A Tylerburg dispatch in this morning's Derrick reports the arrest of John Everhart, husband of the murdered Mrs. Everhart, by Detective Ewing.

Miss Maud Davis, who has had charge of the musical department of the leading institution of learning at West Chester, Pa., for the past year, is spending her summer vacation at home.

Births—to Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Klump, Tionesta Boro, July 5, a son. To Mr. and Mrs. F. R. Lanson, Tionesta Boro, July 6, a daughter. To Mr. and Mrs. Truman Hill, Hickory township, July 7, a son.

The funeral of Judge Trunkie took place in Franklin yesterday, and was very largely attended by prominent men from all parts of the State. S. D. Irwin Esq., represented the Forest county bar at the obsequies.

Mr. S. R. Cogan arrived from West Virginia on Saturday last, and will remain a few weeks with his family. Sim is looking well, and we're pleased to state his lumbering business down there is in a prosperous condition.

Wm. F. Blum has taken the agency for the Triumph Mowing Machine, claimed to be the best in the United States. He has orders for two or three already, and is ready to wait on all who come. Every machine fully warranted.

Chas. Davis, is home from Winslow, Arizona Territory, where he spent the past ten months in the employ of the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe Ry. "Monk" was with Ben. Caldwell during most of his stay west, and reports having left him well and prosperous.

Clarington has organized a Camp of the Patriotic Sons of America, which has already over 70 members. The members turned out in full regalia on the fourth and marched in the procession, and their appearance was very favorably commented upon by all. The new institution is known as Washington Camp, No. 304, and its success is assured.

We join the many friends of Mr. and Mrs. Archie Puffenburger in congratulations upon the happy event of their marriage, notice of which appears in its proper place in this issue. Both are quite well and favorably known here and have many friends among our citizens, all of whom will wish them a happy and prosperous future, and in which the REPUBLICAN joins heartily.

As will be seen by notice in this issue, the Commissioners will receive sealed proposals for the erection of brick water closets, the drilling of a well, sewerage, etc., in the court house yard. Plans and specifications of the proposed work can be inspected at their office, and any other information obtained. A new system has long been needed there and we believe the Commissioners have now adopted the only feasible plan, and one which will meet the approbation of all.

Ex-District Attorney Geo. H. Higgins, of Warren, law partner of Senator O. C. Allen, while returning from a hunt in the woods near Stoneham, Wednesday afternoon, stumbled and fell. The weapon he carried, which was an improved Winchester repeating shot gun, was discharged, the contents of the cartridge going through his left wrist, shattering it so badly that it was found necessary to amputate the member above the wrist joint.

The State weather-crop bulletin for the past week says: No general rain occurred in the State during the past week. Local showers, varying in quantity from light to heavy, took place in several sections, but a number of observers report "no rain." An average temperature prevailed and the sunshine was seasonable. These conditions were favorable for hay and harvesting and in many counties, both are well advanced. The hay crop is a large one and the wheat yield will be more than an average. Corn is improving rapidly and oats are reported as heading nicely. The rain deficiency has not been injurious to growing crops, owing to the abundant moisture from rains during the preceding week.

The borough school board met on the 3d inst., for the purpose of selecting teachers for the ensuing term. There were several applications for the principalship, and the board took nine ballots before reaching a choice, Mr. A. M. Brooks, of Crawford county being elected on the ninth ballot. The teachers for the two other rooms are the same as last year, Mr. Bloomfield for the intermediate room, and Miss Kerr for the primary. Mr. B. gave good satisfaction during his term, which was doubtless the reason for his retention, while Miss Kerr is so universally satisfactory to the pupils and patrons, that she virtually has a life lease of the place if she cares for it. Mr. Brooks comes among us as a stranger, and must be tried, but we trust he will prove the right man in the right place. He should be given every encouragement by the patrons.

A jolly party of gentlemen from the vicinity of Sharpsburg, on the Allegheny river, arrived here in a special car on Friday morning last, and have pitched their tents, six in number, at the mouth of Tubbs Run, and are having a royal time of it. They expect to put in at least a month of good solid comfort, and for recreation will hunt, fish and read their testaments, no doubt, and they couldn't have selected a pleasanter spot between Pittsburgh and Olean for passing a few weeks free from business cares and anxieties. The following is a correct roster of the camp: Capt. John Young, Col. Henninger, John Hanlon, Mike Leary, Lewis De Bold, William Thompson, Geo. Eshman, Nicholas Eshman, Lewis Gable, John Burl, John Steiu. These gentlemen will be joined by others of their friends belonging to the club during their stay.

A four year old son of W. C. Asters died suddenly last Saturday. The little fellow was taken sick at a meal, vomited twice, went to sleep, and then into a stupor from which it was impossible to arouse him, death supervening in about six hours. The cause being obscure, a post mortem examination was decided on. The astonishing discovery was made that a piece of swallowed chewing gum had lodged in the pyloric orifice, completely blocking the passage between the stomach and the bowels. But what puzzles the physicians is why it should cause death in so short a time.—Tidoute News. This is the child which died at Braceville, mention of which was made in the REPUBLICAN at the time. It should be the means of putting a stop to the senseless habit of gum-chewing, which has become so remarkably prevalent of late among old and young. It is by no means the first case of the kind, and reports of similar deaths are becoming alarmingly frequent.

The hundred and twelfth anniversary of our Independence "has come and went," and from all reports it was of about the regulation pattern in the surrounding country. Tionesta celebrated, but didn't disjoint herself in the effort, that we have heard of. In fact her demonstration wasn't hardly up to the average size. The crowd was only fair, and the amusements ditto. The races—such of 'em as took place—weren't heavy, but perhaps as heavy as the prizes offered would justify. Hon. J. B. Agnew's speech occupied about 10 minutes in its delivery, which is plenty long for a Fourth of July oration. In that time Mr. Agnew said a good deal, all of which was very happily received by his audience. Mr. Irwin also talked at considerable length. Hon. C. A. Randall read the Declaration of Independence, which one fellow remarked was the "best speech in the business." Altogether the day passed off very pleasantly and quietly, and will long be remembered, &c., &c.

The following item taken from the Austin, Potter Co., Autograph of the 5th inst., will be read with much regret by the many friends of the parties mentioned, who were well known to many of our readers: "On Friday evening last Mr. B. De McClure received the sad intelligence from Waterford that his wife, A. Virginia, was dead. It is with regret that we are called upon to chronicle the death of this estimable lady, although while visiting her husband and other friends in this place only a few weeks since, it was evident that she would soon fall a victim to that dreaded enemy, consumption. She was the daughter of C. W. S. Anderson Esq., of Waterford, Pa., at whose residence she died. Mr. McClure returned from Waterford on Tuesday. The Autograph, with his many friends of Austin, extended to him the hand of sympathy in his sad bereavement.

The Oil City Derrick is endeavoring to attract attention to itself by publishing columns of hog wash relating to the Everhart murder. The most careful research of the entire series of articles fails to bring to light a single new feature in the tragedy. It is simply a poor rehash of old stories.—Clarion Jacksonian. Bro. Carlisle is in the habit of blaring out a heap o' truths in the course of a year's writings, but he has at no time struck the nail head any fairer blow than in this item. The Derrick renasher is shoved out on its mission of begging subscribers to the "weakly" about once a week, and generally returns with a bundle of slush that is dished out simply to satisfy the craving for news on this interesting topic. The most common-place facts are written up in a sensational and misleading manner, with utter disregard for the truth, while, as the above quotation states, there is never a new feature brought to light. It will soon be time for another dose, as the sheet will want to dispose of a few extra copies to keep the machine running, but there will be nothing new. See if there is.

On the night of the 27th ult., the town was visited by sneak thieves who made a sort of general raid on the private houses of the north ward. N. S. Foreman's house was visited, and Mr. F. relieved of his gold watch, valued at about $75, and his pocket book containing about $60 in cash was taken. These articles were in his room, not over six feet from where he slept. Jacob Hood's pants were taken out of his room and left lying near the gate. John Hood's house was also entered, as was also D. W. Clark's, Patrick Joyce's, and L. J. Hopkins' cellar. Nothing of value was missing from these places, but the thieves left unmistakable evidences of their presence, nearly all of the entrances being effected through windows. Mrs. Clark was awake and saw a man's shadow through the open door next her room, but supposed it to be her son, until she spoke, when the culprit fled. One night last week parties were prowling around Wm. Lawrence's premises, across the creek and tried all the doors, but were frightened away by the dog which kept up a continuous barking. On another night an effort was made to force an entrance into James Thomas' house, also across the creek, but James succeeded in keeping them out. This was about the boldest attempt that was made. Of course everybody is on guard now, but after the excitement dies down we may look for more, in which case we hope to hear of some of these sneaks carrying off a little cold lead. Let them have it straight. It's about the most effectual way of stopping it, and the cur who will go prowling around in that kind of business is better dead than alive anyway.

A Serious Accident. Last Friday about noon Wm. Hunter, who lives at the mouth of little Coon creek, a short distance above Nebraska, and who is employed on the little lumber railroad of Collins & Co., met with a frightful accident, from the effects of which, we are sorry to say, he will not likely ever fully recover. The train of cars at the head of the railroad had just been loaded with logs, and was starting down the grade, when the car on which Mr. Hunter had taken his position ran off the track. He quickly attempted to get out of the way of the next car which was very close, but was unable to make his escape, and the logs came down in such a manner as to catch Mr. Hunter about the hips, crushing him very badly. About three inches of the lower portion of the spine was broken off, and the right hip bones were badly fractured, just to what extent is impossible to present to state. Dr. Morrow, who happened to be in the vicinity at the time, was called and gave what relief was possible with the means at hand, but found the injured man in such agony as to make a thorough examination impracticable. Assisted by Dr. Siggins, and the administering of proper anesthetic, he made a fuller examination shortly afterward, when the injuries were found to be as above stated.

Mr. Hunter is a man noted for his industry and his serious misfortune is a matter of very general regret among his numerous friends and neighbors. At last accounts he was getting along as well as could be expected.

LATER—Dr. Morrow informs us that Mr. Hunter is worse and cannot survive.

Porkey Points.

The Fourth—the ever glorious—was duly celebrated in Porkey. Early in the morning the "eagles" began to scream from the various hen roosts, the flags to wave, and the glycerine to boom, while numerous patriotic dogs helped swell the sound of rejoicing.

About 1 p. m. there was a pleasant gathering of friends and neighbors at the picnic ground. Plenty of chickens nicely cooked, put in an appearance, and the small boy was so happy he even forgot the festive fire-cracker. But alas! all human happiness is short-lived, and the inner man was obliged to go unsatisfied for the time being, all on account of the gentle rain. The hospitable roof of J. H. McBride was conveniently near, however, and soon another assault was being made on the goodies. In the evening a hop was in progress that was well attended; every one who participated reported an enjoyable time, as all objectionable element was absent.

Mrs. Chas. French of Middletown, is ill with the measles.

Mr. and Mrs. N. Moore and Miss Stoles of Warren, were in Porkey Sunday, the guests of Mrs. Mason.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Hawks of Balltown started for Chautauqua Tuesday.

Miss May McMaster of Porkey is visiting friends in Mercer county.

It is expected that there will be services in Porkey, Sunday at 10 a. m., conducted by Rev. Rumberger. The Balltown people should bear in mind that Porkey contributes largely toward church purposes, consequently, while the school house is undergoing repairs, we are entitled to services.

Mrs. Phoebe Chesley, Peterson, Clay Co., Iowa, tells the following remarkable story, the truth of which is vouched for by the residents of the town: "I am 73 years old, have been troubled with kidney complaint and lameness for many years; finally tried Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption and found immediate relief, and am able to do all my own housework. Finally tried Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption and found immediate relief, and after using about a half dozen bottles found himself well and has had no return of the disease.
