Nothing of particular importance has transpired in the Cooper district within the past week. The work of drilling, &c., has been somewhat impeded there on account of the floods, and it may be some little time ere we hear of any more gushers of the regulation size from that place. The excitement is still holding its own, however, and the new towns there are being rapidly populated. A post office has been applied for, and doubtless within a month will be established at Forest City; also a telegraph office. The wells, although declining somewhat, as might be expected, are still pouring out a large amount of oil, as will be seen by the following table showing the production for twentyfour hours, taken from the Derrick of

LETTER FROM FLORIDA.

JACKSONVILLE, Feb. 3, 1883. Mr. Editor, and readers of the Republican :-

Realizing that "at home" there is much curiosity regarding this favored "land of flowers," and also many longings to be here, when old Winter wraps his icy mantle around both man and beast, field and forest, I venture these few lines and hope they will prove of interest:

The climate here is certainly de lightful beyond measure. No frozen ears, fingers or toes; instead you frequently see a negro barefoot, going down the river on a raft of logs. Trees and shrubbery are always green as May time, and the golden fruit of the South hangs in profusion from every bough. Now you must not think that every day is bright and fair, for that would be too much like Paradise, and no judicious Creater would ever have made a rival for that celestial place. Some days are dark and rainy and sometimes we have real cold days and severe frost and ice, but such days are very rare, and generally speaking, Florida has a climate that is not equalled by any other state in the Un-

Jacksonville has a beautiful situation on the bank of the St Johns river, and by water and sail together accessable to the north, south, east and west, and the principal import, export and exchange business of the State is centered here. There are a great many good towns all over the state, but Jacksonville is the only city that amounts to any great degree of importance. Here you will find street care, omnibuses, backs and all sorts and sizes of other vehicles, and the streets are thronged with people from morning till eight at night, when most all business censes.

The reason for this, probably, is because of the damp, oppressive atmossay: "Brown's It. Bitters is giving Bitters to be a great appetizer and phere. The Harbor here is alive with all manner of crafts from the tall masted steamer, down to the Jolly boak There are several lines of elegant steamers plying up the river from here and of course rivalry is at fever heat, which affords employment and amusement for the numerous loafers, "gaspipes" and sportsmen. The principal places of recort are the hotels, of which there are a great many, and at which you can get just as little for your money as any place in the world. Then there is the opera house, the skatingrink, the water works, and last but not least, Jones' boat yard, where you can hire a pleasure boat and "go ofloat" and take your girl. If ever you come here you will find more pretty girls to the square zore than any other place in America.

The natives of this state are a poor, ignorant and indolent set, and seem inclined to remain so. It is no uncommon thing to see a cart come to town drawn by a wretched half starved brindle steer, working in shafts; sometimes a large one and a small one are yoked together, and the contrast is simply rediculous. Horses and mules they also work in shafts, and the driver generally rides on his "critters" back. Most evreything that shows enterprise is conducted by northern people, and in fact the city has much the appearance of a northern city. Northern people have been pouring in few years more this will be a northern state in everything but geographical situation.
