

FARM AND GARDEN.

The Perfect Cow.

We have constantly held that there is no such thing as perfection in the animal kingdom. An animal is simply more or less perfect in the line of purpose for which it is kept.

Mr. Josiah Hoopes urged readers, years ago, to make a map of the new orchard. Labels get lost, or their lettering becomes illegible. But if the location of each tree in the row be plainly indicated on a sheet of paper for careful preservation, the record of varieties is rendered trustworthy and permanent.

President George T. Angell, of the New York Society for Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, says that in Russia binders are never used, and a shying horse is no more than a saddle horse, or cavalry horse, or artillery horse.

Mr. A. W. Cheever makes in the New England Farmer the suggestion that in purchasing a windmill for pumping water, a sawing wood, or similar kind of farm work, it is not a good plan to select one of small size.

In butter, says the Ploughman, there is one great essential thing to be considered, and that is, perfect cleanliness. The cows must be clean, their udders whole and the hands of the milkers perfectly clean.

Whether the "perfect cow" will be recognized as a butter cow, or an animal for milk, I think admits of no distinction. Milk is valuable only for the solids it contains in fats, cheese and sugar.

Curious Beings in a California County. Mention was lately made of a wild woman in the northern portion of Sonoma County, who refuses to live in a house, will not eat food unless forced to, and roams over the mountains as the companion of cattle.

Farm and Garden Notes. Plant the best of everything. Poultry infested with lice become too weak to lay.

ing or excitement of any kind.

Farmers generally do not yet appreciate the value of bran as a feeding substance. It contains less oil than cornmeal, but more of the essential elements of food.

Professor Arnold states that it costs more to make milk from old cows than it does from young ones having the same milk capacity. He says that a rule the best effects do not last beyond the eighth year of the cow's age.

A Pig Causes International Arbitration.

A NEW DEPARTURE.

Said Uncle Sam: "I will be wise, And thus the Indian killize; And stand of guns that kill a mile, Tobacco, lead and liquor vile, Instead of serving out a meal, Or sending Agents out to steal, I'll give, domestic arts to teach, A cake of 'IVORY SOAP' to each, Before it flies the guilty stain, The grease and dirt no more, 'Twill change their native color, And wash their darkest blotches, They'll turn their bows to plows, And bury hatchets under soil, In wisdom and in worth increasing, And ever smoke the pipe of peace, For ignorance can never stop, With such a foe as 'IVORY SOAP'."

A WORD OF WARNING.

There are many white soaps, each represented to be "just as good as Ivory"; they ARE NOT, but like all counterfeits, lack the peculiar and valuable qualities of the genuine. Ask for "Ivory" Soap and insist upon getting it.
