Mrs. A. Hayden is paying a visit to Tionesta friends.

Mr. George Craig of Fern City, Clarion county, paid a short visit to Tionesta last week.

Mr. John Kron of Kittanning was a visitor to Tionesta this week, returning home yesterday.

Just as usual! H. J. Hopkins & Co. are going to fill their Store with Christmas Goods in about a week.

Herman & Siggins have an elegant line of holiday goods,—as fine, in fact, as could be found anywhere in the larger towns.

John Osgood of Newtown got a new 40-dollar deer a short time ago, and killed a nice gun with it the first day he went out.

Mr. George J. Lucy departed for Oregon last week, where he will take a look at the lumbering prospects of that land of jumbo trees.

Mr. Ed. Brennan paid Tionesta friends a short visit last week. He has lately been a California resident, and was looking well and happy as usual.

Collector Canfield wishes us to sound a warning note to those taxables who are still in arrears, that in order to save the additional five per cent. they must cash up p. d. q.

Miss Lydia Weant of Nebraska, this county, returned home from Youngsville, Warren county, last Saturday, where she has been attending school for the past four months.

The oil market is slowly but steadily advancing, and will perhaps continue to do so until the present shut down embargo is raised. An 80 or perhaps 90-cent market may be reached before the first of the year.

Feezel & Wagner, Druggists, Rock Island, Ill., write: Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup is the leading cough medicine in our city. We sell more, in fact four times more, than of any other.

Attention is called to the special holiday offering of Nelson Greenland, Warren's enterprising furniture dealer, which appears in broad gauge style in this issue. When in Warren don't fail to give him a call.

David L. King, the murderer of Jas. C. Davis at St. Petersburg, and convicted at Clarion recently, will hang on January 26, 1888, if the program arranged by Governor Beaver on Wednesday last is carried out.

The suit against Mr. H. G. Tinker, of Oil City, for false pretenses was tried in Franklin last week and resulted in a verdict of guilty, to the surprise of his friends. His counsel moved for a new trial, and the same was granted.

A life of indolent ease and sensuality, the use of highly seasoned animal food, and alcoholic drinks are the predisposing causes of Gout. When aware of its presence in the system lose no time in procuring Salvation Oil. It kills pain. Price 25 cents a bottle.

Mr. Wolcott was successful last week in getting the tools out of his well, and on Monday commenced drilling again. The drill had only gone a short distance when a vein of salt water was struck, which makes a very unfavorable outlook for an oil well. Nevertheless they are making a strenuous effort to exhaust the salt water, and if successful may yet have a fair producer. P. S.—The well is down and, barring salt water, is dry. The hole is something over 1500 feet deep.

For Sale.—House and Lot in Tionesta Borough, corner Elm and Helen Streets. Alley back. Lot 62x165, House 22x32, with 8x22 addition. 6 rooms and pantry. Good cellar. Water at door. Barn 28x40. Outbuildings, fruit trees, &c. All newly painted. At a bargain.

ABSCONDED!

On last Thursday H. J. Hopkins left the country. After the usual investigation it was discovered that he had taken with him all the available goods of the Firm and gone East to purchase a stock of Holiday Goods that will be an eye-opener to every body.

The family of the late Mrs. George Morgan desire through our columns to express their thanks to friends here for the many kind acts and expressions of sympathy shown them during their late sad affliction. And especially to the members of the choir for the sweet and appropriate music rendered at the funeral.

W. J. and "Tommy" Thompson, of Plum township, were in the city this afternoon on their way home from a deer hunt in Forest county. They had better luck than some of their fellow hunters, having slain four deer, one fox, two coons and squirrels beyond computation.—Blizzard. If that's the case it beats the record thus far this season.

It has recently been decided by Judge Biddle, of Philadelphia, that checks given in payment of debts to persons within the same city must be presented on the day of date or the following day or else the drawer cannot be held responsible for the failure to pay them. Those who are in the habit of holding checks for several days should reflect on the decision.

Some of the men who started on the boats and barges from this place last week have returned, having gotten through to Pittsburgh safely, while others have returned from different points along the river, having been unable to get down on account of wind, low water and slush ice. The river raised several inches Monday night and yesterday, which will most likely let all down.

Last week the Council of Tidioute repealed the ordinance passed some time ago extending the freedom of the town, as it were, to the Tionesta Gas Company. This action, following on the heels of the recent gas strike in Hickory township, would indicate that they propose to pipe in their own gas. But they should not be too hasty, as it might become necessary to come to the Tionesta company yet for their supply.

A quarterly meeting will be held at Mt. Zion Evangelical Church commencing next Saturday evening, Dec. 10th and continuing over Sabbath, Rev. Dewdney, of Franklin, officiating as substitute for the Presiding Elder, Rev. DeYaux will preach at West Hickory Sabbath evening at 7 o'clock; Town Line, Dec. 17th at 7 p. m.; Newtown, 18th, at 12 m.; Kelletville, same day at 2 p. m.; and at West Hickory in the evening at 7 o'clock.

Miss Kate Guenther, teacher of Kelletville School, makes the following report for the month ending Dec. 5, 1887: No. enrolled, males 26, females 13; total 39. The names of pupils present every day during the month are: Clarence Shaw, Walter Miller, Byron Russell, Clarence Wilson, Missie Shook, Mary Pierson, and John, Thomas, Kate and Olive Wolf. Jennie Pierson and Richard Miller were absent but one day. School officers and parents have not favored us with their visits yet, but we hope to see them soon.

The Franklin News relates the following account of a hairbreadth escape of a former Tionesta young man: Fred Cummings, who drives the delivery wagon for W. H. and C. W. Seaton's variety store, of Oil City, was the hero of an exciting runaway near Tarkill yesterday. His team became frightened and started to run while he was pulling away on the lines a bit in the mouth of one of the horses broke and they dashed into the woods. Fred, escaped injury, but it was an exciting ride and a perilous stop. He had to borrow a harness to get home with.

"Where was Moses when the light went out?" is a question that seems peculiarly applicable to the present state of Tionesta's darkness, since the Gas Company shut the throttle on the big torches. There seems to be a hitch between the Company and the Council. The former has made a proposition to put up torches similar to the one now in front of Mr. Kelly's residence, for five dollars each, furnishing every thing, and charge $1.00 per month each for the use of gas. Estimating that twelve such would be sufficient to light the town, it would cost $204. The Council seems disposed to accept this offer, but the Company refuses to be bound for a longer period than one year, and here is where the "hitch" seems to come in. The Council wants to put the matter in such shape that at the end of the year the borough may not be compelled to change again, and the Company don't want to encumber itself with a pledge to furnish the lights for more than a year. And so the matter stands. The Council has felt its way pretty carefully and finds that its course is endorsed by pretty much all the citizens. Whether we will have to depend upon pale luna and the beautiful snow to furnish us light for the balance of the winter remains to be seen, but it looks that way just now.

The following from the Clarion Jacksonian, will snugly fit all country places in the United States and Canada, so far as our observation reaches, and is therefore a good thing to pass around: "Postmaster Kaufman enters a righteous protest against five or six members of the same family each inquiring for mail three or four times per day, and he is right. Parents should understand that it is only by courtesy that their children are given mail matter without a written order, and this courtesy should be appreciated. One member of a family should be designated to lift the mail matter for all, and parents should see to it that other members are not permitted to annoy the postmaster and cause delay to the patrons of the office."

The Lawrence House of this place is receiving a thorough overhauling, and the new proprietors, Messrs. L. & D. W. Agnew. They have commenced at the garret and gone to the cellar in their cleaning up process, and given the Hotel the most thorough renovating it has had since it was newly built. The halls, as well as every room in the house, are newly papered and made to look as neat, clean and cheerful as a little parlor, while gas fixtures have been arranged all through, up stairs and down, both for heating and lighting. When the work now being done is finished, which will be in ample time for court week, this house will compare favorably with any of the first class hotels in this section as a pleasant resort for the traveling public. The proprietors are old and experienced hotel men and have a knack of making their guests feel at home. In connection with the house is a first class livery where an excellent rig can be had upon a moment's notice. As to the culinary department it is scarcely worth while to speak, as the well known abilities of the landladies in charge is ample guarantee that their table will not be excelled in either tasteful arrangement or palatableness and variety of substantial and delicacies.

OBITUARY.

Mrs. Elizabeth Morgan, relict of the late George Morgan, was born near Allentown, Berks County, Pa., Dec. 24, 1818, and died at the home of her son, Fred. M. Morgan, in Oil City, Pa., Dec. 2, 1887, and was therefore aged 68 years, 11 months, and 8 days.

When yet a young girl Mrs. Morgan's parents moved to Clarion county, where she was married to Mr. George Morgan when about 18 years of age. Mr. M. being a little more than three years her senior. The union, which was one of the happiest till death separated them, was blessed with a large family of children, 15 in number, of whom eight—six sons and two daughters—survive, the others having been taken off mostly in infancy. In 1848 the family moved to Emlenton, Venango county, where they resided until 1868, when they became residents of Tionesta, where for some time Mr. Morgan was engaged in building oil barges. Theu after a residence at Bear Creek of about 6 years they again settled in Tionesta, where Mrs. Morgan was bereft of her aged and devoted life partner in June, 1882. The deceased continued her residence here until persuaded to give up house-keeping and make her home with her youngest son, Fred., at Oil City, where she received every comfort that could be bestowed upon a loved and loving mother.

Mrs. Morgan was one of the most industrious of women, and besides her own large family, she carefully reared three grandsons to young manhood. Of the kindest and most sympathetic disposition, she was beloved by all her neighbors and acquaintances, who deeply mourn her loss. She was generally robust and healthy, but some weeks ago received a stroke of paralysis, from which she partially recovered only to receive a second stroke, which ended in her death after an illness of about two weeks. The funeral services were held in the Presbyterian Church at this place on Saturday forenoon last, Rev. Hickling officiating. All but two of her children, besides three grandchildren, were present to pay the last sad tribute of respect to a dear mother. Her remains were laid to rest beside those of her husband in Riverside Cemetery. May she rest in peace.

A New Strike in this County.

Monday's Derrick has the following "special" from Tidioute, relative to the new gas strike of which we made mention two weeks ago:
"Latest advices from the Bucklin well on Tract 5,207 in Forest County say that the gas has increased beyond all expectations. It is now 45 feet in the sand, which is full of gas. Four large and seemingly distinct veins have been encountered from which the flow is very strong. Its roar can be heard over four miles and is pronounced by every one who visits it to be a 'Jonah.' The parties interested are still sanguine of oil, and with that object in view, drilling will be resumed Monday morning. As a gas well its success is already assured and Tidioute will have cheap fuel in the near future. A rig is going up on Tract 5,208, about one mile south of the above well and its completion will be pushed forward rapidly."

To which the Derrick adds editorially: This well is located at the mouth of Queen. It was started some two years ago by Bucklin and others, and drilled to a depth of 700 feet, when the drill was stopped. Last month, C. K. Book, of Bradford, became interested in the venture, drilling was then resumed with a view to striking the well to the Cherry Grove sand, which it was roughly estimated would be found at about 1,400 feet. At 1,000 feet, however, gas was struck. For a time no attention was paid to it, but it increased with every bit and ended in a roar. The drillers are at a loss to account for it. The rock is unidentified. Numerous wells have been drilled both East and West of Queen, all of them failing to find gas except one well, a short distance from the gasser, in which a little gas was found; this well is known as the "burnt well," and the new rig, we hear about is located between these wells. At 10 feet in the sand something went wrong with the jars, work suspended, and nothing has been done since. C. K. Book came down from Bradford Friday to witness the effect of further drilling, but upon learning the facts above stated, he returned to Bradford by the first train. Mr. Book is as much at sea concerning the remarkable find as any body. Gas or anything else at that depth was entirely unexpected. Speaking of the pressure, Mr. Book says it will lift a full set of tools off the casing head, but he has some doubts about its lasting qualities. The well is blowing off through a 2 inch discharge, which probably accounts for the great noise made in escaping, which is heard at a long distance from the well. If the supply holds out and proves to be reasonably continuous, it will be a ten strike for Tidioute. In any event, being the first gas found on East Hickory, it is an interesting study and there is no telling in advance of the drill what it may lead to.

1887 vs. 1865.

ED. REPUBLICAN.—Equally unfounded and untrue is the assertion that the G. A. R. is but a political machine and run in the interest of the Republican party, &c. No assertion could be more foreign to the facts than the above. It is certainly amazing to see how low some people can bring themselves simply to gratify their passions for rule or ruin. Let us consider the ground work of this false accusation against the G. A. R.: No party, as such, has arrayed itself against the G. A. R. All parties have repeatedly proclaimed their admiration for the old Soldier and their dependent ones. And so far as mere words and promises go there has been nothing more to be desired from any party; or in other words, if the resolutions in conventions could have taken disabled soldiers from the poor houses, relieved the destitute widows and orphans, all would ere this time be generously provided for. Nor does the G. A. R. stand arrayed against any party. It stands not upon the platform of either Republican or Democratic party; it stands upon a broader platform than political views can or dare inaugurate, namely: Fraternity, Charity and Loyalty.

The G. A. R. has no quarrel with any party; their complaints are against certain individuals or members of different parties who having been elected to office on platforms which advocated exact justice to the soldier and their dependent widows and orphans, but have gone back on their pledges and have recorded their names against all legislation created in the interest of the soldier. Prominently figuring among this class is Grover Cleveland, and simply because the soldiers have lifted their almost unanimous voices against his acts and insults, certain political tricksters are making the air, as it were, black with calumniation. But while there is an old soldier left to tread the soil of a redeemed country, an eye not too dim to behold the grand old stars and stripes under which they fought, no official position will shelter any man high or low from the just indignation they may incur at the hands of the soldier. The old soldier has something that is nearer and dearer to him than political affiliations; dearer to them are the men who stood shoulder to shoulder in the shock of conflict, who marched together through storm and mud, whose muskets joined together in shooting the life out of treason and rebellion, who suffered an starved together in prison pens, and though they do not now recognize any necessity for conflict between their comradeship and their political affiliations, between their lasting affection for comrades and political leaders and associates, yet there should be a necessity for this there is no room for doubt.

as to which will be sacrificed; it will be the political life every time.

The old soldiers have ample and sufficient reasons for denouncing, almost unanimously, as they do, the insults and acts hurled upon them by the President and his unprincipled anti-Union dictators; they have incurred the candid indignation of the soldiery and it is but mete that the same should revert again upon the deserting heads irrespective of party affiliations. Is it possible that Mr. Cleveland and his dictators and the leaders of his party have the least shadow of a right to expect the old soldier to honor the President in a manner contrary to the honor paid to even the heroes of a dozen battles? Yes, by their fruits ye shall know them. They did expect, or at least they desired it, at Wheeling in August last. Every sensible individual knows for himself that there conceived idea of placing the bust of an enemy of the soldier in such a manner as to be saluted by them would have been accepted as their approval of the course he had pursued in relation to the soldier, had the soldiers unceremoniously passed under and saluted the bust. No; we say to Mr. Cleveland and his particular friends, that it was not the dear old flag the old soldiers there refused to salute, for their love for that flag they fought so long and well to sustain it as dear to them as the blood that courses their veins; but it was the stain they saw upon it they so honorably refused to recognize. Too well did the soldier recollect the opportunity Mr. Cleveland had of mingling with them in paying their annual, solemn and heart-felt tribute to their dead comrades on the thirtieth of May last; did he accept that opportunity? No, but he takes his pole and line on that day dear to every patriotic heart, and strolls along the mountain streams. There was no pleasure suited to his mind and affections; he fled to other parts in quest of associations more congenial to his taste, like the owl that flies from the vocal grove and the society of the feathered choir, and prefers the shades of night to the beams of day. Is it any wonder that the old soldiers should not prefer to associate with him at St. Louis so soon after the above episode? Is it any wonder that the soldiers speak out so unanimously against a man whose only ambition is for self aggrandizement; whose patriotism is so weak as to permit him to step across the line of authority and hand over relics won by other hands on bloody fields?

We assert without fear of successful contradiction that the G. A. R. has done more to bridge the chasm of sectional animosity than any other set or class of men in existence. Nor have they done so by making concessions unbefitting true soldiers; they have not, nor move will, lose sight of this fact: The North was eternally right; the South was eternally wrong. The soldiers on both sides have met each other time and again and shook hands over this solemn, stubborn declaration. But strange sounds come to our ears of late; we have heard no such sounds for many years: Mr. Cleveland scarcely reaches his home from his Southern trip until a Davis, an Early, is talking treason and kissing the emblems of rebellion. Whether Mr. Cleveland encouraged and set a new the slumbering brands of treason on fire, we know not, and perhaps never shall, but we will see in the future what we shall see. Nor will we be slow in sustaining the character and principles of our order no matter by whom assailed. Political ties dwindle into insignificance when compared to our love of country, her patriotic defenders and dependent ones. J. A.

$1.00 Subscription per Year. $1.00
The Best Home Paper In America.
This is not brag.
It is a plain statement of an honest fact. Ordinarily the weekly issue of a daily paper is esteemed to be merely a digest of the week's news, suited alone for rural readers.
This is not true in reference to the Weekly Press.
It is sponsored and edited by a trained corps of writers selected for the purpose of making the best paper.
It is adapted to the improvement and enjoyment of both sexes, of all ages, of every family whether a resident of the city, village or country.
Not a word of crime or impure suggestion in any part of the paper.
It is an old paper and carries its age and reputation quietly well.
Now we are seeking a new and larger circle of readers. As an inducement to this end the Weekly Press in connection with any four dollar magazine in America will be sent for the single subscription price of such magazine.
Or, on application, we will make a special combination of any two or more periodicals published in America, either weekly or monthly, in conjunction with the Weekly Press at such low rate as will be equivalent to a year's subscription to the Weekly Press free for one year.
We make this exceptional proposition in order that the Weekly Press may go on trial in a million households for an entire year.
Sample copies furnished free on application. Address, THE PRESS COMPANY, Limited, Philadelphia, Pa.
