Haw Shall a Man Propose ?-The Question Answered by a Number of Ladies, Mar-ried and Siegle.

THE THING THAT FEW KNOW. "How shall a man propose in order to be successful in his suit?" repeated one of our most intelligent society ladies, whose silver locks only serve to enhance the beauty of her still youthful face. "In my opinion, though all men know well enough how to 'make love, there is not one in a thousand who knows how to propose. My husband spent six months protesting and convincing me of his love, which, by the way, I was well aware from the first, without once asking me the important question, Will you marry me? and finally one day said to me, with a disheartened air, 'You are like all the rest, a perfect order. rest, a perfect enigma. I have spent months trying to win you, and I do not the other fellows to amuse her in that know that I have made any impression upon you; you are as hard to unravel as the scarf you wear around your threat.' 'This,' I exclaimed, in the most inno ent way, 'why, 'tis no diffipoint, took hold of the right string. ling. Everybody is asking who left and -" "His arm took the place of the that smiling infant where the head scarf?" "Well, neither of us have cook of the Marquise de Tamisier ever regretted it."

Suddenly, you cannot expect me to remember while wandering along the Alee des how he did it. I'll yow he went down Acacias, he heard a noise. Drawing on his knees, though you wouldn't from his pocket a long knife, he think it to look at his rotund proportions. And I was silly enough to believe every word he said, and when ther he penetrated the louder he declared solemnly that he would was heard the noise; he passed shoot himself if I did not marry him of course I consented, just to save his | thickest of the thickets, at about 100 life; but I'll not be so silly another time-if he only gives me the chance"

"Don't believe a word of that," chimed in the judge from behind his perceived in a cradle covered with paper. "I was actually compelled to costly lace, the smiling cherub. How ask her to marry me to get rid of the trouble of taking her or some other gill around; I saw she was in love with me, and thought she would do as well as any other. Now, that sums up the whole history of this case."

VIGOROUS COURTSHIP.

A bright-eyed girl, who is a skillful angler for hearts, thinks a young man, to be successful, should propose after a very short acquaintance, take the girl by storm, as it were, while she is pleased with a new beau, and before she has time to tire of him, then follow the proposal up with a vigorous courtship, lots of flowers and bon bons, drives, theatre parties, etc., and, if she consents, insist upon a short engagement by all means.

UNEXPECTED YOWS.

Another well-known blonde beauty, who has created sad havoe, and had much experience in this line, says the only successful way is to propose when least expected. Allow no time for consideration, and then insist that the acceptance must be "now or never."

LOVER'S BORES. One well-known belle and beauty what is the best and most successful studying how to prevent an approach Beaux were all lovely until they became lovers, then they became bores, for they moved, thought and talked constantly of themselves and their happiness, while she wished to be thinking of herself and her own hap-Marriage is quite another thing, is quite easily settled when one finds a suitable partner."

AROUND THE WAIST.

A married lady, in whose household the little god of love certainly made his abode, says the only successful proposition of which she knows anything was made without a word being spoken: "John and I sat looking in the fire a long time, without saying anything, when all at once he put his arm around me, drew me to him and kissed me. When father came in a moment later he said: 'Major, I'm going to steal your daughter.'"

WILY WIDOWERS, A dark-eyed girl, with a tangle of soft brown hair shading her brow, says "if a fellow is desperately in love with a girl, and persistent in his efforts to know exactly how to make love and always successful," She knows one tion of remaining until he was accepted, and the girl had to marry him to get rid of him. A willower beau makes her nervous about the result.

MARRYING IN HASTE.

"The quickest courtship on record," sald one old resident, "was that of Dr. Nick McDowell, who, driving along the street in his buggy one day, saw a remarkable inscription: bu beautiful girl standing at the window. ne He immediately stopped and hitched ICEFSPECNINCEPSPEC lady's name, was ushered into the parlor, announced his own name, said he way 'pleased with her appearance and wished to marry her at once.' THE MOMENTOUS QUESTION. I am through with this professional visit, I'll drive around and get a preacher; if you've made up your mind to marry me by that time, all right!" and he left her, breathless and unable to articulate another word. When he returned they were quietly married. 'No cards.'"

NO "PARLOR" BEAU. A society girl, who evidently has a head for business as well as beaux, says: "No 'parlor beau' need ever propose with any hope of success, for after a girl is compelled to bend her whole energies to the task of entertaining him 'quietly at home' for six months she would be appalled at the proposition to spend the balance of her life 'quietly at home.'" She explains that a "parlor beau" is that selfish, egotistical individual who, being a man, has as much variety and change without any assistance in the way of theatres, parties and drives, but leaves way .- St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

His heart was quite overwhelmed with joy as he picked up the baby, but what must have been his feelings when he afterward opened and read the contents of a sealed envelope lying beneath the pillow. "Whoever you may be that finds this child," said the letter, "bring it up tenderly, and in the path of duty, and not only will you be rewarded by your conscience, but practically. Never will I aban-don you. I shall watch over you as you watch over her, and when she has attained her majority you will receive a fortune. Then, if God and men permit, I will reveal my identity; meanwhile, to cover your expenses, I leave under the lace of her cradle a package of bank notes to the value of 15,000 francs." Oratory on Inanimate Objects.

A law student is reported to have been laughed out of Lafayette, Ind., because detected in the act of airing his eloquence to his father's wood-pile. As if there was anything to be ashamed of in this sort of practice, or a man could be perfect in any gift without exercising it. Henry M. Brackenbride, in his very interesting "Recollections," mentions the fact that when he first came to the bar in Baltimore, in 1808 and succeeding years, it was his custom to cross over to "Whetstone Point" (the busiest part of Locust Point to-day), and there exercise himself in declamation under the shelter of some tall hedgerows. One day, as he was entering his bosky dell, he found some one speaking in advance of him, and, approaching with precaution, found the great William Pinkney rehearsing with care every point, senwin her, he is sure to gain his suit tence and gesture of a speech which, Widowers understand this point, and next day, he delivered in court as impromptu. In these days of rowing giants and athletic heroes fine physical development is more observed than ever before since the time of the Athenian games. A man who shows the elements of physical power is looked up to far more than in the days of our ancestors possibly because there are few specimens of well-developed manhood than then. An emissary of this paper met a magnificent specimen of physical power a few days since in the person of Dr. A. W. McNames, of Waterloo. His muscles, which showed unusual development, were as bard as wood. At his request the writer sought to pinch him in the arms or legs, but found it whelly impossible. A realization of what is meant by an iron man was fully made manifest.

"Have you always been so stalwart as this?" inquired the news gatherer.

"Not by any means," was the reply. "When a young man I was always strong and active and felt that I could accomplish auything. This feeling so took possession of me on one occasion that I attempted to lift a tox which four men found it impossible to more. I succeeded in placing it on the wagon, but in two minutes from that time I was unconscious and remained so for hours and when I recovered consciousness I vomited a large quantity of blood. From that day I began to grow weak and sickly. I believed that I had suffered some internal injury and experienced a general debility, which seemed similar to the effects produced by malaria. My back was very weak. I had no appetite, and at times loathed food. My lips were parched and cracked. My head leit as though it were entirely open at the top and it pained me on the side intensety. In six weeks' time I had fallen away from 103 pounds to less than 170. I was in a most wretched condition. I was not in a flighty condition by any means for the doctor, on leaving fown the day following, bade me good by e, raying ha never expected to see me again, for I was saffering with Bright's disease of the kidneys in its last stages. Within the next few days more than iw nty friends came to bid me good-bye. Among the number was Dr. sohn L. Clark. He asked me what I had used in the way of medicines. I told him, lie then recommended a remedy of which I had heard much, but all out which I was very skeptical. If faith were an element of power it certainly was lacking in my case."

"And so you did not try it?"

When I was studying medicine at Ann Arbor, Mich., I used to vow with the rest of the class that we would fight all such remelles at all times. When a man comes down to the last hour, however, and bids his wife and friends good-bye, such bigoted prejudices as there all vanish, I can assure you, and any remedy that can cure is gladly welcomed."

"And how have you been since then?"

"As well—or better, than before."

"Do you still evert your strength?"

"Certainly. But I do not over-evert, as formerly. My strength is increasing every day, and my health is number one. Mr. Thomas A. Howand, of Honey Grove, Fannin County, Texas, under date of April 5, 1883, writes as follows:

"I have been suffering during several years from severe illness, and a general breaking down of my physical system, and have tried the treatment and prescriptions of many doctors far and near, and traveled to the Hot Springs and other mineral springs famous for their remedial qualities, drinking the waters and bathing systematically in their healing depths, but all to no avail, as Isteadily failed in heaith; and although informed by my physicians that my allments and weaknesses were the result of kidney disease of a dangerous character, they could give me nothing to cure me. During the past two years my sufferings at times were dreadful, and I had the most indescribable pains in the regions about the kidneys, the paroxysms of which were so severe as to render it impossible for me to sleep. While in this deplorable and discouraged condition I was persuaded to try Hunt's Remedy, and after using less tham half a bottle my great sufferings and paroxysms of pain were entirely relieved, and I could sleep better and longer than I had in two years before, and although I am now on my third bottle only my improvement is very remarkable, and I regret that I did not know of the wonderful carative powers of Hunt's Remedy before, as it would have saved me years of suffering. I heartily recommend it to all afflicted with any kidney disease or disease of the urinary organs."

SCROFULA

Whether inherited or developed by circumstances, minioritune or neglect, if not suppressed, progresses by a gradual, unobserved and paintess process. The glands enlarge, the skin breaks out in sores and ulcers, the flesh wastes, and the bones decay. The best remedy for these serious evils is unquestionably Hood's Sarsaparilla. It purifies the blood, restores the wasted form, drives away that tired feeling which invalids complained, and infuses energy and spirit into every fibre.

Like an Evil Spirit. In olden times it was thought that evil spirits came in through cracks and keyholes. The generally approved way to keep them out was to plug up the keyholes and stop the cracks with cotton. Notwithstanding these preventive measures, the evil things had their own way and often came in as they pleased.

So comes malaria now-a-days. We try to keep it out of the keyhole and it comes in by the crack. We stop up the crack, and lo! it comes from a leak in the plumbing, or an opening from some neglected drain, or from some unsuspected source and unguarded direction.

We cannot always keep malaria out, but we can give it battle and drive its effects from our systems. If Brown's Iron Bitters is taken in time, malaria has not a ghost of a chance. This is the great family medicase, Your druggist sells it, and you ought to keen a bottle in the house,
