—James Fitzgerald, whose sudden death occurred on the morning of the 10th, was a citizen of Tionesta township of several years standing. By industry and economy he purchased a good farm about two miles below this place, near Hunter's Station, and had it under good cultivation. He leaves a wife, several children and many old friends to mourn his loss.

—Perry McCalmont, who lives near the mouth of Stewarts Run, five miles below Tionesta, comes to the front with the first rattlesnake story of the season. On Thursday of last week he went to a den on what is known as "long ridge," near his place and slew 23, and on Sunday last, in company with two cousins, Vet. Morris and Alex. McCalmont, he dispatched 25 of the reptiles. These, with three that had been killed there on a previous day, made a grand total of 51 rattlesnakes, besides some 15 or 20 that escaped. They ranged from one to four feet in length, and all had rattles. This takes the cake, we guess, and while it seems like a big story it is vouched for on the best of authority.

MURDER WILL OUT!

The Murderer of Austin Ball Captured.

The Louisville Courier Journal of the 19th, gives the following particulars of the capture of one of the murderers of Austin Ball, mention of which we made last week:

The peculiar and unexplained death of Ball, who was found dead on a lumber raft at the foot of Campbell street a week ago, has attracted a great deal of attention in that locality, and the more the matter was discussed the more evident it became that he was the victim of a foul tragedy. The testimony of Connell, the fisherman, before the Coroner's jury put to rest all doubts as to whether there had been any one besides Ball on the raft, but as he did not pay particular attention to those he saw there was but little prospect of finding the men he saw. And then again the mere fact, if established, that these men did leave the raft Tuesday morning, 12 hours before the dead body was found, would not be satisfactory evidence that they had committed the crime, and after the Coroner's jury returned their verdict it was supposed that the matter would attract no further attention. There was one man, however, who began to lay his plans to ferret out the perpetrators of the crime as soon as he found that the affair was shrouded in mystery. That man was Officer Koehenroth, who was on duty on the Point the night before the dead body was found.

On Monday night previous to the finding he was on his boat, and while watching some parties who were slipping about the river front, he saw four men go on the raft which Ball had charge of, and he took a good look at them. About 4 o'clock on the next day he was in the vicinity again, and hearing some noise on the raft he went down to the water's edge just below to listen and learn what was going on. While he was watching four men left the raft, and he recognized them as the same four who visited the place early in the night. He saw nothing to cause him to suppose that anything irregular was going on, but he took a good look at the mysterious visitors and discovered that they were all colored, and that one of them was a roustabout on the Kentucky river packet whom he had seen frequently in that vicinity. He supposed that they were visiting an acquaintance, and paid but little more attention to them. He was off duty when the body was found, and did not learn of the suspicious circumstances connected with the affair till the next day, and it was not until the inquest was held that the fact that Ball had any valuables became known. Various other small details that were brought out enabled Koehenroth to put his observations into such a shape as to establish the fact that a murder had been committed, and that the men he saw approach and leave the raft had something to do with it. He knew that the Kentucky river roustabout was named Tom Sanders, and he began a search for him. He learned that he had stopped on Popular street, between Shelby and Campbell, during the stay of the steamer Fannie Freese when down last trip; and further that Sanders had left on the boat for the Kentucky river on Tuesday morning. The officer conducted his investigation very cautiously, and found that the steamer Fannie Freese would return to the city Monday, and he watched for her coming. When she arrived he went to look for Sanders, and found him, and on searching him found a watch and chain which answered the description of that worn by Austin Ball. He looked Sanders up at Clay street station as a suspected felon, and at a late hour last night had strong hopes of catching his three comrades. The officer is positive that he has the right man, and that a strong chain of circumstantial evidence can be established without any trouble.

Colorado Nuggets.

Agreeable to promise I will send a brief account of what is going on here at present: I arrived in Denver via Denver short line of the U. P. R'y on the 10th. Denver has not changed much during the past two years, except that times are unexceptionally dull, with no immediate prospect of becoming better. Railway industries are entirely prostrate, and there is a very dark outlook for all the roads running into the city here. The Denver & Rio Grande, which three years ago was a recognized power, is now very much on the decline. The Denver, South Park & Pacific, Denver, Utah & Pacific and the Colorado Central Railroads, having the Union Pacific backing them, will be able to pull through. The Denver & New Orleans Railway will probably pull through and may extend on toward the latter end of its title. The Colorado Coal & Iron Co., has closed its works and in consequence the D & R. G. R. R., loses about $125,000 per month in freights, which looks very much like a "black eye" to the present management. Without other industries spring up soon, Colorado will be a very dull State. Her mines and their stocks are running low with comparatively no new discoveries. Of course I have not been over very much of the state as yet, but if other parts do not open up better than what I have seen here I would advise my "Keystone" friends to stay where they are.

I was somewhat disappointed on my arrival in Denver to find many of my old acquaintances gone and the D. & R. G., offices filled by strangers. President Lovajoy, on April 1st, summarily dismissed Gen'l Manager Dodge, Chief Engineer McMurtrie and Supt. of Telegraph Woodward, and with them went their assistants, most of whom I found in different parts of the city, and with whom I have had a jollification meeting ever since. To the present officials I had only to introduce myself as a former employee to receive a hearty welcome and the courtesy of the "old Rio Grande" in toto. The Denver, South Park & Pacific, unsolicited on my part at once extended to me the courtesy of passes between "all stations and all stations" for thirty days. To-morrow, May 13, I expect to join Messrs. Webb Horton of Sheffield, and Horace Crary of New York, who are at present at Colorado Springs, and go with them to Leadville, where I shall take the D. S. P. & P. R'y., for Gunnison, and the D. & R. G., for Grand Junction, then the Rio Grande Western to Salt Lake and Ogden, while they will return to Pueblo and then via of the A. T. & S. F., the Atlantic and Pacific, and the Southern Pacific, to California. I will write you more fully from Leadville and Ogden. The snow on the ranges extends down to about the middle. The summits of Say's, Gray's, Pike's Spanish peaks are deeply covered with snow. Crops are all in the ground, and the "voice of buffalo is not heard in the land." Respy yours.

F. F. WHITTEKIN, Denver, Colo., May 12, 1884

MEMORIAL DAY—PROGRAMME.

On Friday May 30, we should pay tribute to the memory of our fallen Comrades. 1. Comrades will meet at Headquarters at 10 A. M., sharp. Every comrade who can is expected to appear in uniform, and with white gloves if possible. 2. The Post Band and Hickory Cornet Band will report to the Commander for duties of the day; likewise singers, who are expected to perform the Choral duties of the day, anthems and odes to be selected by their leaders. 3. A cordial invitation extended to all Veteran Soldiers, societies, Sunday Schools and public generally. The youths are expected to take a prominent part. They should be arranged in two ranks facing inward toward the main avenue to the Cemetery, each child having one or more bunches of flowers; when the Post has nearly arrived at the Cemetery they will pass between the lines of children, comrades receiving flowers, children at the same time singing an ode. Children will meet at Presbyterian Church as they did last year ready to form in and march ahead of the Post. 4. At 10:30 o'clock P. M., sharp, the Post will march from their Hall for Riverside Cemetery in the order directed by the Ritual. Veterans who have not joined the Post will march with it. Other organizations, and citizens generally, will follow the Post.

Arriving at the Cemetery the following order of exercises are announced.

- 1. Ode by the choir. 2. Post Commander's address. 3. Ode, to be followed by a Dirge by the Band. 4. Prayer by the Chaplain. 5. Ode. 6. Ceremonies of Decoration of graves as per Ritual. 7. Calling the roll. Dirge by the Band. 8. After decoration of graves Martial Band will sound the "Assembly Call," when Post will form to hear the Orator of the Day. 9. Oration by Rev. W. L. Riley. 10. Ode. 11. Benediction. 12. Post and procession will then reform and march to the grave of Lieut. John Range, a soldier of the Revolutionary war, and original settler of Tionesta, whose grave will be decorated by the Chaplain, Rev. Henry Rhodes, with appropriate ceremonies. After which Post and procession will again form and march to the Post Headquarters, where they will disband after duties of the day.

The following Committees have been appointed: On music—J. H. Dingman and T. F. Ritchey; on Flowers and Decoration Misses Cora Knox, Effie Clark, Maude Van Gieson, Ida Paup, Reta Proper, Minnie Hunter, Lena Grove, Maggie Robinson, Mattie Morrow, Laura B. Johnson, Alwilda Adams, May Agnew, Minnie Lackey, Sarah Carr, Annie Jackson, Alice Hoover, Rosa Black, Dessie Rhodes, Katie Canfield, Saddle Anderson. We trust every member of these committees will do their duty to aid in a suitable observance of the day. By Order of Commander.

STRAYED.

A light red cow, white spot between horns and on shoulder and flanks, long body. A liberal reward for any information. D. W. Clark, Tionesta, Pa.

Stewarts Run Items.

Farmers are busy planting potatoes and corn.

School has commenced with Miss Lewis as teacher; we are all glad to welcome her back, and hope that she will pass a pleasant time here while her school lasts.

Miss Lin Zahniser commenced teaching at the Allenier School last Monday.

Robbert Everit of Wisconsin, who has been visiting his father here, has gone to Bradford where he expects to spend part of the summer.

Bromley and Zahniser talk of moving their saw-mill up to Tubbs Run; we wish them a safe journey and good success.

J. A. Dawson is somewhat better, and getting able to ride out once in awhile.

Mr. H. Coleman, from Allentown, N. Y., is visiting friends and relatives here.

Hickory Waves.

Farming is going on as usual. Planting corn and potatoes is the programme.

Our friend Caleb Middleton is about to erect a new dwelling house for himself and—

Mr. John Robertson, of Tylersburg, is the guest of Mrs. Green and family.

Mr. Brace's mill on Prather Run, above Hickory, has shut down, having finished the contract.

Emma Allison has commenced her summer term of school on Church Hill.

Mr. Phil. Boarts and wife are at Brookston visiting friends.

Mr. Setley is now occupying the house vacated by John Griggs.

Miss Stratton will commence a series of meetings in the Methodist Church, next Monday evening.

Mr. Geo. Megar is the guest of Commissioner Henderson's family at present.

Our town and surrounding community has, within a short time, been called to mourn the death of one of our most esteemed young men, Austin Ball. It has cast a gloom over his young friends and especially the band boys, as he was one of their number. We but voice the sentiment of everybody when we say that a sad calamity has befallen our whole community in the death of Austin Ball.
