The second document is the original deed from Sholass Range to Lieut. John Range, of Revolutionary fame, and whose remains now rest in the upper cemetery of this place. It conveys the land on which Tionesta now stands and is likewise quite a curiosity. We give below the contents of the patent which describes the land. "Mount Ararat" is the high bill at the mouth of Tubbs run, and "Squirrel Creek" is our own Tionesta Creek. "Saqualinget" was then the name of Tionesta, and means "Place of Council," hence the name of Council Run, which courses through our borough: The Supreme Executive Council of the KENTUCKY LETTER. ST. HELENS, LEE Co., Nov. 5, 1880. I am once more settled among strangers in a strange land, but I find it a very agreeable change from my former position in North Carolina. This section of the State is known as Eastern Kentucky and is located on the Kentucky River, about five hundred miles from its confluence with the Ohio. The country is all that can be required in its vast timber resources, and immense coal deposits which extend for hundreds of miles North of this place. The country as far as I have been, is execodingly rough and hilly. Great mountains extend throughout the whole of this section of the State, which are covered with ash, walnut, poplar and oak, all of is a wonder of value and interest, such as the finest varieties. In this vicinity also was never seen before.

This magnificent volume, comprising is a large forest of white pine amounting several children. Her remains were to some 300 million feet, according to an estimate recently made by gentlemen from near your section. The poplar timber is of a very fine growth and said to be equal in all respects to that of Tennessee. The average yield per acre is twenty thousand feet, and in some sections of the country on this river it will exceed that amount greatly. The oak timber in this county is not of good quality, but is very large and thrifty, but will not answer for staves on account of worms in the wood. For railroad uses it is said to be No. I. In the adjoining counties the oak is of much finer quality and much larger arriving and to come in every week growth. Walnut timber grows in the Christmas, mountains to quite an extent and is very fine. It is pronounced by buyers to be equal to Indiana walnut in finish and sizes. The ash timber is not good but very large. It is generally defective, and quite brash, with very little "toughness" to it. The white pine that I mention is the only body of that class of timber know of in this State. I can distinctly remember when this same body of timber was offered to my father and Chapin Hall, all. One acre of land, fruit trees and of Warren, Pa., for the small sum of two grapevines. Situated in Clarington, dollars per acre, but they did not consider it of any value, even at that price in those days, and continued to cut and run lumber from the headwaters of the Allegheny to Louisville, Ky., and pay no regard to this tumber, which is not over 150 miles from that city, with as handsome a river to lumber on as the rivers of Penn'a are. Almost the whole of Eastern Kentucky has been recently purchased by what is known as the Kentucky Union Land Co., a corporation representing many millions of money, who are now bringing this timber and coal to the notice of the markets of the world. The company are building a standard guage railroad from Lexington, Ky., to Jackson, on the Middle Fork of the Kentucky River in Breathitt

County. This road is to be in operation by Jan. 1st, 1890. It is now in successful working order from Winchester, Ky., to Slade Station, fifteen miles East of the Kentucky River at this point. The Louisville Northern R. R. are also running their line from Frankfort, Ky., up the Kentucky River on the opposite side from the Kentucky Union R. R., furnishing excellent facilities for the transportation of lumber and coal from these mountains. This company are prospecting for oil and gas in this and adjoining counties, and are meeting with good success in obtaining both articles. The Kentucky Union Land Co. are also engaged extensively in lumbering. In fact from observations I believe them to be as heavily engaged as any firm in the United States. Their mill capacity at Clay City is three bundred thousand feet per day, with corresponding dry kilns, and is the most complete establishment of the kind in the United States. You will at once note from this, that the amount of teams and men required to keep this elephant in operation amounts to hundreds. 'The logs are flooded down the Red River to the mills, a distance avthe Red River to the mills, a distance averaging 100 miles. The forests are not abundan with game, some few bear, no deer; but wild turkeys, quail, and squirrels-bythe-way, I suppose you know that I am good on squirrels, from what you have seen. The streams are full of bass, pike, and cat fish, perch, &r. The soil is rich, bur, Glenny Caufman, Jimmie Blute, although it is so mountainous that no tilling of the land is done here, except by the squatters. Wages for labor in the woods is less than in Penn'a. The Canadian Provinces send in large forces of excellent men for this work. The men in the mills are generally from Saganaw and Wisconin. I find my position here a more complicated one than I had imagined before oming, but I still believe that I am 'master of the situation," and can now besue orders to the trains with as much 'ectat" as the oldest railroader. I will be pleased to hear from you, and hope you Whitten, Frank Witherel, Johnnie are in the enjoyment of your usual health and contented mind

The Road to Heaven."-A Wonderful Book.

The Road to Heaven, A Golden Casket of Unique, Brilliant and Beautiful Christian Treasures, gathered from the Richest Mines of Religion, Science and Philosophy; Richly Embellished with a Superb Galaxy of Boyal Steel Plate Engravings. -Globe Hible Publishing Co., Phila., Pa. This magnificent literary production

epresents a superb, unique and most re-narkable new book. The author whose markable new hook. The author whose mind is strong it imagination, happy in word painting, sprinkles the glittering pages of this unparalleled work with the most chasts and beautiful gens of thought, jeweled with all that is great, good, pure and noble, in the glowing freshness of living reality.

When he writes of God and the Soul, of Heaven and its ineffable bliss, he touches heights of upsurpassable magnificence that make you feel like Moore's Peri, as if you stood looking through the bars of the "Pearly Gates." Though he leads to mountains heights, he has also the dain-tiest delia of restroi and tonder experience, full of hearts'-case and violets, where the simplest minds and quietest natures may rest and drink sweet draughts from the River of God's Love. Through the whole book rings the happy laughter of cheerful Christianity and moral anecdotes, thick as stars that fleck the frosty blue of winter's midnight sky, shine out on every page. These anecdotes, fresh, thrilling and delightful, dealing as they do with every phase of human ex-perience, bring out the author's meaning most beautifully. They are carefully gathered from every history and language and scattered through the book like pearls on a royal robe. In fact, the entire

Resolutions of Respect. On Saturday morning, October 26, 1889, sister and Past Councilor, Tariey S. Roberts was called from time to eternity, and it becomes us as a Council to bear testimony to her endearing qualities and good works while

She was a Charter member of Irwin Council of Royal Templers of Temperance. Was nearly always present at its meetings, represented it in the Grand Council, and filled all the offices in the gift of the Select Council. She was ever kind and ready to help the afflicted, conscientious in her convictions of right, and accordingly was knit in the affection of those with whom she was associated. Therefore

Resolved. That we bow in humble submission to the loss we have sustained, and trust that our loss is her gain.

That we sympathize with the family in their sad affliction, knowing that that they have lost a wise and safe counselor, and one that was always kind and ready to do them good. 3. That the constitution of Irwin
