LUCKY BALDWIN'S RANCH.

THE GREAT FARM OF A CALIFOR-NIA MILLIONAIRE.

Fifty Thousand Acres Devoted to Orauge Growing, Sheep Raising and Wine Making on a Big Scale,

A correspondent of the Philadelphia Times writing from Los Angeles says of Lucky Baldwin's ranche: "It is not an easy matter for people living on the Atlantic slope to take in the idea of a ranch or farm containing 50,000 acres, and covering an area of fourteen miles east and west by twelve miles north and south. Such, however, is the size of this Santa Anita ranch, located twelve miles east of win, better known by his well deserved sobriquet of "Lucky" Baldwin. It is on high ground, which slopes gradually down from the Sierra Madre Mountains, which tower above it and serve as a low. rier against wind and fogs.

It was in 1875, just as he had made a successful deal of Ophir mining stockthe last great deal made in the Comstock-by which he cleared $7,000,000, that Mr. Baldwin purchased the Santa Anita ranch, It then comprised only 10,500 acres. Since that time he has bought the San Fracisquito, La Puente, La Merced, Patrero Chico, La Cienega and other tracts or ranches, aggregating 40,-000 acres, now included in his Santa Anita ranch. By January 1, 1881, he had secured a clear title to this immense estate, and ever since then he has expended for improvements the total income of the ranch and an additional sum of $5,000 per month. He has added seventy acres to the orange groves, planting them with the Washington or seedless orange, the choicest and most expensive variety known. The old vine-yard has been increased by 500 acres and planted with the choicest varieties of wine grapes. There are sixty acres in English walnuts and almost countless acres of almonds, figs, peaches, pears, apples, apricots, pomegranates, and every other known variety of fruit. He sows 12,000 acres of wheat every year, and has a flock of 21,000 sheep. Take into consideration the corn, barley and other grains which are raised for the support of the stock, etc., and you may obtain a faint idea of the enormous amount and variety of the products of Santa, Anita. There are about 250 men constantly on the pay-roll and, strangest of all in this part of the country, not over a dozen Chinamen are included in the number.

It is almost impossible to give any satisfactory description of so immense an estate as Santa Anita. About a quarter of a mile from the main road is the ranch house, a pretty Eastlake structure, which is approached by a drive through the main orange grove. No words of mine can give any adequate idea of the beauty of this collection of orange trees. They are of a dark green, with a leaf as lustrous as that of a magnolia, and in the acres of them which stretch away on either side not a blade of grass nor a weed can be seen. The whole immense place is cultivated as carefully as a Pennsylvania farmer cultivates his onion beds. At regular intervals are little boxes surmounted by a faucet, by means of which water, indispensable to the life of orange trees, is turned into the trenches between them. The house stands on a gentle knoll, overlooking a large pond filled with fine carp, and is surrounded by eucalyptus, weeping willows and many a eucalyptus, weeping willows and many other varieties of ornamental trees and shrubs. It is finished in fine native woods, and is provided with speakingtubes, lavatories, electric bells and every other convenience of a city residence. Near by is the old house once occupied by the former proprietor. It is an en-largement of the original adobe ranch house, and has a wide, hospitable lo king veranda. In front of the new house is an old bell taken from one of the ruined mission churches. It was cast in Spain over 100 years since, and is said to be largely composed of gold and silver donated for the purpose by pious Spanish ladies of high degree. Mr. Baldwin's vineyards and wine cellar are among the chief objects of inter-est at Santa Anita. The cellar is piled high with wines, many of them ten years old. All the latest machinery for distilling and fermenting is to be found here, and this department is presided over by a French expert of life-long experience in wine and brandy-making in his native country. and catch-it Yankee. They do not gulp After we have seen the orange groves, the orchards, vineyards, wine cellars and other features of what is known as the "home place," we are prepared to extend our observations to the great wheat and sheep ranches on the Puente. We may drive a sheep ranches on the Puente. We may drive for miles through the fields where health-giving after a day of warm sun-Wheat is not liable to rust here shine. and seldom lodges. The suns seems to have the same power in bringing the wheat to perfection that it exerts on the oranges and semi-tropical fruit. Lucky Baldwin, the owner of this vast estate, is as remarkable among men as Santa Anita is among ranches. In per-son he is inclined to be tall and slender, and I should judge his age to be about sixty-five years. There are few instances the battle of life poor, friendless and unknown, but suddenly the tide of fortune half a dozen under full headway, any one of which would tax the energies of the average business man to the utmost. Fur Seals Learning to Swim.

When the young seal is about a month old its education begins. One may wonder wherein this consists, and this feeling will be intensified when we learn that it consists in teaching the young how to swim. It seems paradoxical-one can hardly believe it-that the finest swimmer of all amphibious creatures, which spends half its existence at sea, has no more idea of swimming at first than one of our own babies. But it is the fact. Take a pup and put it out of its depth, and straightway its bullet head sinks, its hind parts flop about impotently, and its death by suffocation is the question of a few minutes only, the little creature not having the least idea of lifting up its head and getting the air.

Fuch being the case, its education is a question of some little time, and is thus affected : At about six weeks old his instinct takes him down to the water's edge, where he paddles about all day long, now washed by the surf and now left high and dry, in another moment perhaps to be rolled over and over by the water. After a few minutes of this he gets tired, curls himself round like a cat or dog on the hearth-rug and goes to sleep, but only for a short time, for the scal at all ages is the most restless of living creatures. Then again to the surf, paddling about just like our own little boys and girls, every day expand-ing his ideas, and proving to himself that water is not such a dreadful thing after all. By repeated efforts, then, he learns to keep himself afloat, to recognize his own powers, and become thoroughly master of the element in which he has to

Mrs. Lydia E. Pinkham, Lynn, Mass. About the first of September, 1881, my wife was taken with uterine hemorrhage. The best styptics the physician could prescribe did n check it and she got more and more enfeebled. She was troubled with Prolapsus Uteri, Leucorrhosa, numbress of the limbs, sickness of the stomach and loss of appetite. I purchased a trial bottle of your Vegetable Compound. She said she could discover a salutary effect rom the first dose. Now she is comparatively free from Prolapsus, stomach's sickness, &c. The hemorrhage is very much better and is less at the regular periods. Her appetite is restored, and her general health and strength are much improved. Healthfulness of Tea.

As to the healthfulness of tea-drink-ing in general, it is claimed that, barring certain kinds of teas, including Japan tea, tea-drinking is not only harmless, but positively beneficial; that there is a nourishment and gentle stimulus in a cup of tea which conduces positively to health and energy. This is the testimony of those who possess the most intimate knowledge of tea, its production and ef-fects. But tea, to be healthful, must be properly prepared or drawn. It must come to the lips from the leaf by infusion, and must not be boiled. Boiling means a thrusting of all the available tannin into the decoction, and if the infusion be with too much tea or too little water the effect-tannin-is the same. Further-more, the Chinese, who may be supposed to have brought the art of exquisite teadrinking up to a perfect nicety, do not swallow the tea like the average jumpbut sip it merely warm. The American takes his tea with so much body or strength that the diversion or dilution furnished by milk and sugar is necessary country sewing society, the leading spirit in a lively gossip club-in short, an old the wheat, like a sea of gold, waves to stager, well tanned with ten tannin for a and fro in the gentle breeze that comes full generation. How the Fuchsia was Introduced.

There is a pretty story told of the introduction of the fuchsia. One day, many years ago, a London florist was sixty-five years. There are few instances on record of so sudden a rise to such great wealth as his. For years he fought happened to see a wonderfully beautiful flower in the window of a dwelling. We have a right to presume that the florist turned and flowed in upon him so fast was enthusiastic upon the subject of that almost in a day he became one of the rare plants, and, granting this, we wealthiest men in the State, famous for its great millionaires. Nervous energy and activity are expressed in his every word, look and action. He finds rest only in great enterprises, of which he has off with it. However, having the Eng-lishman's natural reverence for law, and judging by past experience, moreover, owns the Baldwin Hotel and the Bald-win Theatre-both contained in the same most potent induence which he could building—and many of the finest stores in San Francisco. We Appeal to Experience. For a long time we steadily refused to pubtish testimenials, believing that, in the opinion of the public generally, the great majority were manufactured to order by unprincipled parties as a means of disposing of their worthless preparations. That this view of the case is to a certain ertest true, there can be no doubt.

At last, several years ago, we came to the conclusion that every intelligent person can readily discriminate between spurious and bona fide testimonials, and determined to use as advertisements a few of the many hundreds of unsolicited certificates in our posses-sion.

as advertisements a few of the many hundreds of unsolicited certificates in our posses-alon. In doing this we published them as nearly as possible in the exact language used by our cor-respondents, only changing the phraseology, in some cases, so as to compress them into a simalier space than they would otherwise occu-py, but without in the least exaggersting or de-stroying the meaning of the writer. We are glad to say that our final conclusion was a correct one-that a letter recommending an article having true merit finds favor with the people. The original of every testimonial published by us is on file in our office, an inspection of which will prove to the most expetial that our assertion made above, that only the facts are given as they appear therein, is true. But as it would be very inconvenient, if not impossible, for all of our friends to call on us for that purpose, we invite those who doubt (if there be such), to correspond with any of the parties whose names are signed to our tes-timonials, and ask them if we have made any-misstatements, so far as their knowledge ex-tends, in this article.
