And Still the Heathen Rageth.

A week or two since the REPUBLICAN copied an item from the Tidoulet News, which showed the utter falsity of "A Taxpayers" figuring on county printing in the National of the week previous. We did this, not that any one in this community or surroundings has been paying the slightest attention to the ravings of the owner of the aforesaid National; not that any one with a thimbleful of brains believes that "Taxpayers" article was written outside of that office; not that we could not, weeks ago, have shown what was griping the owner aforesaid; not for any of these reasons, for they are all as plain to the people of Forest county, and to any casual observer, for that matter, as the nose on the aforesaid owners face.

By-the-way, speaking of oleomargarine, reminds me that an effort to have the existing State law, which prohibits entirely the manufacture and sale of the article, repealed, was laid out in death in committee last week, and cannot now be placed on the calendar except by a majority vote of the House, which would be rather hard to spring. And yet the grangers throughout the country are still sending cartloads of petitions, "against the repeal of the oleomargarine law."

The Billingsley Bill was not reached on second reading last week, but will come up for consideration this week, perhaps Wednesday. It is rumored that the differences between the producers and the National Transit will be settled before any definite action is taken, which will be a virtual concession of all the producers have demanded by the Transit company.

Would it not be infinitely better for this individual to turn his attention to living in peace with mankind and thereby lessen the expenses of our courts, which are such a drain on the public funds? Does any gentleman who has been called to our courts remember the time when he was not either prosecutor, prosecuted, plaintiff or defendant in the courts? It is a rare event indeed. And why are not others mixed eternally in litigation? No longer ago than the last court prosecutions were instituted which occupied about four days of the court's valuable time at a greater expense than all the county printing would amount to in a whole year, and is difficult, for any one at all acquainted with the facts, to discover who the real instigator was? Good citizens, who were innocently drawn in, turned away in disgust when they discovered the snake lurking in the grass.

FROM THE STATE CAPITOL.

For the past week the House has been busy with bills on second reading there being upward of four hundred of them on the "second reading" calendar. But few were reached however, on account of the general revenue bill, which took up the greater portion of two days to consider. This bill is intended to take the place of, or revise, the one passed during the last session of the legislature, and makes some important changes. Should it become a law, furniture, watches and pleasure carriages will no longer be obliged to pay a tax. The bill is one of extreme length, as in the very nature of things it must be, containing 36 sections. The section which excluded manufacturing corporations from State taxation was voted down. It is a very grave question whether the striking out of this section is not a step backward in the progress of our State. Other States, a majority of the leading ones at least, exempt manufacturing corporations from taxation as an inducement to bring them in. The act does not relieve them of taxation for county and local purposes, so that no one is the loser but the State, and the question arises whether or not it would not be acting the part of wisdom and economy to make at least as good a bid for them as our neighboring States, Massachusetts, New York, Delaware and a dozen other of the great manufacturing States do, so long as the county and immediate neighborhood in which they are located would get benefit of the tax for local purposes.

We fear the legislature will make a mistake if it insists upon excluding this section of the bill. The especial champions of the labor organizations fought hard to retain it, while the granger element, which expects these same labor champions to help them knock out the project for the repeal of the oleomargarine law, voted almost solidly for rejection of the section alluded to.

Among the exchanges that finds its way to our table is the Legislative Record. It is a 16 page folio, well printed, but not very carefully folded. It is published by a joint stock company at Harrisburg, an inland Spring and Winter resort down on the Susquehanna River, and is independent in its political views. It contains no patent medicine advertisements, nor wood-cut engravings of statesmen, actresses, boodle aldermen, condemned Anarchists, and the like. These two features ought to make it popular. There is a continued story running on the first page. Besides this it contains numerous small articles as well. Its table of contents is varied, and covers the whole range of literature. The style of its contributors is sometimes a little strained, it must be confessed. Its columns are filled with news from all over the state, short romantic sketches, brief biographical notices, short and pointed ordinary reports, occasional political articles, but it rarely publishes poetry. This fact should double its subscription list at once. But merit seldom wins nowadays. Occasionally we are able to learn from it what our law makers are about. But this department of the magazine is not to be relied on. If kept to the end of the year and bound in 1/2 morocco with a gilt side stamp of the American eagle and the coat of arms of the United States, it will be a big thing.

Perhaps the most important measure to Forest county now before the legislature, is House Bill No. 321, which provides for the prevention of "horses, cattle, mules, sheep or swine from running at large." Should it pass, of which there seems little doubt, it will mean simply that the boundless acres of wild pastures in Forest county shall go to waste. There is no penalty attached for allowing these animals from running at large, save that the owner is held responsible for any and all damage they may do, and if John Smith should carelessly or designedly leave his garden gate open, and Sam Jones' cow should walk in and help herself to the cabbage why Sam would have a "sauer kraut" bill on his hands, right away, and that would be bad enough. As I said the bill stands more than an equal chance of passing, as all of the more populous counties in the State are clamoring for it.

In the Senate of Thursday quite a lively tilt was had on the question of which of two anti-discrimination bills should be placed upon the calendar. A Republican caucus committee had formulated a bill and Senator Waters had introduced one, which it was claimed had been hatched up by some Democrat.

And almost before the Republicans were aware of it the Democrats had nearly stolen their thunder; at least that is the way it looked to the Republican and they proceeded to put their measure on the calendar. The object of the Democrats seems to have been, to fix matters in such a way that no bill would be passed and then hold the republicans responsible for the failure, on account of the majority they have in both houses. The nicely laid scheme failed, however, and the caucus bill was placed upon the calendar.

James G. Blaine Jr. was one of the notable visitors to the capitol on Thursday. He is a tall, spare-built, but rather handsome young man of about 21 years of age, and has a fondness for newspaper work, in which he is now engaged on a leading New York paper.

The women suffragists are crying around the present legislature for the submission of woman's rights amendment. None but "strong minded" women seem to want any more right than they now have.

Harrisburg, Feb. 14, 1887.

It is said on good authority that Rev. Matthew C. Julien, Pastor of the Trinitarian Church in New York, will receive a call from Plymouth Church, Brooklyn, to fill the vacancy caused by Henry Ward Beecher's death.

On Tuesday morning in the suburbs of Boston occurred a railroad disaster that eclipses the Vermont horror in its awfulness. The accident occurred on the Boston & Providence R. R. between Forest Hill and Roslindale stations. Between these stations is a marsh over which a bridge is thrown, the approach to it on both sides being embankments filled in when the road was built. The train consisting of nine coaches heavily loaded with passengers, many of whom were women, broke through the bridge and fell to the ground below, a distance of 30 or 35 feet. Many of the cars were ground to splinters. Probably 40 persons were killed, and nearly 100 wounded. The scenes at the wreck were appalling. The cause of the disaster was probably a broken journal.

HEARTLESS CRUELTY

It is to denote a poor sufferer into the belief that some worthless liniment will cure rheumatism and neuralgia. Honesty is the best policy in the manufacture of proprietary articles in all other matters, and the fact that the proprietors of Athlophoros have never claimed for it even all its merit would warrant has not a little to do with its wonderful popularity, and the thousands of grateful testimonials received by them show that their policy has been wise as well as right.

Experience has amply demonstrated that mere outward applications are worthless. The disease has its seat in the blood, and any remedy to be successful must deal with the obstructive acid which poisons and inflames it.

Athlophoros acts on the blood, muscles and joints directly. It takes the poison out of the blood and carries it out of the system; it invigorates the action of the muscles, and loosens the stiffness of the joints. It reaches the liver and kidneys, cleansing them from irritating substances, and if followed up after the rheumatic conditions cease, it will restore these organs to regularity and health.

West Chazy, N. Y., Aug. 19, 1886. Yours of August 14th, is at hand, and in reply would say that Athlophoros proved the most effectual remedy for neuralgia in the case of my son that I ever tried. After using half a bottle he was not troubled any more for six months.

HENRY HARRIS.

Mt. Pleasant, Pa., Aug. 10, 1886. I am thankful that I tried Athlophoros. I had rheumatism seven years, part of the time could not move; but to-day I am well and hearty. I write this hoping some other sufferer may try it.

W. S. FLEMING.

Every druggist should keep Athlophoros and Athlophoros Pills, but where they cannot be bought of the druggist the Athlophoros Co. 113 1/2 Wall St., New York, will send either (carriage paid) on receipt of regular price, which is $1.00 per bottle for Athlophoros and 50c. for Pills.

For liver and kidney diseases, dyspepsia, indigestion, weakness, nervous debility, diseases of women, constipation, headache, impure blood, etc., Athlophoros Pills are unequalled.

Free Trade.

The reduction of internal revenue and the taking out of evasive statutes from Proprietary Medicines, no doubt, has largely benefited the consumers, as well as relieving the burden of home manufacturers. Especially is this the case with Green's August Flower and Boschoe's German Syrup, as the reduction of thirty-six cents per dozen, has been added to increase the size of the bottles containing these remedies, thereby giving one-fifth more medicine in the 75 cent size. The August Flower for Dyspepsia and Liver Complaint, and the German Syrup for Cough and Lung troubles, have, perhaps, the largest sale of any medicines in the world. The advantage of increased size of the bottles will be greatly appreciated by the sick and afflicted, in every town and village in civilized countries. Sample bottles for 10 cents remain the same size.
