Prohibition Committee Meeting.

All persons requested to act as County Committeemen for the Probibition party will please meet over Herman's store Tuesday, Aug. 24, at 1:30 P. M. Important business will come before the Committee,

E. S. HOYT, Chairman.

SEE to it right away that you are registered, Republicans. Young Republicans should be especially particular about this matter.

THE Committeemen in the several townships should see that all Republicans are registered. Examine the list on the door of the election houses and if any are left off, see that their names are immediately placed on the Registry.

MR. TILDEN'S relatives, some of them at least, are much displeased at the way in which the deceased distributed his estate, especially in devising so much to the public good, and they are actually talking of contesting the will. They will probably think better of this determination, however, as a allow a foreign tribunal to punish of provision is inserted in the instrument | fenses committed on this soil, especialwhich forfeits the legacy of any heir who shall unsuccessfully contest the will. Mr. Tilden seems to think that be enforced without bluster or bravado, if the contester can break the will he but with dignity and firmners. As should be paid for his trouble, but if for the merits of Cutting himself, they he fails he loses what he otherwise may safely be left out of consideration, would have had. The dissatisfied heirs as the evidence shows they are nonwill all be likely to conclude that "a existent. - Phila. Press, bird in hand is worth two in the bush," however.

"ANYTHING to beat Wallace" is now the battle-cry of all the opposing factions of the Pennsylvania Democracy, and it begins to look as if the Clearfield statesman was not to have a walk-over at the State Convention next week, as his friends had been predicting. Hensel is credited with pulling President Cleveland into the fight as the supporter of Black, with the understanding that if the latter cannet be nominated McCormick, of Harrisburg, shall be the man. Randall and Scott are in the scheme along with all the other anti-Wallace lead ers, and they are going to make it uncomfortably hot for the wily William. It is questionable, however, whether the President's interference in State politics will not do the party more harm than good in the impending campaign. A very large section of the Pennsylvania Democracy take mighty little stock in Cleveland at best, and if they find him meddling with their little home arrangements the feeling will be much embittered.

Taking it by and large, the coming canvass promises to be one of peculiar interest, with the factional fights in the ranks of the Democracy more bitter than for years past. Meantime Wallace's friends continue to claim that he has already a sufficient number of delegates pledged to him to guarantee his nomination on the first or second ballot. With the Federal forces arrayed against him an entirely different result may be reached. Meantime Mr. Wallace is in a position to give battle or run, as best suits his book, and therein he has displayed wise generalship. - Chronicle Tele graph, the United States send to the City of $4.00. Mexico an able lawyer as a special envoy of this Government to confer with the Attorney General of the Mexican Republic as to the proper interpretation of the law under which Cutting is held. If this is true it shows at least a friendly and conciliatory spirit on the part of the Mexican Government. Indeed, all the acts and communications from the Mexican National Government have been marked by a courtesy which contrasts rather unfavorably with the bearing of our own State Department, with its peremptory demand for Cutting's in stant release before a full understandof the case had been reached.

Mexico's Courteous Proposal.

There is need of just such an inquiry into the case by a competent and unprejudiced agent of the American Government. It does not seem to be well understood either in Washington or elsewhere of what specific offense Cutting was convicted and whether he did or did not personally circulate the second libel on the South of the Rio Grande. The Mexican authorities seem anxious to have an American lawyer examine their statutes and satisfy this Government that the conviction of Cutting was in conformity to and warranted by the laws of Mexico. Here the Mexicans seem to be under a misapprehension. It is not questioned, nor is it material, that Cutting's conviction and sentence are in harmony with Mexican law. The position of the United States is that, with or without a law of their own, Mexican courts have no right to try a man for an offense committed in this country. It is claimed in behalf of the Mexican view that Cutting had been domiciled in Mexico eighteen months prior to his arrest. He had voluntarily taken up his residence and engaged in business there and subjected himself to the laws and authority of Mexico. One of these laws provides that under certain circumstances offenses commitbeyond Mexican territory may be punished by Mexican tribunals. If Cutting's merits were all that is involved in the affair this answer would suffice, but the Mexican claim of exterritorial jurisdiction is at variance with the American idea of national sovereignty. A crime is against the peace and digcity of the country in which it is committed, and we can not with propriety ly when the alleged offender is also an American citizen. This view should
