Convention Supplement.

We this week present our county readers with a handsome 12-column supplement giving the full proceedings of the great National Republican Convention at Chicago. We feel sure our efforts in this direction will be fully appreciated.

—The Presbyterian Church is undergoing repairs and will be somewhat remodeled. A recess will be built in the rear of the pulpit which will add much to the appearance as well as comfort of the building. —It will be laughable to read how the fusion sheets will try to explain the handsome vote cast at the Republican primaries last Saturday. Their pitiful efforts to keep voters away from the polls didn't amount to shucks. Ha, ha!

—Mrs. T. J. Payne of Tylersburg, met with a painful accident while a visiting friend in East Brady, on the 30th ult. Being unaccustomed to the house she mistook the cellar-way for the hall-way, and before she could recover fell to the bottom of the stairs, sustaining a fracture of an arm.

—A rural subscriber wrote to an editor to stop his paper, wound up with these wise reflections: "I think folks ought to spend their munny for paypers, m' daddy diddend, and everybody sed he was the intelligentest man in the kentry, and had the smartest family of boiz that ever dugged tater!"

—Rev. M. M. Pollock, United Presbyterian, will preach in the Presbyterian church next Friday evening at 8 o'clock. He will also preach on next Sabbath morning and evening. Immediately after the morning's sermon the sacrament of the Lord's Supper will be observed. The hour for Saturday's services will be made known on Friday evening.

—"Fog in February brings frost in May." The foregoing prophecy is as old as the hills. There was fog on the mornings of February 3, 4, 12, 13, 14 and 28. There was frost on the mornings of May 3, 12, 13, and 29. Quite a coincidence. Now, you weather prophets, take note of the fog in February, and you can tell what time in May to expect frost.—Parker Phoenix.

—Uncle Jake Zeigler of the Butler Herald has announced himself as a Democratic candidate for Legislature in that county. John Lowry of the Indiana Times was nominated by the Republicans in that county for the same office, while G. S. Crosby of the Kittanning Free Press was nominated in Armstrong county for Congress. To a fellow surrounded by the foliage of a tree it looks as though newspaper men will eventually rise in the world.—Clarion Democrat.

—Mr. A. Holeman of Pleasantville met with an accident on Wednesday of last week which it was feared might prove fatal, but at last accounts he was steadily recovering. He was driving a spirited horse on the road between Shamburg and Pleasantville when the animal took fright at something and ran away, upsetting the buggy and throwing Mr. H. violently to the ground. He was picked up in an unconscious state, and it was several hours before he regained consciousness. He was badly bruised about the head and body. The animal was the same one that ran away from Mr. O. B. Hoskins in this place two or three years ago.

The Late Selden T. May.

Last week, after our forms had been put on the press, a dispatch was received conveying the sad intelligence of Mr. May's death, so that only a mere mention could be made by us.

Some four weeks ago, Mr. May, while turning a horse loose in a pasture was kicked by the animal in the face, sustaining severe injuries, which at first were not considered really dangerous. His condition became worse, however, about two weeks ago, and sinking rapidly he died on Wednesday morning last, June 4, 1884. An ardent friend writes the following true sketch of Mr. May:

The subject of this sketch was born in the State of New York in the year 1812, where his father Rev. H. May was stationed as a minister. He died at Norristown, Pa., on the 4th inst., where he has resided since he removed from Tionesta in 1865. In his youth he came with his father to Franklin, Pa., and from thence came with him to Tionesta, where he spent the greater part of his life. Of Puritan stock, he possessed many of the ennobling traits that distinguished his ancestors, his faith in God was identical with theirs, yet free withal from austerity. He possessed original traits of character, and all his friends will remember his pleasing conversation. His original observations, plentifully interspersed with anecdotes, casting sunshine all around, was coupled with words of encouragement for the despondent. Truly the world was better because he lived in it. Life was neither with him a vale of tears nor a comedy but he possessed a happy faculty of making others that were cast in a more gloomy mould, so to speak, happier. At Norristown he became a useful citizen, he could not be otherwise. He served as an Alderman there, and since then has been a member of the school board of that city, filling the office with credit to himself and a benefit to the people. It seemed hard that this genial man whom all loved so well, who loved to see others so happy, who made others better, who possessed "Charity for all and malice toward none," should be a sufferer at the last and die, but death does not end all, and to those of his acquaintances who survive him pleasant memories will ever cling of a loved and honored friend, whom they will delight to greet in the spirit land.

All his old friends will heartily endorse the following sentiment from the Franklin News:

Throughout his life he was a true man, useful in the community, gentle and pure, ever youthful and genial in spirit, overflowing with the grace of hospitality, modest in demeanor, firm in principle, yet tempered with a kindly humor that lent a peculiar charm to all about him. The old friends of Mr. May in this city and elsewhere will attest those sterling qualities of the man which knit them to him in the bonds of lasting friendship. He was one of nature's noblemen, and his death leaves a void that will be felt in the circle of those that loved him. His wife died several years ago, leaving no children.

WEST HICKORY. T. D. Whitcomb in clearing the ground just below the depot on which he will erect a planing mill. Benson Brae is putting up a blacksmith shop. Mr. Whitcomb and W. P. Siggins talk of embarking in the mercantile business here soon. Mr. Brae and Mr. Whitcomb will put up dwelling houses as will also other parties, this summer.

West Hickory expects to boast of the finest school house in Forest county ere the Summer has come and gone—barring the one that Tionesta expects to put up, and should surely build if she consults her own interests wisely.

A brakeman was injured on this,

Tuesday morning, at Dawson. The engine of the morning freight standing on the main track, was moving a car from the switch to the main track. A plank was placed with one end against the engine and the other against the car. The brakeman injured was walking between the engine and holding the plank which broke from the pressure striking and cutting him and throwing him against the side of the car. His injuries were attended to by Dr. Siggins and are not as serious as they might have been.

Jack Siggins's house is undergoing a thorough renewing that is adding to its elegance and comfort.

By THE WAY.

To the Golden Gate's.

Taking the Central Pacific westward, on board of the "fast express and mail," I was wheeled along the shores of the Great Salt Lake at a very high rate of speed. The C. P. R'y equipment is simply first-class—steel rail, rock ballast and good ties. In time we passed out of the Salt Lake valley in to the arid hill districts. Elko is a pretty little town six hours west of Ogden in the "hilly country," but still on the Humboldt river. The Humboldt River is one of the most remarkable rivers your correspondent has ever seen. The valley is very wide and the stream passes from one bank or hill of the valley to the other, a distance of probably ten miles, and making a short bend retraces its course to within a few hundred feet of itself to the opposite side of the valley. Thus "making a run" of twenty miles and yet has moved towards its mouth directly but, perhaps, a quarter of a mile. This being a characteristic of the stream it is not out of the way to estimate its length 1800 miles. There is some fine land along the Humboldt to the lakes of the same name.

From there westward the country is dry and uninteresting, but as you ascend to the Sierras the scenery becomes more and more beautiful. Clipping up toward the summits our engine labored faithfully and soon we began to descend. The scenery is very similar so that of Colorado, of which I have written very much and will not repeat here. In the short space of twenty-two hours after leaving Ogden engine No. 104, C. P. R'y, landed us in the Great Pacific city—San Francisco.

Having but little time to spend I took occasion to call, at once, on Gen'l Manager Towne, of the C. P., to thank him for his kindness in "passing" me over his road. I also had the pleasure of shaking the hand of my fraternal friend S. S. Montague, Chief Engineer of the Great Central Pacific railway. I there "took in the town." San Francisco is a busy city. The buildings are of the very best material and substantial. The business part of the town is strictly devoted to business. There are fine hotels and stores, elegant residences and a fine surrounding country. I went down to the Bay and by giving a small fee I was taken down the Bay in a tug to the Golden Gate. While on board I could not resist the temptation to "wash my feet in the big fish pond"—the placid Pacific. Returning I went through China-town, accompanied by a member of the police force, who was very kindly detailed by the C. O. P. to go with me through "Tough Town," as they call it there. I spent about 35 hours in Frisco and got a slight acquaintance in the city.

Taking the C. P. I came up the Sacramento valley by day light, having passed over that section in night time. By this arrangement I got sight of the entire route. The climate is very fine. I picked cherries—ripe, too, at that—in the Sacramento valley, and at Frisco, but in a few hours I was in a region of overcoats. In due time I arrived at Ogden. Our train was a little late and the U. P. train had "left us." Having some time to wait I concluded to take a run up the Ogden Short Line and went as far as Pocatello and returned in time to come east over the U. P. While on the O. S. L. I saw some very fine pine timber, some of which I wished I was in the possessive case of.

Not wishing to occupy too much of your valuable space on this, though I could write a couple of columns I will cut this short. I took the U. P. for the east and on Sunday a. m. reached Omaha. Monday morning I was in Chicago and Tuesday evening in Tionesta where I "caught hold" of a number of my friends in a good hearty shake. My trip was certainly very pleasant. If at some future time your space will permit I shall be pleased, if agreeable to you readers and yourself, to give you six columns of "From the Atlantic to the Pacific."

Hoping I am not too greedy I will say to you and your readers, adieu. Respectfully yours, WHITEKIN.
