JOB WORK of every description executed at the REPUBLICAN office.

Court convenes next Monday, and bids fair to be one of the largest and most interesting terms yet held in this county. Besides a large civil list, there are no fewer than 18 or 20 criminal cases to be tried, and the indications are that the entire week will be consumed, and then some may have to go over for want of time.

Now that the time for the legal registration of voters has passed, the next, and most important of all matters to attend to is the payment of your State or County tax. Remember, no one can vote who has not paid, within two years, and one month prior to the election, a State or County tax. Republicans, see to it at once.

The well at Jamieson's, mention of which we have heretofore made, was shot last week at a depth of 250 feet and responded pretty fairly. Its owners consider it good for a 5 barrel producer. Grove & Co. have located a well in Beaver Valley, Hickory township, near the farm of Oliver Byerly, and will be drilling shortly.

The Sires photograph gallery will be open during the entire week of court, and all who wish a sitting for photographs should be on hand at that time. There is no use recommending the work done at this gallery. Its reputation is fully established among our people. Call early, and don't stay away on account of cloudy weather. Bring the babies.

W. A. Dusenbury, of Newtown Mills, on Wednesday purchased the J. A. Weible house and will move into it with his family. We are pleased to note the incoming of such people. They are valuable acquisitions to any place.—Tidoute News. It's all well enough for you people up there to be pleased at such acquisitions, but how do you suppose we feel at the loss of our good citizens?

Quite a number of veterans boarded the train here Monday and yesterday for Gettysburg, all of whom will doubtless have a royal time. Among the number we noticed, Wm. Lawrence, G. W. Boyard, J. B. Eden, Jerry Birtell, Solomon Fitzgerald and G. W. Robinson, of this place; Nicholas Weant of Nebraska, John S. Wilson of Harmony, and a number of others whose names just now escape us.

Prof. Monday of Franklin, who is rusticated with Forest county friends, and shooting squirrels and other game, paid us a visit Friday.—A nice lot of Fall Styles of Children's, Boys', and Men's Hats and Caps, now on our counters. New goods. 21. SMARBAUGH & CO.

The dance at Lawrence House Hall last evening was well attended, passed off quietly and pleasantly, and all who were there report a good time.—Observe the new Fall advertisement of David Barnett in this issue. Mr. B. says nothing which he is not able to back up, and invites the public to give him a test.

Rev. McAulinch announced last Sabbath that no services would be held in the Presbyterian church next Sabbath morning, but in the evening Rev. Lewis of Pleasantville will occupy the pulpit.—Harvey Foreman, who has been down at Washington, Pa., for the past three weeks, came home Saturday, and on Monday went to Bradford, where he expects to engage in his favorite work of tank building.

Liverman Canfield has advertised, by hand bills, his entire livery and teaming equipments for sale on the 28th inst. The sale includes all his horses, wagons, buggies, sleighs, cows, his fine breeding stallion, and a thorough-bred Holstein bull.—The incessant cannonading on the hills about town is getting decidedly monotonous. There seems to be no let-up and the supply of squirrels must be inexhaustible. Red squirrels are becoming a real pest in town, where they are making mischief with the fruit trees.

George Mealy, Sr., one of the old and highly esteemed citizens of Tionesta township, died at his home on Sunday afternoon last, aged about sixty-two years. He had for many years been a severe sufferer from asthma, which was the ultimate cause of his death.—Mrs. Edward Alexander died at her home near Newmansville on Saturday last of puerperal fever. The deceased was formerly Miss Clara Walters, and was well and most favorably known to many of our citizens, all of whom will be pained to learn of her demise, which was sudden and unexpected.

J. M. Mintz flings his banner to the breeze this week in a broad-gauge ad, in which he invites everybody to call and see his elegant new dry goods, clothing and furnishing goods emporium, in the spacious room of the Kepler block, where his grand opening will take place this week. He will defy the world on clothing, in which line he expects to make a terrible cut in prices. Everybody welcome to come and see stock and ascertain prices, at the finest store in the county. 11.

East Hickory.

"We never know the bitter throes Forced smiles conceal, Nor all the pangs bald-headed men In 57 time feel."

One would think, from the impression he gets of our little city during each session of court, that it was a perfect little Hades; that turmoil and strife hold the day, and that peace and quietness had taken to themselves wings, and left us never more to return. But such is not the case.

It is true that East Hickory, like every little town of importance, has its "black sheep"; but our citizens are for the most part, peaceable, honorable, law-abiding, sober and industrious people.

The Ministers of the town are laboring earnestly; the prayer meetings convene as usual, and are largely attended. In the church and out of it can be found good, earnest, whole souled law-abiding citizens, and we wish it to be distinctly understood that when you see East Hickory coming to your town in a body court week—ministers, doctors, bankers, merchants, justices of the peace, clerks, milliners, factotums and dudes, you must not think we are a set of "black sheep" turned loose on the streets of Tionesta to eat up everything that comes in our way. Do not bar your doors and close your offices, for among the great number (only one man being left here to guard the town) you will find many who will compare in every way with citizens of other towns.

"Ah, who so base that he will hear disputed, The honor of a town so well reputed. While life remains, may I still respect the spot, Where the Ruler of all things has cast my lot."

Hepler Corners.

The oil well, or rather, gas well, at Lickingville, was completed last week, but no oil was found.

Mr. and Mrs. H. Watson of Hickory, were visiting friends in this proximity not long since.

A young gentleman was found a few days ago lying in the fence corner, well supplied with bug-juice.

Mr. Wm. Wallace and wife of Karos City, are at present rusticated in this locality.

Mr. F. Stitzinger was in Tionesta one day last week.

J. E. Sutter of Fryburg, moved his billiard tables to Shipperville one day last week.

The farmers of this section are about all done plowing; next on hand will be sowing.

The hunters are enjoying themselves hunting for game. Their luck might be summed up as good, bad, and indifferent.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Hepler of this place are visiting friends near Gilfoyle. Sept. 10. APACHE.

Warren Wrinkles.

Now comes the days when the frisky squirrel has to hustle to keep out of the soup; the belated potato bug hurries himself into his burrow with a look of despair as he gazes upon the prematurely dead potato tops; the golden pumpkin tries in vain to hide his nakedness beneath the sickly corn, etc., etc.

As I hear the bang! bang! of the sportsman on the surrounding hills the spirit of my ancestors within me awakes and each day I promise myself "to-morrow I will go after squirrels," and I even rub up the old gun with vaseline, but hunting like trolling for pickerel, would suit me all right if I was training for a prize fight.

I must not forget the fair. Mrs. X and I took it in of course, and to make it a mutual affair were ourselves taken in. We did not indulge in any games of chance for the very good reason that some of the grand jury made a raid on those concerns and drove them out. We have a few men of sense left in town yet. The display of poultry was good; of stock, only medium, and of vegetables, poor. The facilities for good cool drinking water were good, and if there was anything stronger than red lemonade I did not see any effects of it. Jerusha and Zeke were there and presented an affecting picture of mutual confidence as they wandered hand in hand, and later, in the dance, as they elinched for the swing, an electric thrill seemed to pass over the spectators. The horses raced, and the fat equestrienne bounced high as she did the hurdle act. Altogether it was quite a fair, and I'm laying for a red premium next year if I can borrow an Auburn-haired baby.

The potato crop is nearly a failure in this section. Rotting badly. No fruit to speak of. Our groceryman is asking the modest little price of $1.00 a bushel for cooking apples. The cabbage worm is filling up with saur kraut in anticipation of a cold winter. I'm sprinkling a little lime on him as a relish. X.

Warren's Fair.

We had the pleasure of being at the Warren County Fair for a short time last week. Neither ourself nor our pen are critics on the subject of fairs. And so far as that is concerned we'd been out of joint had we been and been trying to ply our vocation over in Brooklyn, as the Warrenite jocosely refers to the side of the river opposite to the town itself. Anyhow the fellow who fluds fault and growls about things does so more because he feels that way than because something else than himself is that way.

The Warren Fair ground is pleasantly situated across the river from the town; the river is crossed on a fine wire suspension bridge. A five minutes walk from the end of the bridge carries one to the fair grounds. Connected with the grounds is a half-mile track, with grand stand, bandstand, and Judges stand. The grounds in which the fair is held properly are fitted up in good shape. There are pens, styes, stables, and coops to shelter the animated exhibit. And halls for the products of field, garden and shop. This has been an off year and the exhibit in Agricultural Hall was not so great as it might have been. Still there wasn't any unoccupied space in the hall, and the exhibit was good, some of it fine. Our space will not permit us to enumerate. The exhibit in Floral Hall was very nice indeed. A visit there fully repaid one. Industrial Hall presented an interesting exhibit. Tidoute school had work on exhibition from the industrial department there. The display of crazy quilt work was immense. We believe that was the only way in which the Asylum was represented at the fair. There were various specimens of various kinds of needlework and fancywork not done with a needle—at least we couldn't have done it with a needle—nor with anything else for that matter.

There were, of course, a great many institutions on the grounds that were run more for private than public good. Cane racks, the striking machine, the shooting gallery, the wheel of fortune, merry-go-round, the greatest show on earth—for the money, the fat man who had "a pure albino" wife and a 4-year-old baby that handled every 15 minutes and played with "3 bull snakes from the wild and woolly plains of Texas and an untamed anaconda from all the forests of South America." Some folks growl about these things. They aren't of much use to some folks; but somehow they fill up, and a great many other folks enjoy them—or they wouldn't patronize them.

The track was the great attraction for most everybody—at least a part of the time. The chariot racing was a novelty and excited much interest. Miss Burke's skill on horseback and in handling the lines was marvelous. The officials connected with the fair are gentlemanly gentlemen, every one of them. Things all seemed to be done right, and nobody kicked—or got kicked. How the fair fared financially we are not informed. It deserved success financially. The attendance was large. On Thursday 15,000 people were on the grounds. We saw quite a number of Forest county people at the fair. They were enjoying themselves in a sensible, decorous manner, as becomes good people anywhere. We were highly pleased with the fair. We think it a success. We have heard no one say differently. As long as Forest Co. has no fair of her own, wouldn't it be a good thing for Forest to put a booth— But we'll not finish the sentence now. Our space won't permit. TRAMP.

Brookston.

The Tanning Co. is doing some repairing and will soon run their tannery to its full capacity.

Mr. F. G. Brown, the Standard Accidental insurance agent, has been in town, and paying a number of claims. Rock City is becoming noted for its many picnics. The one held there last week was as well attended as could be wished, and all had a good time.

Wildcats are quite numerous in this locality. Chris. Rudy saw two one day last week.

Mr. Geo. Wagner, who not long since moved to Idaho, will come back to Forest Co., and will start lumbering again. Mr. Wagner says Forest county is as good a country as he can find for his business. OBSERVER.

Notice to Settle.

As I am about quitting the peddling business, and will quit the road after this month, I wish all parties having accounts with me to settle the same at their earliest convenience. Those who wish can remit to me at Titusville, Pa. About the first of October I will be located with a first class general store at Marienville, Forest county, Pa., where all my old customers are cordially invited to call and continue their patronage which will be duly appreciated. DAVID MINTZ. September 4, 1889.

NEWSY NOTES.

A correspondent of the Harrisburg Telegraph has seen an eel four feet long and weighing 36 pounds in Ida county, Iowa.

The knives of a moving machine at Perkiomenville, Montgomery county, cut into three pieces a 15-foot blacksnake that had frequented the vicinity for 15 years.

Eighty years ago Tennyson, Darwin, Gladstone, Lincoln, Oliver Wendell Holmes, Edgar Allen Poe and Lord Houghton were born. 1809 was a great year.

H. H. Warner, of Rochester, the proprietor of the famous proprietary medicine establishment, has sold his works to a British syndicate for $5,000,000. The arrangements of sale have been already consummated.

A young teamster named Edward Davis, of Erie, kept tending a Polandner named Bolandzki, and carried the matter to such an extent that the Pole presented a blow by seizing a bar of iron and dealing Davis a blow that crushed his skull.

Mrs. Jacob Hoffer, of Lower Saucon, near Allentown, returned home the other day and found her 2-year-old child on the kitchen floor playing with a blacksnake. Two other snakes were in the room, and all were killed by the child's mother.

The Shenandoah News has interviewed Fred. Clark, who raises skunks as a business, at Roaring creek, on the borders of Schuylkill county. He began it last fall for the skunk. He has 150 pens now and, this month being their breeding time, he will shortly have 1,000. He handles them with impunity from stench and they are as docile as kittens.

A suit to settle the ownership of a sum of money found in a hollow stump in an Erie cemetery in May last by boys who were chasing a chipmunk, has been heard by Alderman Cole. Mrs. Berringer claims that the money belonged to her mother, who once said she had put it there bankers and thieves could not make way with it—for it was at about the time of the failure of the Erie County Savings Bank.

An exchange gives the following sensible directions for driving young horses: "In teaching a young horse to drive well, do not hurry to see how fast he can trot. Keep each pace clear and distinct from the other—that is, in walking, make him walk, and do not allow him to trot. While trotting, be equally careful that he keeps steady at his pace, and do not allow him to slack into a walk. The reins, while driving, should be snug; and when pushed to the top of his speed, keep him well in hand, that he may learn to hear well upon the bit, so that when going at a high rate of speed he can be held at his pace, but do not allow him to pull too hard, for it is not only unpleasant, but makes it often difficult to make him."
