New Trial Granted.

A new trial has been granted L. C. Course, for the reason that the Court erred in rejecting certain testimony on the former trial, as will be seen by the following opinion of the Court, filed April 23, 1885:

Commonwealth vs. L. C. Couroe, No. 4, Dec. Sessions, 1884. Without now adverting to all the reasons alleged for a new trial, we think that the Court erred in refusing to permit the defendant's counsel to test the knowledge of the witness, P. M. Clark, of the hand writing of J. H. Dingman, by exhibiting to the witness certain papers containing the admitted signature of Dingman, and to ask him whether the signatures to such papers were in the hand writing of Dingman. This was offered for the purpose of showing that the witness. Clark, did not know the hand writing of Dingman, and was rejected by the Court on the ground that the proposed test was not cross-examination.

We think we were clearly in error very handsomely painted and finished in this ruling. It is not for us to say whether the overruling of the offer of defendant in this respect did or did a solid and substantial one, was built not prejudice him with the jury. by Messrs.
