WASHINGTON LETTER.

(From our regular Correspondent.)

WASHINGTON, D. C., Nov. 14, '85.

There will be some fault found with the Post Office department because the report for the past fiscal year shows a deficit of $8,381,571. But criticisms of such sort will be wholly wrong. As well might it be objected that there is a large annual deficit in the War or Navy department. The Post Office is not run to make money, but to serve the public interests. Indirectly it pays for itself a thousand times over by means of this service, precisely as the other departments give back the people the money raised by taxation in the shape of the benefits of good government.

The deficit, so-called, in the post office department is due mainly to the reduction in the rate of letter postage. This was one of the most useful and judicious acts of legislation which Congress has done of late, and not the least valuable feature of it is that by this means the dangerously large surplus revenues of the country are, to the extent of the deficit advantageously expended.

The new Pension office building from its size and elevated position mounts up in a way to command observation. It is of the barn-style of architecture, designed to give the most space within its walls at the least cost for construction. As in this structure, however, three immense barns are placed criss-cross one above another there seems to be considerable space lost under the steep-pitched roof of the top barn. If available space and cheapness of construction, without regard to architectural appearance, are to be considered in the erection of government buildings, it is suggested that the flat-roofed octagonal, or railroad round-house style of architecture would afford the maximum of room at the minimum of cost. But if the country is too poor to consider the matter of beauty, grace, or dignity in its public buildings here, it should at least place its plain cheap structures in some inconspicuous position where they will not challenge criticism.

From a census that has been taken of the views of Congressmen-elect on the proposed changes in the rules, and the question of silver legislation, would appear that the prevailing sentiment of the party favors the former and objects to the latter suggestion. The responses are not complete enough, however, to have much significance. Only fifty-nine democrats replied at all, or scarcely a fourth of the whole number of representatives belonging to that party, and if the names were published, it is to be presumed that few of the party leaders would be found on record. L.

How Will the U. S. Senate Stand?

The November elections of 1886 will determine the control of the U. S. Senate for the Fiftieth Congress. From the Forty-nignth 26 Republicans and 25 Democrats will hold over. The re-election of Sherman from Ohio is assured, and the Democrats of Maryland, Virginia, and Mississippi will send up their own men, which makes 28 Democrats and 27 Republicans sure of seats after March 4, 1887. The Democrats feel sure of success in Delaware, Florida, Missouri, Tennessee, Texas and West Virginia, which will give the party 34 senators, while the Republicans, carrying Minnesota, Massachusetts, Nebraska, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island and Vermont, will have 33. There remain California, Connecticut, Indiana, Maine, Michigan, Nevada, New Jersey, New York and Wisconsin to be fought for. The Republicans are confident of Maine and Wisconsin, which will make their force in the Senate 35, while the Democrats claim Indiana, which would make their force 35 also. That leaves six doubtful states. Of these the Democrats may win California, while the Republicans hold Michigan, and the parties will then stand 36 to 36. Of the four remaining, Connecticut is too doubtful to be counted on by either party; the Democrats hope to hold New Jersey, while the Republicans have the advantage in New York and Nevada.

SENATOR SHARON of California, the richest member of the U. S. Senate, is dead.

THE Democracy of Pennsylvania don't need votes half so badly as it needs leaders. — Clarion Jacksonian. If it's a sort of "bell wether" you want, the Democracy of Forest county have one they'd like to dispose of.

THE Democracy of Pennsylvania have already commenced the annual warfare against Chairman Hensel, many of the bosses selecting the very hopeful young man from Lancaster as the scape goat to carry the sins of the organization. That he is unequal to the task goes without question.—Brookville Republican.

Instancing the immensity of this years crop of apples, a gentleman who traveled over the branch of the Lake Shore road on Saturday informs us that the company have filed orders for cars to convey 50,000 bushels. These orders are at points between Ashtabula and Sandy Lake. He saw the finest quality of apples loading on the cars in bulk at Jefferson, O., at 7 cts. a bushel. There is the same abundance in the country north of us. The apple yield of Chautauqua county is estimated at 700,000 bushels, and that of Niagara county, N. Y., at 600,000 bushels.—Franklin News.
