All Republicans should see that their names are on the list of voters of their respective districts. These lists should now be posted at the places of holding the election in each district.

The check of the Ohio Democrat is monumental. At a time of greatest business depression since 1857 he coolly resolves that a "revival of business" has occurred during the last five months.

CARL SCHURZ has been heard from. He is writing a life of Henry Clay. It is likely that Schurz will go to Ohio this Fall and do a little stumping for Hoadly and malaria, at $150 per stump.

The Ohio Democrats have discovered a "revival in business" and "an increase in the value of property" since the advent of the Democratic administration. It is to be hoped they will advertise their discovery so that the people of the country will learn of it.

We suspect that one trouble with this Administration will be that it will be found to contain too many candidates for president and vice-president in 1888. For president there are Cleveland, Bayard and Hendricks; for vice-president there are Vilas, Pension Commissioner Black and Manning. All this means trouble to come.

The Grand Army men in Ohio will do their share in putting Hoadly on the shelf. He waited until the eleventh hour before issuing a proclamation announcing Grant's death, and was one of the very few governors of Northern states who refused to attend the funeral. The old soldiers will not forget this petty slight from the Governor of their dead commander's native state.

JUDGE THURMAN has been generally credited with being the brainiest Democrat in his party; and his determination not to be a candidate for Governor in Ohio this year, goes far to justify the estimate. The waver of that old red baudana has a pretty level head, and he could not be fooled into monkeying with a buzz saw, or permitting himself to be set up like a tenpin, to be bowled over.

With one accord the Bourbon organs are reviling John Roach because the statement of his assignee shows that his assets are greater than his liabilities and that he can pay his debts dollar for dollar. In order to command the sympathy of these able journals Mr. Roach ought to have announced that he could pay only ten or fifteen cents on the dollar. His determination to pay in full will be looked upon as establishing a bad precedent.

The Evening Telegraph of this city has succeeded in obtaining from our esteemed Free-trade contemporary, the Record, a specific statement in regard to the raw materials it proposes to place upon the free list should the tariff be revised according to the Record's ideas. It would first strike at the farmers of the country and put wool on the free list; next at the miners by making iron ore and coal free; next at the chemical industries, which abound in its own city; then at our flax industry, and finally at salt and lumber. With the exception of chemicals, these are all industries which, in a greater or less degree, affect the agriculturist, whose interests the Record pretends to defend. The opposition to the Record's proposition will come mainly from the agricultural districts of the country. We are glad to obtain a definite statement of what the tariff reformers want—Phila. Press.

Revision of the Tariff.

The activity to be noted in the free trade journals just now, and at the same time a marked lowering of tone in their manner of treatment of tariff revision, gives color to the report that the protectionist and free trade Democrats have made a compromise, and agreed upon a measure which will be pressed with all their vigor at the coming session of Congress. The current representation now is that the proposed reduction will be about thirty-three per cent., or forty million dollars in the revenue from import duties. This reduction might or might not be borne, if judiciously distributed, without serious detriment to the industries of the country, and if it could be so borne there would be no objection to it on the part of intelligent protectionists, who only insist that the principle of protection shall be maintained; but there is grave doubt of the fitness of theoretical free traders to be the distributors of the reduction, especially when they approach the work with the usual Democratic insincerity and false pretence. They would make the people believe that the depression of trade is due to overproduction, and overproduction is due to the protective tariff. In making this assertion they take no account of the fact that the depression has been greater in Great Britain and longer continued than in this country, and that it is universally attributed to over production. So strong is this conviction in England, that Senator Edmunds reports of his late visit to that country, "that he found everywhere trade suffering from over production." "England," says he "has gone on manufacturing until she has glutted all her markets. There is already a wide spread feeling that England can only save herself and prevent starvation and emigration among her working people by following the example of this country and adopting a protective tariff policy." Even they will not call in question either the intelligence of observation or honesty of representation of Senator Edmunds and they evade the issue by simply ignoring it. Another of their favorite pleas is, that it is an oppression to tax raw materials, and promise all kinds of revival of trade when the mines and quarries of the country and the farms are shut out of our markets by the admission of foreign ores, wools and other raw materials without duty. This, of course, is a dishonest appeal to the cupidity of the manufacturer, with the design to divide the protectionists by arraying the manufacturer against the agriculturist. We could never find out why any considerable portion of the American people should want our valleys gridironed with railroads and bridges of foreign iron, laid on inexhaustible beds of native ores, and her people clothed in foreign wools while our hills are aching for the herds that would produce them of our own. The reason is beyond our depth, we confess; but we are very sure those who act on their theories are not fit to be entrusted with revision of our tariffs.—Harriburg Telegraph.

Brother Hendricks protests that he is not responsible for the errors committed by President Cleveland. This is correct. The Administration is a limited copartnership, in which the Vice President has nothing to do but keep the flies off the glassware and growl at the head of the firm.

AMENDMENT TO THE CONSTITUTION

proposed to the citizens of the Commonwealth for their approval or rejection by the General Assembly of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania. Published by order of the Secretary of the Commonwealth, in pursuance of the 1st section of Article XVIII of the Constitution.

Joint resolution proposing an amendment to the Constitution of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania:

To it resolved by the Senate and House of Representatives of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania in General Assembly met, that the following is proposed as an amendment of the Constitution of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, in accordance with the provisions of the eighteenth article thereof.

AMENDMENT.

That section five of article five of the Constitution of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, which reads as follows: "Whenever a county shall contain forty thousand inhabitants it shall constitute a separate judicial district, and shall elect one judge learned in the law; and the General Assembly shall provide for additional judges, as the business of the said districts may require. Counties containing a population less than is sufficient to constitute separate districts shall be formed into convenient single districts, or, if necessary, may be attached to contiguous districts as the General Assembly may provide. The office of associate judge, not learned in the law, is abolished in counties forming separate districts; but the several associate judges in office when this Constitution shall be adopted shall serve for their unexpired terms," be and the same is hereby amended, so as to read as follows: "Whenever a county shall contain sixty thousand inhabitants it may constitute a separate judicial district, and may elect one judge learned in the law; and the General Assembly shall provide for additional judges, as the business of said districts may require. Counties not forming separate districts, shall be formed into convenient single districts, as the General Assembly may provide. The office of associate judge, not learned in the law, is abolished in counties forming separate districts and having more than one law judge; every other county shall elect two associate judges, who shall not be required to be learned in the law; but the office of associate judge in office when this amendment shall be adopted, shall serve for their unexpired term. A true copy of the Joint Resolution. W. S. STREIBER, Secretary of the Commonwealth.
