost them to live poorly at home. Americans have not taken advantage of the inducements offered by Dresden or Leipsie as yet, because Americans do not live like the English on annuities. But to persons in America who have an income from rents or invested capital of say $1,000 a year, the inducements offered by this delightful country are beyond computation.

People Who Live on a Steep Hillside.

Lieutenant Healy, of the United States revenue steamer Corwin, visited the habitations of the natives of King's Island, in the Arctic ocean, a curious people, who live upon a precipitous hillside as no other people live. He says :

The house is erected upon poles. The entrance to each is affected through a hole in the front wall, about fourteen inches in diameter. Having clambored through this entrance one finds himseif in a room about eight feet square, which is the common living room of each house. From the sides of this room are found several apertures similar to the main one of entrance, which lead to as many sleeping apartments. The appearance presented by these houses is, to say the least, unique, and more strikingly so by reason of their great contrast with those of the usual Indian village, which is always built on low sand spits. The principal means of livelihood of these natives are fishing and walrus and seal hunt-ing. To these people the walrus is the more important animal, inasmuch as from its hide and intestines they obtain the covering for their houses and boats, and the ivory they sell tetraders is the most valuable article in demaud. The necessities of their position have stimulated such inventions and developed such superior workmanship as to cause their articles of manufacture to be the most greatly prized of any along the coust to roost upon an axle of a freight car. During the night the car was attached to a train, and when the feathered bird descended from his unsteady perch he failed to recognize the scenes of his childhood. He was in Lima, Indiana, and the man in whose garden the fowl went to scratching got into a fight with the whole neighborhood by accusing everybody of owning the bird.-Boston Journal.

This country may not be ready to go to war with a foreign power on a day's notice, but she could soon find a substitute for cannon balls, provided there were a shortage in this particular. It is estimated that there are a million baseballs in this country, and if they were fired from a cannon at the enemy the destruction would be terrible. The American peace society might object to such an exhibition of cruelty, however, and want scrap iron used in their stead .- Norristonon Herald.

Sad accident : "A man while shaving accidentally cut off his nose. In his excitement he dropped the razer and decapitated one of his toes. Hastily picking up the dismembered por-tions of his unatomy he clapped them to the bleeding wounds and bound them on tightly. After the flesh had grown fast and healed up he removed the bandages and was filled with horror when he found a well developed toe in lieu of a nasal organ, and vice versa. Now, whenever he gets a cold, he has to remove his shoe and stocking in order to blow his nose .- Baltimore American.

The Steam Which Keeps Business Moving.

" A reporter dropped into our largest retail establishment Wednesday.

'You have a great rush of business,' remarked the reporter.

'Yes,' replied the proprietor, ' partly because it is holiday season, but mainly on account of advertising."

' How can you tell whether advertising pays?" "I can tell that advertising pays by stopping it. I've tried it. Trade drops; the tide of purchasers flows some other way.'

'Suppose you should give up advertising?

'I should save a big pile of money, but should lose a bigger pile. You must keep the bollers heated if you want steam. If you bank your fires too long, it takes time to start up. Advertising is the steam which keeps business moving. I've studied the matter.""-Boston Journal.