

THE FOREST REPUBLICAN.
 J. E. WENK, Editor & Proprietor.
 WEDNESDAY, NOVEMBER 20, 1890.

JEFF DAVIS is lying at the point of death, in New Orleans.

There is considerable anxiety in Ohio just at present to learn the market value of one State Senatorship.—Blizard.

The official figures from all the counties of the State have now been received at the State Department, and Mr. Boyer's majority is shown to be 60,926.

Lewis C. Cassidy, Attorney General under Governor Pattison, and one of the most prominent Democrats in the State, died on Monday morning of this week.

The official vote of Pennsylvania at the recent election for State Treasurer is as follows: Boyer, Rep., 341,244; Bigler, Dem., 280,318; Johnston, Pro., 22,401.

The majority for Lampion, the Republican candidate for Lieutenant Governor of Ohio, is only 41. It is not as high as a church nor as wide as a barn door, but is enough to convince all good Republicans that their flag is still there or thereabouts.

WASHINGTON continues her feeble effort to capture the World's Fair, but the prospects for its success are gloomy and discouraging. Foreign exhibitors would never place their exhibits in open competition with the American Congress in the show business.

GOVERNOR BEAVER has appointed Hon. Wm. Livey to the vacancy caused by the death of State Treasurer Hart. This makes the third time that Mr. Livey has been State Treasurer, having been regular elected in 1883, and twice appointed to fill vacancies.

The English correspondent of the New York Tribune says: "You will be pained to hear that Mr. Harrison falls below the mental and moral standards which the Republic sets for its Chief Magistrate, but you will be amused to hear why. One reason of course is because he is a Protectionist; the other is because he wants to subsidize lines of steamers to South American ports, and thus to secure South American trade. The speech in which Mr. Harrison announced this purpose conclusively settled his mental status, says this British critic. What it settled was that neither he nor his Cabinet could be used to depress American industries for the benefit of the British. That is the unpardonable sin, and on whoever commits it the British bulldog is let loose."

Brazil Goes Republican.

BRAZIL is no longer an Empire. A strong insurrection has suddenly broken out there and to-day that country is a Republic. The army and navy is with the insurrectionists, and has captured the palace and driven Emperor Dom Pedro from the country. This action has astonished the world, as it has always been considered that Brazil was the last country that would turn the cold shoulder to her monarch, who has always been noted for his great liberality as a ruler. A provisional government has been set up and all preparations made to carry on the affairs under a Republican form of government. Meantime, business has been temporarily paralyzed by the overthrow of the Empire. What the final outcome will be is yet uncertain, the news from that land being yet very meagre.

A correspondent of the New York Times in Rio de Janeiro has cabled that paper as follows:
 "The United States of Brazil, constituting a federated republic of the different provinces of the Empire over which Dom Pedro had ruled so long, is an established government. The new republic is to-day acknowledged by every province except Bahia, in the North. Dom Pedro is on his way to Portugal, having accepted the situation with no attempt at forcible resistance; the flag of the new republic has been adopted and Brazil is as peaceful to day as though no thought of revolution had ever aroused the feelings of her people. The overthrow of the Empire has been accomplished without the sacrifice of a single life and the new provisional Government is proceeding with its work as methodically and peacefully as though it had been in existence for years instead of hours. Dom Pedro submitted to the terms imposed by the new Government and agreed to leave the country within twenty-four hours after he received the notice at his summer palace at Petropolis. He was offered $2,500,000 in cash and provision for the rest of his life, in the form of an annual pension of $450,000, which is to be provided for in the civil list of the new republic. He accepted the offer and came to Rio Janeiro with his family last night to embark for Lisbon. Business in Rio was suspended only twenty-four hours and the Empire was destroyed and a Republic born almost before the general public was aware that anything unusual was going on. The provisional government has announced that all obligations incurred by the Empire at home and abroad will be faithfully fulfilled by the Republic."

WASHINGTON LETTER.
 From our regular Correspondent.)
 WASHINGTON, Nov. 16, 1890.
 Secretary Blaine's response to the toast of "Our Country and Her President" at the banquet which followed the dedication of the Catholic University in this city Wednesday, was one of the happiest efforts of his life. This is high praise, I know, for the Secretary seems to be possessed to a greater extent than any other living man, of the peculiar and fortunate faculty of always saying the right thing at the right time, and in just the right way, but it is deserved. Only two men of the present generation besides Mr. Blaine could have done equal justice in the same number of words to the toast. One of them—Henry Ward Beecher—is dead, and the other—Robert G. Ingersoll—would hardly be likely to attend the dedication ceremonies of any institution controlled by a church, Catholic or Protestant. The President, the Vice President and all of the members of the Cabinet attended the banquet and were interested listeners to the remarks of Mr. Blaine.

The Jefferson Club, a small Democratic organization which was started during the early days of the Cleveland administration, has given up the ghost. It could not exist without Government pap.

The All Americas Congress is back in Washington, having finished its forty days excursion. It is probable that the members will rest until Monday when regular sittings will begin. Among the subjects to be discussed will be Customs regulations and Customs Union; Extradition; Sanitation of Ships and Quarantine; Light House dues; Weights and Measures; Patent Rights; Copyright, and Trade and Transportation between the United States and Spanish America. Reports on each of these topics have been prepared, each written by an expert in the line treated of, from the best data obtainable.

The President will take no chances in regard to his first annual message to Congress, which is now practically complete. The message will not be printed and sent out to the press previous to its being read in Senate and House, as has been done in the past. It will be sent to Congress in writing, but there will be several type-writer copies made for the press associations, which will be delivered to them at the moment the message is begun to be read in the House and under no circumstances before. Several times during the recent past over-enthusiastic newspapers in Washington and elsewhere have had extras on the street containing the President's message before the reading of the message to Congress had been begun. Hence these precautions.

There is nothing new in the Speaker's contest, in fact up to this time there is nothing in sight to indicate that there is a contest. It looks very much as if a majority of the members regard the matter as already settled and are not hurrying to Washington. The officials of the House postoffice say there are fewer members of the House in the city than they ever knew at the same date. The attempt to make a combination against Mr. Reed who is leading all the rest of the candidates, has apparently been abandoned. Representative McKinley passed through here this week on his way to New York on business. He says he has asked no member to vote for him, and that he does not expect to ask any one to do so and that upon his return here he will occupy his usual quarters, but will have no "headquarters," in the sense that the word is generally understood here in Washington.

A new candidate for the clerkship of the House has entered the field in the person of ex-Representative Guenther, of Wisconsin.
