rather late this week, hence we can give only the most important item in it, as follows : "Our little village was thrown into a state of intense excitement for a few moments last Sabbath evening. A young man accompanied by three young ladies,-Mary, Cora and Nettie Wolf,-attempted to cross the creek at this point in a john-boat, when they had reached the middle of the stream the boat came in contact with the ferry wire (which had fallen into the water some time during the J. Haslet; toilet case, Miss Sallie Huday) and the result was the capsizing lings; embroidered satin toilet set, of the boat and the contents plunged head foremost into the creek. Fortunately a number of men happened to be sitting on the bank of the creek at the time, and the moment the boat Jas. The Bonner-Kelley Wedding.

This happy event-which may justly be called the event of the seasontook place at the residence of the bride's parents on Thursday evening of last week, and was witnessed by the relatives of the bride and groom, and a large assemblage of the young people of this place, besides quite a number from a distance. At precisely six o'clock, Rev. Hickling pronounced the words which joined the happy couple in holy wedlock, and made Mr. Charles Bonner and Miss May Stanley Kelly man and wife. After congratulations and good wishes had been extended, the guests assembled about the sumptuously spread tables and partook of the many delicious vianda set before them. At eight o'clock the newly wedded pair bid adieu to their friends and took the 8:20 train for an extended tour of the Eastern cities and other places of note, leaving the guests to enjoy themselves to their hearts' content, which they did until a late hour. The affair was one of grandeur and splendor and to say it was heartily enjoyed is but reiterating the expressions of all who were present. Both bride and groom have always been held in the bighest esteem by our citizens, and enjoyed a high station in society, and we join their many friends in wishing them a happy

Presence of Mind.

Four officers sitting in a bungalow in India, writes Miss C. C. Hopley in her recent book, "Snakes," were deep in a game of whist. Suddenly one of them, turning deadly pale, made signs that no one should move or speak. In a hushed whisper he exclaimed :

"Keep still, for heaven's sake! I feel a cobra crawling about my legs ." He knew that timidity was one of the strongest characteristics of the snake, and that, if not disturbed or Alarmed, it would in due time depart of its own accord. All present were accustomed to the stealthy intruders, and did not, happily, lose their pres-ence of mind. They very noiselessly bent down so as to take a survey beneath the table, when, sure enough, there was the unwelcome visitor, a fullsized cobra, twining and gliding about the legs of their helpless friend, Lit-

This year the bark" peelers have invaded the township and the falling of trees and shouts of the army of peelers are heard on all sides.

> Much improvement is manifest in farming and new houses are springing up in all quarters. The schools of the township are excellent, and the board of directors is determined that pupils and parents shall have the full benefit of Pennsylvania's grand school law. A new school house will be put up at Gilfoyle, or Curl, Campbell & Co.'s station forthwith, and needed repairs put on the others. In this connecti n it's only just to the liberality of Curl, Campbell & Co. to state that they give to the board a deed for one acre of ground and all the rough lumber needed in the new house. It is just such men as these that are needed; who not only say they wish the chil- horse, paying him $40.00. dren of employees could go to school, but who, without urging, offer the board liberal help to accomplish the peeling going on near by, and the saw and desired.

All Around the Circle.

Ob, for the monotony of a week continued dry weather.

The rain it raineth almost every lay, and the romantic youth is shut out from the glories of the summer woods by want of a dry pathway on which to tread. The flowers of springtime and early summer time have yielded to the rain even as a stale joke yieldeth to the necessities of the Oil City Derrick. Such a weight and density of foliage as our forests now bear, though the leaves are not nearly grown, one seldom sees unless the has traveled. The smell arising from the ground out in the woods on a warm day at this time is sickening." The roads everywhere exhibit the state of a bad condition in a lseaer or greater degree. In many places what are known as the "back woods" seem to have denounced all claim to even common dryness and present the appearance of a series of mud-holes of the greatest length, width, and depth. possible. What a paradise for ducks and school children ! In Old Forest the rains appear to have been more excessive than in other parts of the county.

In many places the rain storms have been accompanied with heavy winds, although little damage has been done. Yesterday a severe wind storm swept through Harmony township, as did also on Tuesday morning of last week. The storm yesterday was accompanied with hail. Last night the rain fell in torrents again and the display of electricity in the heavens was grand and awful. In many places our farmers were planting corn and potatoes last week, and in some places if they do not plant later will not plant at all.

The potato bug, confined in his movements to dry weather, will direct his efforts principally to the late potntoes.

The punkies, flies, and other peste of the woodland hold high carnival between showers.
