Traveling in the Snow With the Temperature Sixty Degrees Be low Zero-Curing Frostbites. The vapor of the breath will at once condense on the beard in the shape of ice that will keep accumulating indefinitely if not removed, says Lieutenant Schwatka, writing in the Youth's Companion of his arctic experiences. Of course we tried to keep our beards as short as possible, but, living as Esquimaux, shaving was completely out of the question unless we lathered ourselves with a snowball and shaved with an reicle. So all our efforts were confined to what we could do with a pair of scissors, and even then the ice would manage to get at this slim hold and build itself up into a ball of varying proportions.

Our method of removing it was pecu-When we stopped to rest we would bury our mouths in the palms of our open hands and breathe with deep inspirations for a minute or two. would always make the icy mass drop off, especially if the beard was kept short.

If the reindeer hood comes too close up around the chin it also will accumulate ice in the same way, and in keeping it far enough away to avoid this the full chin is generally exposed. The chin, the nose, the eyes, and part of the cheeks are the only portions of the face exposed, for the hood comes down closely to the eyebrows. These exposed parts of the face are subject to frequent nips of frost, which during a very disagreeable day of wind and low temperature may exceed half a dozen an hour.

The cure is to take the warm hand out of the reindeer mitten and apply it directly to the place until the little white spot which attracted the attention of some companion walking by your side disappears, for so complete a local ancesthetic is frost that you would never have known it yourself. This is especially true of the protuberant parts of the chin and cheeks, but sometimes upon the nose, just at the instant of freezing, is felt a hornet-like sting that makes a person feel like jumping twenty feet into the

I have often been asked if such bitter cold air would not freeze the tongue in the mouth while breathing, and I have noticed this sensation apparently once or twice when the thermometer stood at about seventy degrees minus, but could at once get rid of the feeling by breathing through the nostrils and closing the mouth for a short time. The question naturally arises: Why not breathe through the nostrils all the while; but doing so continuously always results in such a persistent catarrh that it does not take one long to return to the usual method of breathing through the mouth, as by far less disagreeable.

Every one has heard about the drowsiness that accompanies extreme cold, and supposed by many to be caused by breathing intensely cold air. None of my party experienced it in the least in all our winter's trip of almost constant travel in not only the greatest cold, but the longest continued cold endured by white men, showing that, living as the Esquimaux do, no such discomfort or danger need be feared.

I have said that this intensely cold weather was usually accompanied by calms which made it quite bearable. I remember one quite noteworthy exception. One morning the thermometer at 8 o'clock showed us that it was sixtyeight degrees below zero, but as it was calm and quiet we loaded our sledges for a day's journey to the igloo of an Esquimau, where we could buy reindeer meat for our dogs.

We were just ready to start when a wind sprang up that felt like facing razor-blades. Had it come ten minutes sooner we should not have thought of going, but being loaded we started. The dogs trotted, and we ran along the whole way except for one short rest, until we reached the welcome snow home. Both the white men and the Esquimaux were frozen in unexpected places.

At the end of the journey the ther-mometer showed fifty-five degrees minus—that is, it was warmer by thirteen degrees. I told this to the Esquimaux with me, but I think from the incredulous glances they took at each other that they voted the thermometer to be the most accomplished Ananias they ever met, and wondered how we could allow ourselves to be duped by it.

Horses Resting.

"Horses can get some rest standing," said an old trainer recently, to a New York Mail and Express reporter, "providing the position be reasonably easy, but no full rest except recumbent. It is known of some horses that they never lie down in the stall, though if kept in pasture they take their rest habitually in a recumbent position. It is well to consider whether the habit has not been forced upon the horse by some circumstance connected with the stall he was made to occupy, in that it had a muddy earth floor, or one made of dilapidated plank, uncomfortable and offensive to the horse that has been accustomed to select his own bed in the pasture. If the horse can have the privil ge of selecting his own position for resting of his feet, he can sleep standing; but while his muscles may be to a certain legree relaxed and get rest in that position, what can be said of the bearings at the joints? Without relief through the recumbent position, the joint surfaces are forced continuously to bear a weight varying from one thousand to one thousand eight hundred pounds This must act unfavorably, especially upon the compli-cated structures within the hoofs which nature intended should have periods of rest each day."

The First American Library.

The first American library was that of Harvard College, which was founded in 1638, and it was about fourteen years after this that Hezekiah Usher, the first bookseller in the United States, opened his bookstore in Boston. From 1775 to 1800 thirty libraries were established in this country. In the next twenty five years 120 were established, and in the next twenty-five, 551. From 1850 to 1875, 2,481 libraries were established, and now there is scarcely a house in the country which has not its collection of books, nor a town which has not its public library.

THE LAND OF FROSTBITES | NEWS AND NOTES FOR WOMEN.

Velvet is not much employed for dress trimmings this winter.

Ostrich plumage is steadily increasing in favor for millinery purposes,

According to a recent authority there are 600 women writers in Germany. Bretelles and other V-shaped corsage trimmings are meeting with much favor. Rhode Island is a small State, and yet it contains 11,000 more women than men.

The Empress of Russia, as well as the Austrian Empress, is said to be an expert shot with the rifle.

The tournure does not diminish in size, as was predicted, but, on the contrary, is worn larger than ever.

Mauve, so long a neglected color, is once more fashionable. It is especially favored for house toilets.

Pale pink veils are taking the place of the red ones so long in favor. They are more generally becoming. Moire and lace-striped silk is a new material for evening dresses, and is shown in several delicate shades of color. White kid gloves reaching a little above the elbow are taking the place of Swedish gloves for full-dress toilets. Black plush is a favorite material for bonnets. They are usually made with the puffed crown, pushed up well toward the front.

Amateur milliners find the winter bonnets easily trimmed, as the high bow and strings are nearly all that fashion requires.

Gray squirrel fur is used in bands for trimming velvet and cloth costumes. It is very dressy and comparatively inexpensive.

Many young ladies are adopting the braided coil at the back of the head in place of the high coiffure that has been so popular.

Checked velvet is a decided novelty. It is used in combination with silk or plain velvet, and is a very effective trimrning material.

Gracefully draped polonaise of woolen material, over skirts of velvet or velveteen, compose very pretty and inexpensive costumes.

Maria Henrietta, the Queen of the Belgians, is said to be very democratic in her tastes and habits, and this has made her popular with her subjects.

The monogram is seen on every possible belonging of a fashionable woman; on her lingerie, her toilet articles, her umbre la handle, even on her sachet bag. Long cloaks for little girls have flat plaits in the back, and a yoke and hood. The cloak is shirred into the yoke, making it very warm and comfortable, but not graceful.

The cost of introducing a girl into society in New York and carrying her successfully through one season is estimated at $1,698, of which all but $250 is for wearing apparel.

Ivory white satin and corded silk are the favorite materials for bridal costumes. White velvet or white brocade is sometimes used as a panel on these dresses, but generally one material is preferred.

A revival of brocaded silks is predicted. A few choice patterns which have already appeared have grounds of chevron weave, or of the oldtime Barathea weave, which is seen in some new plain silk as well.

The school teacher at Osceola, W. T., is a young woman of only eighteen years; but she has no difficulty in keeping order, for she threatens to sit down on the first pupil who is insubordinate. She weighs 325 pounds.

A novel glove is made of black kid, and is intended to be worn over the sleeve. The long top shows a pattern of machine stitched squares of Swedish leather, which form a striking contrast to the black kid ground.

In Bavaria it is not good form for a lady to shake hands with a gentleman until she is very well acquainted with him, and no unmarried woman is allowed to speak on the street to any of her friends of the opposite sex, no matter how well she may know them.

Gorgeous effects are given in bright red tulle, spangled over its entire surface with round gilt spangles. The corsage of watered silk, the same shade, has as a finish to the neck and shoulder straps a gilt cord. Red satin slippers and stock ings of the same hue complete the striking costume,

The universal fashion of wearing aprons in the house has led to the production of some very dainty novelties in this line. Fine scrim is much used for this purpose, with insertions of bright-color d ribbons, and some very pretty aprons are of pink or blue China silk, elaborately trimmed with lace.

Miss Amelia Hand, of Cape May Court House, N. J., is now an invalid, and having been a great church-goer she greatly misses the services. In order to make her confinement less irksome Dr. Wiley has connected her bedside with the Methodist Episcopal Church by a telephone. The transmitter, which is the finest made, is placed on the pulpit cushion, and thus arranged the lady can distinctly hear and enjoy the entire services, including the singing of the choir.

A man in Ontario can repeat perfectly 166 chapters of the Bible, fifty eight psalms, and every collect, epistle and gospel in the ecclesiastical year, according to the English Church prayer book. "Wouldn't Try."

"This coasting is very dangerous," said the teacher. "Suppose half a dozen of you boys were shooting down a steep hitl on a bob sled, and a man should drive into the road in a sleigh; how could you get out of the way?" "Wouldn't try!" shouted all the good boys in chorus, "the man'd git out o' the way." Then Then the poor teacher called up the class in Mental Philosophy, and three new bobs came to school the next day.—Burdette.

A Duel Between Composers.

Andreas Romberg, the well-known composer of the "Bell," once received a challenge from the leader of a small orchestra on the ground of some pretended insult. He sent the messenger back with these words: "Tell Herr X- that I don't know how to use a sword or a pistol; but we will each compose a cantata, and the one whose work is received with hisses shall shoot himself dead."-Mainzer Nachrichten.

Rheumatism a Blood Disease entirely cured.

ROCHESTER, April 1, 1886.

To the Pardee Medicine Co.,

Gents:—Allow me to say a few words in praise of Dr. Pardee's Rheumatic Remedy; and if what I have to say will induce others who are afflicted with neu-ralgia or rheumatism to use it, I shall feel that I have been the means of doing some little good to my fellow men. December 27, 1885, while at work in the shop, I was taken suddenly with sharp, piercing pains and was compelled to leave the shop. The next morning I was unable to rise, and I grew worse daily although I was under the best medical treatment. But I obtained no relief until I began using Dr. Pardee's Remedy, which I did March 17th, and after using it three days, I could walk about the house. I continued to use it and improved rapidly every day. I am now at work and entirely free from pain, and have gained five pounds in weight, but I shall continue the remedy until I feel sure the poison is out of my until I feel sure the poison is out of my blood, for I am certain that rheumatism is a blood disease. You are at liberty to use my name or refer anyone to me, for I shall be only too glad to recommend it to anyone who is suffering as I was. I know it will cure any case of rheumatism, if used as directed. I am, very truly yours,
