THE LICKINGVILLE HORROR.

The Terrible Butchery at Everhart's Still a Mystery.

Although more than a week has elapsed since the murder of Mrs. Jemima Everhart and her mother, Mrs. Jane Gilfillan, the affair is shrouded in as much mystery as ever so far as the identification of the daring perpetrator is concerned. Stories and rumors of every conceivable nature have been started, each growing and enlarging as it traveled. The merest suggestions soon grow into stories that are given as absolute facts, until it has become impossible to believe anything. Suspicion after suspicion has been aroused only to be exploded after investigation. Theories have been advanced until it would seem the last tangible idea had been exhausted. to much comment as the dreadful trag. And yet the horrible murder remains

Suspicion first rested upon an old pauper named Samuel Fulmer, but that idea was soon exploded. Next a coal miner named Porter was suspected, but as yet no evidence of his guilt sufficient to base an arrest upon has been discovered. The idea of suicide has been advanced, but that seems the least plausible of any. What would have become of the knife in such a case, after a women had almost entirly severed her head from the body? The theory of suicide seems ridiculous when one reflects upon the nature of the wounds of either of the women. The awful tragedy has been and contiques to be the topic of conversation everywhere, and every new theory or serap of news is eagerly sought after. This will doubtles be the case until the mystery is cleared up and the guilty brought to justice. And this is as it should be. The good of the whole country demands that neither time, energy nor money should be spared in ferreting out the guilty party. The Derrick says: The Everhart tregedy presents a problem that requires a good deal of ability to unrayei. A generous reward offered by the Clarion county commissioners may iuspire some skillful detective to undertake the task of discovering the murderer, and it is hoped that some such action will be taken. The murder hasn't a parallel in northwestern Pennaylvania for brutality, while the mystery that surrounds it grows darker every day. Clarion county could set a good example to other counties by searching for the guilty parties in this dreadful affair.

The funeral of the innocent victims was held on Thursday last and was at. ple, the number being variously estimated at from 800 to 1000. Oue hunsaid to have been in the procession.

Mr. Henry Groce has finished haulfor the Salmon Creek Co. He has now 30,000 feet of as fine hemlock equare timber on the bank as there is to be found in the county.

Which reminds us that one pile of bark is being moved back now to make room for the building. The brick needed is also to be made at home which will give employment to April 8; Clarington, April 30.

County Surveyor Whittekin, in company with Dan. Jackson, of Tlonesta, spent several days of last week in Kellettville, looking up some land lines for the Co.

A hard looking tramp, with a black eye, passed through here Saturday. Tis said he slept in the boiler of the mill. Since the Lickingville tragedy every one is filled with horrar and fear, so that any suspicious character causes an excitement. Ezekiel.

OBITUARY.

DIED.-Saturday morning, March 13, 1886, at Marion, Ohio, H. A. Adams of Tionesta, Pa., aged 48 years and nearly 6 months, death resulting from injuries received two weeks pre-

The particulars of Mr. Adams' death are as follows : He was cleaning the sawdust away from the saw with an edging, bending over the saw at the time. The saw caught the edging he was working with and it was thrown striking him on the temple at the outer angle of the left eye. He was able to walk to the house with assistance. A physician was called who pronounced the injury not necessarily dangerous. As he did not grow better other physicians were called later. The accident occurred March 2nd. It is not probable that he was entirely rational after being hurt up to the time of his death. A post mortem examination revealed the fact that the injury was a fatal one from the first. The part of the socket of the eye struck by the edging had been driven back into the brain, the back part of this bone being broken and splintered; five or six of these splinters were taken from the brain when

The remains were brought to Tinnests on Monday evening and after services in the M. E. Church were sid to rest in Riverside Cemetery, the burial service of the M. E. Church and that of the R. T. of T. being read at the grave.

About a year ago Mr. Adams was converted in and united with the M. E. Church of this place since which time he has lived a life consistent with his profession. In his death our com munity has lost one of the best citizens it had. Honest and upright in all his dealings, consistent and straightforward in his walk and conversation, industrious as one could be, he will be sadly missed and mourned by all who ing the timber which he is putting in admire true manhood. Mr. Adams leaves a wife and six children, who have the heartfelt sympathy of all in their saddest of sad bereavements.

He was a member of Irwin Council. No. 77, of the R. T. of T., and held a policy in that order for two thousand pects to run to market on the first dollars. The Council assisted in the funeral services, which were attended Mr. Henry Kapp of Lineville was by an immense concourse of sympa-
