MINNESOTA LETTER.

MINNEAPOLIS, Jan. 1st, 1887. Bradford on Wednesday night of last ED. REPUBLICAN :-

Your note of a recent date reminds He left Warren on that evening in an me of a promise made you and also intoxicated state. Arriving at Bradmany of my friends in your county ford he visited a Chinese opium joint, and vicinity, that I would write a letand at intervals "hit the pipe," (an ter informing your readers and the expression used by opium smokers) friends aforesaid how I like the "Great five times, and finally left the den in Northwest." I will here and now stop a much stupefied condition. About to remark that I have often thought of 11 o'clock he was picked up by an the promise I made and have only officer and taken to the lockup, after been waiting to be sure how I do like refusing to go to his hotel. About 7 it myself, as I know that first impreso'clock the next morning he was found sions of a new country are sometimes stone dead in his cell. Over 30,000,000 lbs. of butter, and 500,000 lbs. of cheese was also produced. So much for some of its agricultural products. Its lumbering industries are also vast. I am not able to remember figures of last years cut but they are immense. As to this city it is one of the healthiest and one of the finest and most enterprising in the U.S. The leading papers now claim 165,000 population; 4,503 new build ings were crected the past year. The city valuation is now 102 million dollars; 35 million bushels of wheat were received here during the past year, and over 6 million barrels of flour were manufactured here. The real estate transfers aggregated over 38 million dollars, exceeding last year's sales by about 15 million dollars. T city is traversed by 61 miles of str railways and I haven't lived here lo enough yet to find out how many ra roads enter and depart from the ci but they are quite numerous. I min go on and give you figures in endl profusion but don't want to overdo matter in that line for fear some your numerous readers will get d gusted and think I ought to call a ha I will, however, let up for a few m utes and describe the climate. had a beautiful, warm, sunny autum no snow until the latter part of h vember, since which time we have h the finest kind of sleighing. There probably a foot or more of snow. T weather is nearly all the time cle and cold, but dry, so that one c

25° below zero this morning and at noon it was 15° below. We don't seem to feel it any worse than we would at zero in Penn'a. We have ou an average about 9 out of 10 bright days of sunshine, so you see we do not have very many storms here. One or two good snow storms makes sleighing for all winter. Winter commenced earlier than common here this year and so far the season has been colder than on an average for many years. Business is not quite so lively in winter as in the summer, yet a stranger on our principal business streets would think it could not be much livelier. Still only 20 years ago to day, a mau stopped at the only hotel in the town and having spoilt the trousers he had on by an unlucky fall, he could not buy even a pair of those useful articles here but had to go into his room and stay there until he could send a man to St. Paul to buy him a pair; at that time I judge it would take at least half a day to make the trip to that place whereas you can go there now in 20 minutes. I ought to say that now there are over 5000 stores and business houses here, where one can buy anything from a paper of pins to a 100 horse power engine. Our daily papers are unsurpassed by any in the large cities of the east; the daily Tribune for to-day is an edition of 40 pages, profusely illustrated and filled to the brim with news, statistics and miscellaneous reading matter. The columns are 280 in number and if they were cut out and pasted together they would make a string over 500 feet long. They will print 150,000 c pies and to do so will consume 50 tone of white paper. Great Caesar! Jake; just think what a pile like that would make; how would you like to run off such an edition on a Washington hand press? This is a great city for churches; there are over one hundred of all denominations, and they run in cost of construction from $5000 to $175,000. W. C. COBURN.

-In one respect this present winter has presented a remarkable exception to most winters in this eastern latitude. As a rule, and the exception is rare, the temperature falls during the night and rises during the day. But this winter very often the reverse has been true, especially the rise of the temper ature during the night.
