HOW IT WENT IN THE STATE AND COUNTY.

The Probibitory Amendment, although defeated in the State, got a tremendous majority in the Western counties, and at this writing the indications are from figures now at hand that our own county of Forest has given a majority considerable over 400 for it. The Eastern counties generally gave majorities against the amendment, yet outside of Philadelphia and Allegheny counties the vote seems to indicate that it will be about a stand off, with the two counties mentioned giving the majority that will be against it in the State. Dispatches up to midnight of Tuesday gave Philadelphia at 75,000 to 80,000 against. while Allegheny indicated a majority of 15,000 to 20,000 against.

FOREST COUNTY.

Up to the hour of going to press we had received the following figures from the county:

A PATHETIC INCIDENT.

The Clarion Rep. Gazette of last week farnishes the following most pathetic story of somewhat local interest from the Johnstown calamity:

"On last Saturday Mr. F. Vowinckel returned from Johnstown, bringing with him Miss Mamie, the thirteenyear old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Fronheiser, Mrs. Fronheiser was a sister of Mr. Vowinckel, and she, with one other little girl, lost ber life in the flood. A pathetic incident is related of Mrs. Fronheiser in her struggles during the flo.d. The entire family, including four children, were engulfed in the flood and enmeshed in the debris when the water struck their dwelling. In the struggles to escape it was found two of the children, a from the rules to-day, three being it was found two of the children, a girl and boy, were fast in some timprominent merchant; Capt. TRAFFIC IN WORMS

Merchants Who Seil Large Quantities to

A number of people in this city find an extensive and profitable business in selling sand worms to fishermen for bait, says the New York Sun. One merchant of this commodity in West Forty-second street has sold in a busy season as many as thirty thousand worms in a week. There are two varieties, the sand worms or blood worms, as they are commonly called and the white worms. The blood worms are more plentiful than the white, running in the ratio of one hundred blood to one white. The blood worms are found on a rocky beach and in sand in which there is considerable vegetable matter. This variety is obtained along the north shore of Long Island, in the vicinity of Fort Hamilton, and along the shores of Staten Island. The white worms of Staten Island. The white worms are found in clean, white sand, along the south of Long Island, Sandy Hook, and the coast of New Jersey, Both varieties are dug at low tide.

When the weather is hot they come up to the surface, and when it is cold they go down deeper. They are about six inches long; the white worms rather flat, blunt at both ends and lined along the sides with a short fringe; the blood worms smooth, more pointed, round, resembling very closely the earth worms found in a rich soil.

man has carned, at times, $12 a day by digging and selling these worms.

There is a great demand for them, and it sometimes happens that a dealer is not able to fill his orders. The Forty-second street dealer referred to has a box full of telegrams and letters from Ocean Beach, Asbury Park, Philadelphia, Newburg, and other places, asking for information about hese worms and inclosing orders for

The white worms command a price of 25 cents a dozen, and have been known to sell for $5 a hundred. The eighteen inches below the surface. They be kept alive for a week, and even longer. Hot weather soon kills them,

These worms are used for catching ing bass men but on bathing-suits and go into the surf, where the fish are larger than in deep water. The fish are very fond of these worms. Sometimes a man need merely lay a worm surf and he may as quickly pull it out again, with a fish on the end of his line. It is not an uncommon thing to pull in a fish that weighs twenty five pounds. At Ocean Beach a short time ago a man landed a striped bass weighing forty pounds. Along the Hudson this fish is often found, but not as large as at the beaches. Bass weighing three or four pound are also caught from the piers.

Women are quiet enthusiastic over the sport of fishing, and the dealers frequently receive orders from them. A women will visit a worm-store in the course of her forenoon shopping and leave an order for one or more dozen in view of a fishing trip next day.

An African Telephone.

A part of Reclus' map showing the tribes who live in the Cameroon dis-trict, west Africa, is shaded to show exactly what portion of the country is the home of the four or five little tribes who have perfected an ingenious and practical telephone system that dis-tinguishes them from the other natives of Africa. Everywhere among the blacks of Africa the big drum or tamtam is used in war and on festival occasions, but it is only these Cameroon natives who have discovered how useful the tam-tam may be as a rapid promulgator of news over mountain and plain.

Of course, the news is telephoned by drumming on the tam-tan, but the sounds produced are not signals. They represent syllables and words, and so grow into sentences like the ticks of a telegraph instrument. It is a very ingenious invention, and deserves to rank with any of our own devices for the rapid transmission of news that were in vogue before the electric graph superseded them. The force and rapidity with which the instrument is beaten are elements in the interpre-tation of the idea to be expressed, and syllables and words are also formed by combination of strokes, something like the Morse alphabot. It is a compli-cated system, and speaks highly for the intelligence of the people who de-

The system is a secret that is confided to only about two hundred of the natives. Though five or six of the white residents and explorers in that region have told all they know about the tam-tam telephone, its language is as yet wholly unintelligible to them, as the secret is carefully guarded. Only a few women have been justructed in the art and no slave is permitted to ac-

It is the duty of every operator to be ready, if need be, when he hears the tam-tam to repeat the message, which is taken up in turn by operators fur-ther inland. In this way any news may be communicated for a distance of forty or lifty miles in a few hours. Thus the chiefs correspond with one another, and no important news happens that is not promptly telephoned all over the district. When a ship arrives at the mouth of the Cameroon river, the tam-tam may be heard beat-ing far up the side of the neighboring mountains, and the news is repeated from drummer to drummer until it reaches the furthest confines of the district. If a white party proposes to visit some chief in the interior the tamtam carries the news to him that white visitors are coming almost before they have started on their journey. Thus our benighted African brother has taught himself a way to annihilate space and to transmit his thoughts on the wings of the wind.
