NEWS AND NOTES FOR WOMEN.

House-robes are being made of moire.

Curled natural lamb is used for borders upon short cloth jackets.

Bridal veils are secured to the coiffure with a wreath of orange blossoms.

Black and white continue to be a fashionable mixture for evening bonnets.

Lillian Russell, the singer, drinks glycerine and beef tea to improve her voice.

The fashion of wearing lace very high up about the throat with dressy costumes is very popular.

Long, soft vests of silk gauze, have a frill of lace at the left side, and many drooping bows of broadened ribbon.

Dove gray and cream white pilot cloth fabrics will be very much used during the summer for dressy afternoon gowns.

The most elegant dinners are served on glass and china, the handsome plate being held in reserve for teas and at home.

The down quilt, except it be used over the feet, often makes much discomfort, and is not a wholesome bed covering.

Cashmere is again to the fore and is very much sought in the new shades of rose, cordova or goblin, to be used in new spring costumes.

Queen Victoria has a mania for getting her portrait taken. Her last had in this way to have, her Royal Highnesses taken in tableaux vivants.

Perfums form the prettiest possible dinner decoration—laid flat on the cloth about the foot of the candle sticks and large lamp base they are most effective.

Gilt and silver will be in great use in embroideries, cords, galloons, ornaments in applique, and for pins, slides, and metallic garnitures of every description.

Parasols of gingham and saten now come to match those as closely as more costly fabrics, and are so cheap as to be within reach of the most moderate purse.

Miss Torry, the expert cooking instructor, says that her penalty for making mistakes in cooking, is to require the mistake to be eaten by the person making it.

The Boston women are nothing if not progressive. Now they are going in, some of them, for chairs in the public street where they can have their boots blacked.

Jerseys, of elegant finish, are well covered with an all-over design in gilt or silver braid. The vermicelli pattern being preferred for this braiding in lavish fashion.

The tea gown, next to the debutante's costume, is that which absorbs most of the attention of the modiste, and on this she lavishes her ingenuity and fancy without stint.

Hard pillows well stuffed with curled hair or uncurled wool, are better for the health than feathers if not so comfortable. Feather pillows, if soft, encourage wrinkles it is said.

Biscuit shades, grays and blues, will be the leading colors for street costumes the coming season, and whenever it is possible the braiding in color will be seen as a decoration.

Black wool dresses are, if possible, in greater demand than ever before, notwithstanding the many beautiful novelties in colored wool fabrics which are being constantly brought out.

The Baroness Burdett-Coutts takes a deep interest in the poor of London, and is at the head of a scheme providing workshops furnished with sewing machines for needy sewing girls.

A Montgomery Station (Penn.) farmer recently sent $10 to the Commissioners of Emigration in New York, requesting them to find him a wife who could hoe and do farm work. The commission was declined.

Old-time lawns with impossible stripes and more impossible flowers are fully revived, and will be made up either with boucés all over, or three flowers at back and deep, much wrinkled drapery in front.

There is an effort being made just now to return to the old bow knot method of dressing the hair, such as one sees in pictures of the fashions of 1821. It is rather a trying fashion, and only young, fresh faces can stand it.

Chicago ladies used to eat so much arsenic to purify the complexion that druggists ordered it in quantities to amaze manufacturers, but the "fashion" has changed, and now not an ounce is sold where a pound used to go.

No fashionable city room is considered well appointed without an antique music box or harpichord. Guitars, mandolins, banjos and harps are counted in as pretty lumber for the rooms that are not Greek, Moorish, or oriental.

Two New Orleans young ladies who find it suddenly necessary to work for a living, have opened a dairy and sell milk. They have a little cart, and every morning bright and early may be seen driving down the avenue behind their bright tin cans and pails.

Queen Victoria dislikes the electric light, and refuses to have it in her palace. She has at length permitted one of the royal yachts to be fitted with electric lamps, except her sleeping cabin and saloon. It is said soft oil lamps best suit the complexions of elderly ladies.

Nothing is more out of place on a baby than jewelry. Use narrow ribbon instead of the sleeve clasps, and put the necklace away until she is a grown girl. Substitute for the ring you intend giving your god-child, a dress of linen lawn, muslin, or dimity, dainty and slight, and its mother will bless as well as thank you.

The Pull-Mat Gazette tells of a unique kind of torture in London shops. In certain large West End shops, the female assistants are all doomed to a uniform size in waists, varying from eighteen to twenty inches. Tall girls and stout girls, all must conform to a measure at least six inches below the natural size.

Worth, the French milliner, lives in the suburbs of Paris in a palace that covers several acres and is gorgeously furnished. Once a year it is thrown open to his employees, and the fete lasts a day and a night. On this day each of the women employed by Worth is permitted to select a dress from his stock, and it is made up according to her directions.

Mrs. Lovejoy, of Albany, Me., has gone upon record as a remarkable woman. Her husband, who is Postmaster and Town Treasurer, was sick nine weeks recently and she took the whole care of him. She also ran the postoffice and acted as Treasurer, keeping all the books and doing other work up all right and attending to a large correspondence. Mrs. Lovejoy is seventy-nine years old.

The Empress of Austria, alarmed at her increasing embonpoint, has taken the advice of her physicians to go in for plenty of exercise. Any day may be witnessed at the castle Godole a slight, awe-inspiring or comical, according to the opinions of the spectators of a stout, elderly Empress, fencing with a denizen young Archduchess, Marie Valerie by name.

A Glimpse of Centuries Ago.

It gives one a little flutter of excitement, says a correspondent of the London Review, writing about the excavations at Pompeii, to look at a man, perfect in form and feature, lying just as he died on that November day exactly 1800 years ago next November—to see his hands clenched and his teeth set, and the very look of horror on his face that came there as he fell, fleeing from the doomed city—fell to rise no more. And in another case lies a beautiful girl of Pompeii, who died with her arms across her eyes, shutting out the sight of the swift death that was overtaking her. And near her lies a poor little dog who had died that day. He still wears the collar and chain that bound him to the kennel and prevented his escape. The poor little Pompeian bow-wow, who lived 1800 years ago, lies upon his side, his limbs drawn together in agony, his lips parted just as they were when they gave the last dying whimper of terror and despair. That little dog of A. D. 79 has achieved immortality, and like a good many four-footed creatures, he paid a good price for the advertisement.

True to His Duty.

During the siege of Gibraltar, his Governor, General Elliott, was one day getting a tour of inspection, when he came upon a German soldier, who, though standing at his post, neither presented arms nor even held his musket. "Do you know me, sentinel?" inquired the General; "why do you neglect your duty?" "I know you well, General, and my duty also," was the reply; "but within the last few minutes two of the fingers of my right hand have been shot off, and I am unable to hold my musket." "Why don't you go and have them bound up?" Because in Germany a man is forbidden to quit his post until he is relieved by another. The General instantly dismounted. "Now, my friend," said he, "give me your musket, and I will relieve you. Go and have your wounds dressed." The soldier obeyed, but went first to the nearest guardhouse, when he reported that the General was standing on duty in his place. His injury suited him for active service, but the story of his courage soon reached England, and he was made an officer.

The Handsome Lady in Town.

Remarkable to a friend the other day that she knew Kemp's Balsam for the Throat and Lungs was a superior remedy, as it stopped her cough instantly when other remedies had no effect whatever. So to prove this and convince you of its merit, any druggist will give you a Sample Bottle Free. Large bottles 50 cents and $1.

8500 Reward.
