WEST HICKORY. A Derrick correspondent writes up West Hickory as follows: Since the Derrick's last visit to West Hickory many improvements of a substantial nature have been made and the town at present is enjoying a boom. The town principally draws its support from the great lumber industry of this section, although it must not be forgotten that immense tanning institution of the West Hickory Tanning Company contributes much towards the prosperity of the place. West Hickory has a population of 250, which is composed of an industrious, genial and generous class. Within the past year there have been many new buildings erected, and a number more are now being built. J. H. Karns is building a large furniture house located on Main street, and when finished, will add greatly to the appearance of the thriving little town. Mr. Karns is a gentleman of good sound business qualifications, and will soon bring on a large and fine stock of furniture. Wm. P. Siggins is an old timer, and one of the principal business men of the place, in fact, "he is monarch of all he surveys." For 15 or 20 years he has been engaged in the coal and lumber business, and of a recent date, has embarked in the dry goods, notions and millinery business. Hardenburgh & Allen are not the least conspicuous among the business houses of the place. They are engaged in the general mercantile trade and are doing a flourishing business. Dunn & Turner, located on Depot street, is another of the prominent business institutions, and carry a stock of goods involving a capital of $8,000. Their place of business is 80x28 feet, two stories high, and is built of the best material, and constructed upon the latest architectural plans. Wilkins & Wheeler have a monopoly of the drug business, and enjoy a good trade. Mr. Wilkins does the "pill act" daily, and judging from the scarcity of sickness in town, his work must be good. The store is neat and well stocked, lighted and heated by natural gas, and in every way attractive. The Globe Hotel is the only public place of entertainment in town. The genial proprietor, Mr. M. A. Spoor was formerly an Oil City man and is meeting with great success in the hotel business here. His table is always supplied with the best market articles and dished up in the most palatable style. His house is well furnished and everything about the institution bears the impress of being first class. Barney Dessel, the noted tailor, is here too, and by first class work, square and honest dealing with all, has built up a good trade. Orion Siggins is engaged in the lumber business quite extensively, and makes a success of it as he does of everything he puts his hands to in business. The Hickory Tanning Co. is the largest institution of this kind in this section of country. It is one the finest tanning plants in every respect in Forest county, and cost over $300,000. It is fitted up with all the latest improved machinery and appliances known to the trade, and the class of leather is said to be of a superior quality; they employ from 60 to 70 men whose wages range from $35 to $80 per month. They tan and prepare for the market 800 hides per week, and do a yearly business of over $200,000. The success of the institution may, in a large measure, be attributed to Mr. John P. Keefe, Superintendent; he is an Eastern man who understands the business in all its ramifications; has much force of character, and understands successfully how to handle a lot of men. Mr. B. G. Stiles, the genial book-keeper, in a most satisfactory way attends to the business affairs of the company. The men employed in the factory are an intelligent, well-to-do class. The following is a partial list of those who are working for the company: H. C. Kenable, W. C. Cooper, C. A. Miller, R. M. Colvert, A. A. Copeland, Thomas Walsh, D. Doherty, Eugene Holmes, A. P. Copeland, G. A. Bryan, S. C. Smith, John Elder, Henry Stewart and H. H. McDonald. The town boasts of a singer of no little merit in the person of F. A. Wheeler, who for seven years has been station agent, of late, however, turning his attention to music. He expects soon to go to Boston to complete his studies and then to make music his sole occupation.

A large party of the young folks of town gave Miss May Grove a surprise last Friday evening upon the occasion of her birthday. A pleasant evening was spent. Prof. E. E. Higbee, State Superintendent of Public Instruction, has designated Friday, October 19, as Autumn School Arbor Day, and urges superintendents and teachers throughout the State to use every effort to have the day properly observed. John B. Gough, the far-famed lecturer, excused himself to an audience because of a bad cold, then started for Egypt in the hope of getting rid of it. Egypt contains no remedy more certain in its result than Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup. Mrs. Wm. Russ, of Mercer county, is in town visiting Mr. L. Agnew's family. She came on Tuesday evening, and before returning home will visit friends near Tylersburg and Clarington. Mrs. Russ is a daughter of Oran Butterfield of Clarington. A company of Tionesta gentlemen has a rig about finished on Dawson Run, Harmony township, about a half mile from the river, and will commence drilling by the last of this week. The Harmony Oil Co., on Jamieson Run is down about 100 feet with its well. What with "Old Hutch" booming the wheat market in the West, the rain and early frost destroying the buckwheat crop in the East, and the chilly blasts of winter already blowing through one's whiskers, the outlook for the coming eight or nine months is by no means a cheerful one. Nothing cheerful about it, in fact, except the fine prospects of Harrison's election next month. Mr. E. J. Russell removes with his family this week to Chehalis, Lewis county, Washington Territory, where the Messrs. Russell, father and sons, have invested in an extensive lumbering establishment, mention of which we made some weeks ago. We regret very much to lose "Eb." as a citizen and business man of our county, but we wish him and all the other members of the family success in their new home. A correspondent at Gilfoyle, after writing quite a new letter, winds up by saying "if this doesn't find its way into the editor's dreaded waste basket I will write again," and that's just where we are reluctantly obliged to consign it, all because the writer fails to make himself or herself known. We hope our friend will write again, but not without giving his real name, which we will treat as strictly confidential. But we must know who our correspondents are. Our citizens were aroused between the hours of one and two o'clock last Thursday morning by the alarm of fire, and proceeding to the scene, found that the hot house of Rev. Hickling was enveloped in flames. A good crowd were soon on the ground, but the fire had gained too much headway to save the building, which was a frame structure 20x38, built partly under ground, and covered with glass. Mr. Hickling had kindled a fire in the furnace, from which the fire in some manner is supposed to have caught. The loss is between $200 and $300, with no insurance. A large party of the friends of Mr. and Mrs. T. F. Ritchey gathered, by invitation, at their home last evening and assisted them in celebrating the 12th anniversary of their marriage. A very agreeable and happy evening was passed by all, and the bride and groom of twelve years seemed in a happy mood and made their guests feel likewise. Elegant refreshments were served and at a late hour the company took leave of their kind host and hostess, but not without wishing them many happy returns of the day. Many elegant presents of silk and fine linen were left as mementoes of the pleasant event. We observe that Kepler is advertising an election to take place on "Tuesday, November 3, 1888." Of course this is nothing remarkable for his horribly botched up paper, and to say that it might mislead any one can hardly be claimed, as everybody has come to know that no reliance dare be placed in that sheet. And yet Kepler's fellow who is frequently offering to do legal printing at half rates, quarter rates, nothing, in fact, and any and all things in order to get a nibble. But advertising in that sheet would certainly be very expensive at any price to the officials who are responsible for correct publications of legal work. Go to H. J. Hopkins & Co. and procure a sack of the celebrated Reliance Flour. It takes the lead, and has an immense run already. Try it. All style pictures from small Tintypes to life size Portraits at Sires' gallery. Mens, Boys and Childs Suits, and Overcoats at special bargains at Golden Circle. The Captain had samples of counterfeit gold and silver coin with him which he said was made by Newell Cobb, employed in the United States mint. Buck refused to join the Circle, and then Captain Snowden wished to test his ability as a marksman. The Captain placed Louise Phoebe, who was then 8 years old, on a stump, and with a rifle her father split a potato which she held up before her thumb and fingers. In doing this one of her fingers was slightly wounded, and she exhibited a wound. Ross Buck put a chew of tobacco on the wound and tied it up. Captain Snowden represented that there were a million members of the Order, but Buck would not join. This incensed the Captain, and from that time on Buck was a marked man, and the Knights of the Golden Circle were his persecutors and finally encompassed his ruin. The sent counterfeit money and stolen horses into his neighborhood, and threw the suspicion upon him. On February 14, 1858, the Order had him arrested as a counterfeiter. They ransacked the premises for spurious money, but found none. They tied a pair of suspenders around the throat of Louise Phoebe, to compel her to divulge the place where her father kept his money. She told them it was in the clock, and the money found there was all good except a 25 cent piece that had been through the Continental army, and which her father had kept as a curiosity. Buck was taken to Clarion, and Jacob Black, now deceased, went his bail. Judge Keating, also deceased, offered to go on the bond. The trial resulted in his acquittal. In the fall of 1858, a young man giving his name as Lee Adleburger, of Rimersburg, came to Buck's house with a horse to sell. He said James Boyd had sent him. Buck bought the horse and after keeping him some months sold the animal to Jacob Black. Then the horse was claimed by a Wheeling man who said it had been stolen from him and run into Clarion county. The man took the horse and went back home without making any trouble, as he was satisfied of Buck's innocence in the transaction. Louise Phoebe claims that the thief had been sent there with the horse by the Knights of the Golden Circle. The strange narrative goes on to say that in 1859 John Brown went to Harper's Ferry to free the slaves and raised an excitement all over the country that the Democrats did not like. The following Spring Detectives Price and John Morgan came to Buck's house and wanted to make him Chief Detective over all the State of Pennsylvania. Price had the names of 1,000 Republicans on his book and these were to be murdered by men under Buck and their houses robbed. Jacob Black was the first man picked out for the slaughter. Dick Shippen and Price were to keep Buck out of all danger. Buck declined again, and the Circle increased its vigilance against him. As a part of the scheme to ruin him the Democratic papers were full of the infamies of Boss Buck. A man by the name of Lewis was shot in Clarion county by direction of the Order and the crime laid to Buck. When Louise Phoebe went to hunt the cows she saw 50 armed men who were looking for her father, whom they wanted to shoot. She ran home and told her father who sat down and wrote a letter, which he pinned on the inside of her dress, as follows: "You must sleep in the woods to night, and if you find your father and mother murdered in the morning, you take that letter and hand it to the Judge of the Clarion Court. Give it to nobody else, and hand to him yourself!" The Golden Circle men did not kill him, and soon after two men were arrested and convicted for the murder of Lewis. Mrs. Buck was taken to Clarion as a witness. She said the prisoners were mere boys, who had been led astray by Price and Morgan. They had their trial, and were sent to the penitentiary for 20 years. The papers said that one of them battered his brains out against the stone wall, and the other one, after serving many years, was pardoned out. After denying the story that Boss Buck had anything to do with the abduction of Governor Curtin's son, Louise Phoebe says that United States Senator Wigfall, of Texas, and Mr. Carson, of Missouri, delivered secretly to her father a message which was in effect that Lincoln had been elected, and that Boston Buck having been appointed a General by President Buchanan, he would be expected to be in Baltimore February 23, 1861, to lead 60,000 soldiers to Washington to sack the city and assassinate Lincoln. Wigfall ordered Buck to stand up and take the oath of secession. Buck refused. Wigfall snatched a small flag out of the clock, threw it upon the floor and ordered Buck to tread on it. The girl darted for the flag and Wigfall drew his sword and cut her under the chin with it. Wigfall then said: "Buck, you have

A NEW BOSS BUCK YARN. His Daughter Alleges That He Was a Victim of the Knights of the Golden Circle. Mrs. Louise Phoebe Fowler, wife of Mr. C. G. B. Fowler, of Franklin, daughter of "Boss" Buck, who is now serving a seven years' sentence in the State's prison for counterfeiting, furnished a reporter an amazing story of her father. The story, which she claims to have written herself, makes out "Boss" Buck to be a persecuted saint, whereas the public conception of him is quite different. It is the common report that Buck was the ring leader of a desperate gang of counterfeiters and horse-thieves, but his daughter claims to have different information. She avers that her father is an innocent man who was hounded down and his liberty sworn away by the Democratic party because of his refusal to join the Knights of the Golden Circle. She sets forth with great particularity that on Sept. 17, 1857, Captain Snowden, who fought in the Mexican war, came to her father's house in Clarion county and asked Boss Buck to join the Knights of the already got a name by your stubbornness, and you will get a worse one if we don't see you in Baltimore on the 23d of next February." Then, drawing his sword, he continued, "I do swear by the Almighty God, and by the people of the South and the cedars of the North, that you, Boston Buck, shall bear the name of a counterfeiter; and that all men who have been taught to counterfeiter by the experts, shall, if caught, swear that you, Boston Buck, taught them to counterfeiter. The black Republican Government shall never give you any rest, and if we Democrats gain the victory and hold the reins of power again in our hands, and if you are living, an old gray headed man, with one foot on the ground and the other in the grave, we do swear by Almighty God that you shall die in the penitentiary, and that babe that is nursing your wife's breast, if living, shall accompany you there." They asked the name of the babe. Father said he called it "George Washington." Wigfall put the name down in a book. The romance refers to the fact of Buck going to Canada, the arrest of Gilbert, who turned State's evidence, and concludes as follows: I left Canada on Christmas day and took one of my younger brothers with me. Mrs. Mash stayed until after New Years, and then brought my mother and youngest brother with her. My sister, Mrs. Emery, and my brother George, stayed.
