

AMID SHOT AND SHELL.

TWO INCIDENTS OF GREAT PLUCK AT GETTYSBURG.

A Young Soldier Rescues a Wounded Comrade—The Lieutenant and the Lighted Shell.

"Speaking about pluck," said Colonel Higgins, of Waverly—"there goes a fellow whom I saw do as nifty a thing as I witnessed while I was in the service."

The reporter looked across the street, in the direction in which the Colonel had nodded and saw Dick Enderlin plodding along, hands in pocket, in his master of fact, indifferent sort of way.

"It was at Gettysburg," remarked the Colonel, knocking the ashes from his cigar. "You probably knew that Dick enlisted as a drummer boy. He was in my company and he beat a drum for all that was out; beat it so hard that you couldn't find enough drum heads in the world to keep him supplied, and a short time before the Gettysburg fight he came to me for the sixth or seventh drum head, and I just gave him a gun. He kicked a little, but took it and made pretty good use of it afterward, too. Toward the close of the first day's fight at Gettysburg, our regimental line was stretched along the crest of a ridge, down the side of which was a field of wheat almost ripe enough for the reaper. Much of it had been cut that day and more was destined to be cut on the morrow—cut by shot and shell and swept by the musketry of the two armies. On the opposite side of the field and a frightfully short distance away, were the lines. Twice that afternoon we had charged across that wheat field in the effort to drive the enemy from their position and twice had we been driven back, leaving many a dead and wounded man among the standing wheat. The wheat was so high that when lying down one could not be seen by the enemy and for some time before the charge was ordered we had occupied the position described, keeping up a sharp fire on the enemy and receiving as good as we sent in return. I couldn't help being amused at Dick. In order to save the men as much as possible, I directed them to lie down to do their loading and only rise to deliver their fire, but Dick insisted upon standing up all the time. Three or four times I yelled at him to keep under cover or he would get hit, and he would attempt to obey me, but in a few minutes excitement would get the better of him and he would be on his feet again, loading and firing as rapidly as he could handle his piece.

"When the sun had gone down and the shades of night had checked the firing considerably, several of us were standing grouped together, looking out over the field of wheat, wondering what had been the result of the day's work and what would be the result of the morrow, when we heard some wounded man, way over in the wheat, groaning terribly. His moans were sickening to listen to and it got so after a while that I couldn't stand it any longer. So, taking off my haversack, I handed it to Enderlin, who was standing by and remarked that I was going after that fellow. This, as every one knew, was a pretty ticklish piece of business, for, although it was then night, the moon was shining and at every rustle of the wheat, that indicated the possibility of its being moved by a human being, the Johnnies would send their musket and rifle balls through it in a way that made it very unhealthy for any person that might be concealed there. Still I resolved to chance it, and getting down on my hands and knees, I began to worm my way through the wheat in the direction of the groans. I had gone but a few yards, however, when I felt some one grasp me by the leg and I heard Dick's voice: "Look here, Major," he said, "you mustn't go out there. You might get killed, and we can't spare you; let me go."

"Why, I don't believe you could get the fellow in, Dick," I replied; "he is probably hurt so bad that he has to be carried, and I don't believe you could carry a man in that way and through that wheat."

"Well, you just come back and let me try it," said Dick. "I'll bet you that I bring him in."

Saying which Dick bolted ahead, worming his way through the wheat, as carefully and cautiously as possible, so as to avoid attracting attention, while I returned to the line and awaited results. He was gone a long time, so long that I began to grow uneasy, but finally he made his appearance, crawling on his stomach through the wheat and on his back, with his arms clasped around his neck, was a poor chap whose hip had been shattered by a musket ball.

"Where did you find him, Dick?" I asked him, as he lifted the poor fellow off his back.

"He was within a couple of rods of the lines," was Dick's reply, as he crawled to his feet and stretched himself after his long trip.

"Dick," said I, "you are a sergeant." Of course I meant in embryo, for at that moment there was no vacancy, but there were plenty of them within twenty-four hours.

"There was another little incident which occurred at the Gettysburg fight," continued the Colonel, "and that came directly under my observation, which will illustrate pretty well the stuff that was in the men of '61 and '62. There was an officer in the regiment by the name of John H. Martin. He was a lieutenant then, and he is living at Waverly now. I was standing in a group, of which Martin was one, when a lighted shell came ricocheting across the field and stopped almost at our feet. The fuse still burning and burned almost down to the shell. The situation was about as critical as you can imagine and the group began to scatter with a rapidity that would do credit to the activity of each individual member. All ran but Martin, who suddenly grasping the shell, flung it over a stone wall which was near by. It had scarcely touched the ground when it exploded, but fortunately without doing damage to any of the group, but few of whom would probably have escaped had it not been for Martin's marvelous presence of mind."—Chillie's (10) leader.

NEWS AND NOTES FOR WOMEN.

The mince made up at the White House is made by Mrs. Folsom.

Dr. Kate L. Kelsey holds the office of City Physician in Menomonee, Wis.

There are six women students in the collegiate course of Columbia College. Very becoming face veils are of large-meshed Russian net with a scalloped edge.

Two sisters in Washington bear the names of Desire Moore and Plenty Moore.

There are seven women in Illinois who are acting as County Superintendents of public schools.

New bows of narrow ribbon for the hair are fashioned to stand up in the same trim and "perky" fashion as the bonnet trimming of the season.

Red with white polka dots makes very pretty little house dresses for children, and should be simply trimmed with white soutache braid and pearl buttons.

Greens of the moss shades are very fashionable for street wear, and after the English fashion are very frequently trimmed with passementerie beading of jets.

Spanish kid gloves for evening wear now have the monogram of the wearer embroidered upon the back of the wrist, in either black or colored silk or gold.

Six young Swedish women are now studying at Lund University, of whom three propose to be doctors, two are studying mathematics, and one the humanities.

Mrs. Leland Stanford, of California, is erecting in Albany, N. Y., a home for the aged poor and a day nursery for children of poor workingwomen as a memorial to her parents.

Sets of beaded ornaments for the corsage, such as plastron cuffs, epaulettes, and necklets, are seen in all varieties and coloring, and add much to the effect of a beautiful home toilette.

Alpaca makes some very serviceable house toilettes, which are attractive as well, and this fabric, which is said to be on the high road to fashion, may be had in a great variety of shades.

Mrs. Caroline S. Brooks, whose model of Iolanthe, beautifully executed in butter, attracted so much attention at the Centennial Exposition, is now a sculptor with a studio in New York City.

The more fanciful the house costume may be, the better and more stylish it is. Two or more colors are introduced besides a lace garniture in form of a long jabot down the sides of the skirt.

One of the newest fashions for evening wear is in the form of a folded-back collar, in picot-edged ribbon, the same forming a revers down the front of the dress and bordering cascades of lace.

The first hospital for women and children in Scotland, officered by medical women, was opened last year in Edinburgh by the Lord Provost of the city, under the charge of Dr. Jex Blake.

Coarse mesh Brussels net is the most elegant fabric for bridesmaids' costumes, and is usually made over a surah or silk foundation. The sleeves are made in a long full puff reaching to the elbow.

A Mrs. Sawyer, employed in the patent office as a copyist, has so marked a resemblance to Mrs. Cleveland as to be pointed out wherever she goes and often to be mistaken for the President's bride.

Red cashmere makes the most popular dresses for little girls from six to eleven years. They are made with simple yoke waist and full puffed sleeves; three or four tucks are the only finish for the skirt.

As a substitute for birds' wings, a leading English millinery establishment is using side wings of silk to support the high-standing bows of crape, ribbon or lace which form the principal trimming of toques.

A linen collar still remains the suitable neckwear for use with a tailor made suit. Mull, lace, tulle, beads, surah, crepe de chine, etc., begin to be utilized more than formerly in a somewhat elaborate style of dressing the neck.

Large balls of jet beads are seen upon the edges of some new mantles. These would seem to materially add to the weight of these garments, though the new method of mounting jet upon cork obviates this effect in a measure.

Novel bonnets are made entirely of ribbon, which is put on in rows around the brim and in lengthwise rows around the crown. High bows of two or more kinds of ribbon, with a long jet or gilt pin thrust through them, are the usual trimming, and the small, pointed poke is the shape preferred for these bonnets.

Ermine is meeting with much favor for children's uses, especially as a trimming for cloaks of dark red, white, or golden-brown cloth. These cloaks have short waists and full skirts, and with them are worn "top-heavy" hats of dark felt, with wide brim and large crown, with a huge cluster of ostrich tips as trimming.

Bodies of plain velvet continue to grow in popularity. They are usually worn with skirts of velvet and satin, or velvet and faille, in inch-wide stripes, though skirts of plain satin or faille are considered quite as elegant. Golden brown, sapphire blue, green, terra-cotta and hellebore are the colors much favored for these costumes.

Plain velvet is the material usually selected for dressy wraps. An example is a mantlet of black velvet, very short in front, reaching nearly to the foot of the front, with a long and jet trim the long front. A coquille of lace forms a jabot, and a knot of ribbon fastens the collar.

Bodily pains are instantly relieved by the use of Jacobs Oil. Dr. R. Butler, Master of Arts, Cambridge University, England, says: "It acts like magic."

The small gray rabbit of Australia, which has produced so much destruction in that country, is principally a small gray burrowing animal, which when pursued, pops into its hole with the celerity of a prairie dog. Besides these are the large jack rabbits and the even larger white hare.

Boards of Health endorse Red Star Cough Cure as a speedy and safe remedy for coughs and colds. It is pronounced entirely vegetable and free from opiates. Price, twenty-five cents a bottle.

In Bartlett's, N. S., on the Bay of Fundy, there are living ninety persons over seventy years of age. Of these there are twenty couples who have been married fifty years or more, and of these five of the husbands are brothers.

If the Chinese nation were to pass in single file before an observer, the procession would never cease, for a new generation would be coming on the stage as fast as the procession moved.

There shall be no Alps. When Napoleon talked of invading Italy one of his officers said, "I remember the Alps." To an ordinary man these would have seemed simply insurmountable, but Napoleon responded eagerly: "There shall be no Alps."

Despair Not the Days of Small Things. Little things may help a man to rise—a bent pin in an easy chair, for instance. Dr. Pierce's "Pleasant Laxative Pills" are small things, pleasant to take, and they relieve constipation, relieve torpid livers, and do wonders. Being purely vegetable they cannot harm any one. All druggists.

A CONNECTICUT genius has invented a most most excellent remedy for rheumatism. It is Dr. Pierce's "Favorite Prescription" and is everywhere known. It is the standard remedy for female complaints and weaknesses. It is sold by druggists.

Great Britain's naval outlay this year will be about $28,000,000.

Essence of Heart Disease. No other disease is attracting so much attention and apprehension at the present time as Heart Disease. This is caused by the fact that physicians, as a rule, do not treat the disease successfully. "Dead without a moment's warning." This is an untruth. Warnings are given by thousands. Every unnatural heart symptom indicates the need of that renowned specific, Dr. Kilmor's Ocean-Weed Heart Remedy, the one remedial agency of the age.

A lady writes: "Nearly two years ago I was badly afflicted with Heart Disease and Dropsy, with prostration of the nervous system, my heart would give two regular beats, then would tumble off and seem to stop. I would be dizzy and faint, and cold, such death coldness it would seem to freeze my very vitals. I was so weak that I had to be in and out of bed; my limbs swelled so badly that they would not leave the impression of my fingers for a long time, my face and eyes were so bloated that there would be sacs over my eyes; physicians gave me up to die, they said I could live but a few weeks. I had read of Dr. Kilmor's Ocean-Weed Heart Remedy, and I bought a bottle. I was induced to try Dr. Kilmor's Ocean-Weed Heart Remedy. So rapid and complete did the medicines effect a cure that it seemed like a miracle. "It almost brought me out of the grave. I am nearly 64 years of age and now enjoy a good degree of health. I will cheerfully answer all letters sent in regard to what your next issue to 'Health' has done for me and others of my acquaintance."

Mrs. L. D. Colman, Fairview, Wayne Co., N. Y., Dec. 24, 1888.

A Druggist writes: "Express one-half dozen Ocean-Weed Heart Remedy. Mr. T. Turner says Ocean-Weed is helping his mother, over three of our best Physicians had failed. The above is for her."

E. T. Webb, Jackson, Mich., Dec. 15, 1888.

A Druggist writes: "I have sold your medicines for several years and used them in my family with the best of satisfaction. I always recommend them with perfect confidence—their sales exceed that of any other kind I handle."

D. J. Palmer, Union, N. Y., Nov. 10, 1888.

W. W. Wescott writes: "I was troubled for several years with a nervous difficulty of the heart. I suffered miserably from palpitation and had very irregular pulsations, varying from 40 to 150 per minute, and a general sluggishness of circulation. Doctored with the best country physicians, but grew worse. I used your Ocean-Weed Heart Remedy. I cured myself, and can cheerfully and conscientiously recommend it to anyone suffering with heart difficulty."

Peculiar

To itself in many important particulars, Hood's Sarsaparilla is different from and superior to any other medicine.

Peculiar in combination, proportion and preparation of ingredients, Hood's Sarsaparilla possesses the full curative value of the best known remedies of the vegetable kingdom.

Peculiar in its medicinal merit, Hood's Sarsaparilla accomplishes cures hitherto unknown.

Peculiar in strength and economy—Hood's Sarsaparilla is the most powerful medicine known, and is made, than of all other blood purifiers, to cost "100 doses one dollar." Medicines in larger and smaller bottles require larger doses, and do not produce as good results as Hood's Sarsaparilla.

Peculiar in its "good name at home"—there is nothing so good as Hood's Sarsaparilla sold in Lowell, where it is made, than of all other blood purifiers, to cost "100 doses one dollar." Medicines in larger and smaller bottles require larger doses, and do not produce as good results as Hood's Sarsaparilla.

Peculiar in its phenomenal record of sales abroad—no other preparation has ever attained such popularity in so short a time. Be sure to get

A MOTHER SAVED FROM AN UNTIMELY DEATH.

Fears of Sorrow Turned to Smiles of Rejoicing.

ROCHESTER, Aug. 31, 1888. PARDEE MEDICINE CO.—Gentlemen: I am now seventy-three years old, and until I was twenty was always strong and healthy; but the amount of suffering I have endured since that time, I feel to be sufficient for a life-time. I had a severe attack of catarrh of the bladder, which completely prostrated me; my limbs and feet and in fact my whole body, was so drawn out of shape that it was impossible to move without assistance. I was unable to straighten my limbs or to sleep on my feet for more than a year and my life was despaired of. Children and friends were called in to see me. I was treated by three good physicians, but nothing they could do helped me, and I was very nearly dead when I was taken to the hospital. I was cured by its use, that it gave me confidence in it, although I confess I had little or no faith in its use.

I commenced taking the Remedy as directed, and after taking it short time could see that it was helping me. I began to perspire freely, and as the perspiration increased the pain decreased, and my clothing and bedding was moist with perspiration, being nearly as "yellow as saffron." I had taken the Remedy but a short time, when I could sleep like a child, and relish my food like one.

Thank God it has cured me, and I am as healthy and strong as before, and can walk and have as free use of my limbs as ever. I have recommended your Remedy to very many who were afflicted, and I don't know of any one who has not been cured. I would like to see you, if it will cure my age. You are at liberty to use my name, if it will be the means of inducing any poor sufferer to use your kind Remedy. I am very gratefully yours, Mrs. JANE A. FLACK.

300 Jefferson Avenue, Rochester, N. Y. The sale of Dr. Pardee's Remedy in this city exceeds that of any other medicine. It has exceeded that of any other medicine.
