Peculiarities of the Senis there Found and the Profits Made on the Oil and Hides.

"The seal fisheries of Newfoundland," said Captain D. R. Logan, an old seal hunter, to a New York Times representative, "are the greatest ocean fisheries in the world, a statement which will no doubt astonish nine-tenths of the people of this country. For the past fifty years the catch of seals on the Newfoundland coast has averaged more than 450,000 every year, and over 600,000 have been taken some years, the largest catch on record being 687,000, in 1831.

"About 10,000 men find profitable employment in the seal fisheries of Newfoundland. There are between 300 and 400 vessels engaged in the trade, many of them steamers. Steam vessels were not introduced in seal fishing until 1866. The vessels are chartered from nearly every port in the Province, and start on the voyage on the 1st of March. As May, when the profitable season is over. Some steamers make three voyages, but weather and all conditions must be very favorable in such cases. These New that variety of seal is not found there. The owners of scaling vessels equip them with everything and pay all the expenses of the youngs. The captain of each year with everything and pay all the expenses of the voyage. The captain of each vessel is paid a royality on every seal put aboard his ship, and royalty will average him $2,600 for his two months' work. The men on each ship engaged in the seal hunting receive one-half the catch, which is divided up equally among each crew. The vessels carry crews some-times numbering 325 men, yet it is a poor season when each man does not return home well paid for all the risk and hardship he has undergone among the ice floes. They are obliged to pay the vessel owners from four to six dollars for their berth on shipboard for the voyage. The profit to the owner on each vessel is seldom small.

'The fat is now rendered by steam, but formerly it was rendered by exposure to the sun in wooden vats. Miners prefer the sun-drawn young seal oil, as it smokes less. It has a bad odor, however, while the steam-rendered had not. It is a curious fact that when seal oil is drawn from the vats the oil of the young seal will come first and it is readily known when that is all out, for it is of a pale yellow, and the old oil runs a deep straw Seal milk is a curious feature about this useful animal, for it is as thick almost as white lead. Nothing hinders the constant agreement of people who live together but vanity and selfishness. Let the spirit of sumility and benevolence prevail and discord and disagreement would be ban-

When we are in company of sensible men, we ought to be doubly cautious of talking too much, lest we lose two good things-their good opinion and our own improvement; for what we have to say we know, but what they have to say we know not.

We must never imagine that it is only the poor and unfortunate who need our a general thing they make two services. Premature Burials.

"The world would be horrified," said William S. McCarthy, an east side un-dertaker, yesterday, "if it knew the number of bodies that are buried before life is extinct. Once in a while one of these cases come to light, but no steps are taken to prevent their recurrence.

"Something that happened to me "The largest seal taken on the New-foundland coast is the square flipper, so called on account of its flipper being take charge of the body of a man in Disquare on top, a peculiarity not known vision street. Representative White, of Kentucky, while Speaker of the House, in the Twenty-seventh Congress, was so pressed with business that when he had to deliver his valedictory he got one of those men who are always on hand to make a little money to write his address. It was handed him just w little while before the time he had to deliver it, and he put it into his pocket without reading. When the time came he arose, and, slowly unfolding the manuscript, read the address. It was very brilliant, but it was Aaron Burr's famous valedictory to the Senate. The Speaker never recovered from the shock. He went home, was taken very ill, and it is supposed he killed himself for shame.

Why Kerosene Explodes.

Girls as well as boys need to understand about kerosene explosions. A great many fatal accidents happen from trying to pour oil into a lamp when it is lighted. Most persons suppose that it is the kerosene itself that explodes, and that if they are very careful to keep the oil from being touched by the fire or the light there will be no explosion. But that is not so. If a can or a lamp is left about half full of kerosene oil, the oil will dry up, that is "evaporate" a little, and will form, by mingling in the air in the upper part of the can, a very explosive gas. You cannot see this gas any more than you can see air. But if it is disturbed and driven out and a blaze reaches it, there will be a terrible explosion, although the blaze did not touch the oil. There are several other liquids used in houses and workshops which will produce an explosive vapor in this way. Benzine is one, burning fluid is another, and naphtha, alcohol, ether and chloroform may do the same thing.

in a New York shop lately there was a can of benzine or gasoline on the floor. A boy sixteen years old lighted a cigarette and threw the burning match on the floor near the can. He did not dream that there was any danger, because the liquid was locked up in the can. But there was a great explosion, and he was badly hurt. This seems very mysterious. The probability is that the can had been standing there a good while, and a good deal of vapor had formed, some of which had leaked out around the stopper and was hanging in a sort of invisible cloud over and around the can, and the cloud, when the match struck it, exploded.

Suppose a girl tries to fill a kerosene lamp without first extinguishing the blaze. Of course the lamp is nearly empty or she would not care to fill it. This empty space is filled with a cloud of explosive vapor arising from the oil in the lamp. When she pushes the nozzle of the can into the lamp at the top, and begins to pour, the oil, running into the lamp, fills the empty spaces and pushes the cloud of explosive vapor, and the vapor is obliged to pour over the edges of the lamp into the room ontside.

Of course it strikes against the blazing wick which the girl is holding down by the side. The blaze of the wick sets the invisible cloud of vapor on fire, and there is an explosion which ignites the oil and scatters it over her clothes, and over the furniture of the room. This is the way in which a kerosene lamp bursts. This same thing may happen when a girl pours the oil over the fire in the range, or stove, if there is a cloud of explosive vapor in the upper part of the can, or, if the stove is hot enough to evaporize quickly some of the oil as it falls. Re member, it is not the oil but the invisible vapor which explodes. Taking care of the oil will not protect you. There is no safety except in the rule: "Never pour oil on a lighted fire or into a lighted lamp." -- Christian Union,
