PICKPOCKET'S PURSUIT. The King of Pic packets and His Explois - Training Hoys in the Science of Abstracting.

"Pickpockets are a class of thieves who must be especially fitted for the business," said a headquarters detective to a Chicago News reporter. "They go through a course of instruction as a general thing, and learn it as a child learns to read. But no instructors will accept as a pupil any one with short, stumpy It requires for pickpockets, jus as it does for playing the violin, long, lean, flexible, and even sensitive fingers.

"Do you mean to say that there are regular instructors in the art of digital appropriation?"

"Oh, yes; old experts who have reduced it to a science. Some of them who are advanced in years, or otherwise incapacitated for active work on their own hook, devote all their time to instructing thieves and putting up jobs for It is a peculiar profession, and them. requires peculiar talents, as well as peculiar surroundings and circumstances to make it a success. The pickpocket, out of a large city, ceases to be a 'great artist,' and in a poorer town or a village would degenerate into a mere burglar, or even become honest or prosperous. The pickpocket never commits violence, as the footpad, the burglar or the gar-He performs his work un roter does. ostentatiously, unobtrusively-I might say delicately. He is a judge of character. He is a sort of detective too. He is a sort of detective in his way, knowing at a glance the kind of a man whose watch is likely to be solid and valuable, and not belonging to the order of flash jewelry. Long experience has made him about as good a judge of the value of a thing as a jeweler or a pawnbroker, There is a daily danger in his mode of life which, no doubt, has attractions for the venturous. He goes forth with his liberty in his hand. He lives in the face of danger. He sees companions and friends perpetually struck off the roll of gentlemen-at-large. He knows not when his own day of doom may arrive." "Does his business pay, generally speaking ?"

"Hardly. That is to say, there are very few rich thieves of any description. They nearly all die paupers, or in prison, or in their boots; many at the hands of many of them has it been of use? Parrish has grown rich from his multitudinous robberies, and owns valuable real estate in Chicago, New York, and many other large cities. He of Parrish, and was quite as well known at one time on this side of the Atlantic, but he graduated into a bank-sneak before his final arrest." "Do professional pickpockets usually operate singly or in gangs?" "Some of them prefer to go it alone, but as a general thing they travel in or-ganized mobs of three. It takes three men to do a neat and safe job, except in dense crowds, where the usual precautions are not necessary; but, even then, they nearly always work in gangs. In the parlance of the craft these three individuals are known respectively as the 'wire,' the 'stall,' and the 'cover.' The 'wire' is the pickpocket himself; the 'stall' does duty by attracting the man's or woman's attention while the operator's fingers are in the pocket; the 'cover' places himself in a position so that the movements of the 'wire' cannot be observed. It is very often the case that the 'wire' is a boy, while the other two are men. For the mere business of relieving pockets of their contents boys are the ablest adepts. Many a street arab has been driven to the work by want and bad company at a very early age, becoming a professional long before he has attimed his growth." ture this article elsewhere. I have noticed that when a female pickpocket travels alone she preys upon her sex almost exclusively. When pickpockets are working in a great crowd, as I said before, they go in gangs. The chief manipulator goes ahead. He selects a victim, 'fans' his pockets to see if there is anything in it, then slips his hand daintily into it and takes out the purse of money, which he passes back to one of his comrades. Sometimes it changes hands three or four times in as many seconds, and even if the operator is nabbed immediately after the work is done, nothing is found on his person to convict him of the theft."

"What do you mean by 'fanning' a man's pocket?" "That is simply the slang for feeling it in the light, cautious manner which is learned by training, A sharp thief never puts his hand into a man's pocket at random, but goes through the 'fanning' process at first, and locates the object he desires to 'pinch.' A clever boy, gaining a character for a light and successful hand, is well eared for by his older pals. whom was arrested, tried and convicted, least $15,000 and sentenced to six months' imprisonment. During the circus season swarms of pickpockets follow the traveling shows about the country, plying their trade in the vast crowds of people that are attracted by the exhibition. In the past few years, however, the proprietors of some of the leading circuses have abated this nuisance to a considerable extent by employing an efficient corps of special detectives to accompany the show and protect its patrons,"

Black Flags and Yellow Flags.

The London Times thus explains the history and significance of the two "Black Flags" and "Yellow l'lags," which have occurred constantly in the cable news from Tonquin: The Taeping rebellion broke out in the province of Kwangsi, and after extending across China to within sight of the capital it was finally overcome by the joint efforts of the imperial commanders and of General Gordon. In 1865 those of the rebels who had either remained in Kwangsi or who had had the good fortune to escape there were expelled the province by the emperor's lieutenants and driven across the border into Tonquin. They found a secure place of refuge in the mountains on either side of the Songooi valley, but far from wishing to exasperate the Chinese authorities they manifested a disposition to in obedience to their beact hest and to carry out their projects. In numbers their fighting men were at this period computed at five thousand. At first Watsong, said to have been one of the principals of Taeping Wang's followers, was the recognized chief of this band of exiles, who were accompanied by their wives and families. The Anamese troops were repeatedly sent against these troublesome and self-invited guests, but only to experience defeat; and in 1868 these Chinese rebels were in unquestioned possession of the right bank of the Songooi above the capital. The assistance of the Chinese viceroy of the Two Kwang was invoked and accorded with such good results that these assailants were expelled from the low-lying country and confined to the upper course of the river. A division in the chiefship of the band came almost at the same moment, to give increased effect to the interference of the Chinese authorities. Watson died, and two chiefs were elected in his stead, one by the original followers of the Taepings, the other by those who had joined their comrades. Fear and guilt are the Watsong in the hope of plunder or from passions that sway them. There is no the desire to clude the pursuit of justice. uch thing as h or among thieves. The Morelli, however, who in 1670 were the principal bead manufacturers, had four ships at sea carrying beads to the East on their own account, and they became so rich that they entered the rank of the Venetian nobility on payment of a sum of 100,000 ducats to the republic. Since 1815 this industry has become so important as to give at the present time employment to about 15,-000 persons. The traffic is carried on with all the world, but the principal exportation of beads is to the ports of Asia and Africa. An extraordinary stimulus was given to this industry a few years ago by the prevailing taste for beads for trimming ladies' dresses. A great extension of the manufacture took place and the labor was paid so high that all who could do so gave up their usual trades for beadmaking. But when the demand for beads declined most of the workmen who had been allured by fancy wages to the bead manufacture were thrown out of work and compelled to return to their former occupations. Whatever be the case, beadmaking has always been the special privilege of Venice, in spite of all foreign attempts to manufac-

A House Made of Birds' Bones.

Among the curiosities of the exhibition in the American Institute of New York is a house built of the bones of birds by Alphonse Zeigler, the chef of the Grosvenor hotel. Even the delicate French and American flags are made of the dyed bones of birds. Inside the With such 2 lad it is well worth their while to behave fairly and give him a liberal share of the spoils. The most expensive English election contest on record took place in York-shire in 1807, when Lord Milton, the eldest son of Lord Fitzwilliam, came forward upon the Liberal side, and the Hon. Henry Lascelles, the eldest son of Lord Harewood, was the champion of the Tories. The Liberals had a majority of 187 votes, and their expenses were £107,000; the Tory bills were £102,000.

In some parts of Italy the inhabitants retain the provincial habits of their ancestors of the early ages. One of the most curious customs still observed relates to their marriages. The bride is dragged from home by main strength. The struggle begins in her own room, where she must cling, shricking, as she is torn away by her married women friends. Among the wealthier classes the practice of announcing the approach of the bridal pair to church by blowing of trumpets still continues.

How to Avoid Getting Fat. A new book on "Corpulence and its Treatment" has lately been published in Germany by Professor Ebstein, of Gottingen. He is not, like the English "savior of the stout," full of overflowing thankfulness for relief from disease; probably he has not even suffered from it, for corpulent men are rarely stern and strict. His method also differs from that of Banting. According to Ebstein the primary cause of corpulency is the want of sufficient energy to renounce the socalled attractions of life. He firmly maintains that fat is produced merely by overeating and drinking. Water and drinking cures are altogether condemned by Professor Ebstein; and while the Banting system teaches that "fat makes fat," this doctrine is directly opposed by Professor Ebstein, in whose ideal of fare for those suffering from corpulency fat forms a great feature. "The 250 forms a great feature. grammes of bacon," says Professor Ebstein, "which our emperor ordered to be delivered daily to all soldiers taking part in the Freuch campaign of 1870, are, so to speak, an official acknowledgment of the importance of fat in the rational nourishment of a hard-working man."

The annexed bill of fare is that proposed by Professor Ebstein for an average case of corpulency, the invalid being supposed to be forty-one years of age, and having suffered from 'cereasing stontness for twenty-five years. The discase is supposed to be contracted by insufficient bodily exercise, a diet consisting of such things as are hurtful, among which are named all sweet dishes and those containing much albumen and those devoid of a sufficient quantity of Breakfast-A large cup of black tea without milk or sugar; fifty grammes of white bread, or toasted brown bread with plenty of butter.

Dinner-Soup (frequently and with bone marrow), 120 to 180 grammes meat, boiled or roasted with fat gravy-fat meat being preferable; a small quantity of vegetables, particularly liguminous, but also all kinds of cabbage. Turnips are excluded because of the sugar contained in them; potatoes are altogether excluded. After dinner some fresh fruit, when in season, as dessert; a salad or kaked fruit without sugar. Soon after inner a large cup of black tea, without milk or sugar.

Supper-In winter regularly, in sum mer occasionally, a large cup of black tea without milk or sugar. An egg or some fat roast beef, or both, sometimes ham, smoked or fresh fish, about thirty grammes of white bread, with plenty of butter, and occasionally a small quantity of cheese and some fresh fruit. -Pall Mall Gazette.

It will be seen by the following letter from Rev. Charles First, of Waterbury, Conn., that men oftentimes representing the highest callings are brought by disease and sickness to a level with all charses. Medical and professional men generally dislike to countenance proprietary medicines except in extreme cases. However, the case of Mr. Pike is an exception to the general rule. He believes it a duty to suffering humanity to jublish to the world the merits of a good article as well as to instruct a few spiritually:

to rublish to the world the merits of a good article as well as to instruct a few spiritually: I regard it a duty as well as a privilege to give my testimony in support of so valuable an article as Hunt's Remedy. I have used it with great satisfaction, and consider it the very best medicine in use. I am lifty-seven (57) years of ago, and though a native of Boston have spent many years in the South and a number in Connecticut. From the nature of my calling I am constantly changing about. Two years ago I contracted a nature of my calling I am constantly changing about. Two years ago I contracted a weakness of the kidneys, which was apparently made worse by drinking the water in the different places where I resided. For a long time I suffered severely, and used many so-called cares, but none of them did me a particle of good. Finally I purchased a bottle of Hant's Remedy of Mr. Laker, the druggist, with the guarantee that it would help me, as it afterward proved. It is now my purpose to speak well of a medicine that has yielded results so gratifying to me. I sincerely believe that any one who will use it will indorse my statement. "Eleven years our daughter suffered on a bed of misery,

"From a complication of kidney, liver,
rheumatic trouble and Norvous debility,
"Under the care of the best physicians,
"Who gave her disease various names,
"The results."

"But no relief,
"And now she is restored to us in good health by as simple a remedy as Hop Bitters, that we had shunned for years before using THE PARENTS.

Father is Getting Well. 'My daughters say : 'How much better father is since he used Hop Bitters."

He is getting well after his long suffering from a disease declared incurable."

And we are at glad that he used your bitters."

A NOTED BUT UNTITLED WOMAN.

The above is a good likeness of Mrs. Lydis E. Pinks ham, of Lynn, Mass., who above all other human beings may be truthfully called the "Dear Friend of Woman," as some of her correspondents love to call her. Ehs is realously devoted to her work, which is the outcome of a life-study, and is obliged to keep six lady assistants, to help her answer the large correspondence which daily pours in upon her, each bearing its special burden of suffering, or joy at release from it. Her Vegetable Compound is a medicine far good and not evil purposes. I have personally investigated it and am satisfied of the truth of this.

am satisfied of the truth of this.
On account of its proven merits, it is recommended and prescribed by the best physicians in the country.
One says: "It works like a charm and saves much pain. It will cure entirely the worst form of falling of the uterus, Leucorrhosa, irregular and painful Menstruation, all Ovarian Troubles, Inflammation and Ulceration, Floodings, all Displacements and the con-sequent spinal weakness, and is especially adapted to the Change of Life."

It permeates every portion of the ystem, and gives new life and vigor. It removes faintness, flatulency, destroys all craving for stimulants, and relieves weakness of the stomach. It cures Bloating, Headaches, Kervous Prostration, General Doblity, Skeplesmess, Depression and Indigestion. That feeling of bearing Depression and indigestion. That teeling of occaring down, causing pain, weight and tackacks, is always permanently cured by its use. It will at all times, and under all circumstances, act 'n harmony with the law that governs the female system.

It costs only $1 per bottle or sir for $5, and is sold by druggists. Any advice required as to special cases, and the names of many who have been restored to perfect health by the use of the Vegetable Compound, can be
