Supreme Court Owing to the organization of the bench caused by the death of Justice House on Monday the President's Matthews. The appointment, although message was not read to Congress a surprise to the country in general, is until Tuesday. The message has been looked upon as an exceptionally good well received by everybody except a one.

Tan Philadelphia Item, thus tersely dition of political affairs in the South states the case: "Charles W. Stone cause for alarm. The message is job." And that's the way it appears in striking contrast to the last dictatically a unanimous vote.

------Press Opinions on the Message.

President Harrison's first message is a plain, candid and entirely unpretentious review of public affairs. Its most striking characteristic is an absence of pretense, exeggeration or rhetorical flourish, and there is no attempt to enlarge upon especial topics for the sake of catching temporary popular applause or partisan advantage. It has the tone throughout of conscious strength and sincerity, and of profound conviction that the people will unwaveringly sustain the national politics to which they gave approval by their votes one year ago .- New York Tribune, Rep.

President Harrison's message is a plain, business document, well written and making recommendations strictly in the line of the Republican platform. -New York Herald, Ind.

It is a clear, plain statement of the condition of the country in its foreign and domestic relations and of the legislation that is needed to promote its interests. There is no fustian rhetoric may be obtained by addressing Secrein the document, no epigrams, no straining after effect.- Brooklyn Times, Rep.

The well-settled policy of the Rethe President's message. It must now be wisely put into acts by the Republican Congress.- Newark Advertiser. Rep.

It is written under a due sense of all the responsibility, and we may also say with the familiarity, of a public servant giving an account of his stewardship .- Boston Transcript, Ind.

The message as a whole is a clear, lucid statement of the national situation; is conservative and patriotic in tone, admirable in its suggestions and recommendations .- Boston Traveller, Rep.

Mr. Harrison evidently intended this message to be confined to its strict constitutional limits-that of informing Congress of the state of the country. Its recommendations are in every instance what has been approved by the Republican party. Upon those things on which there are different opinions in the party he has presented the facts without recommendation. It is a document that has greatly disappointed the Democrats because it furnishes them with no ammunition.

Next in importance to the President's message is Secretary Windom's annual report to Congress, which was made public on Wednesday. Mr. Windom covers the entire financial field and; furnishes one of the most interesting and important reports of the kind ever made. It presents a plan for the satisfactory solution of the silver problem, which Mr. Windom believes will be accepted by both silver and gold men. Space prevents further notice of the report, but it should be carefully read by every intelligent citizen of the country. It tary Windom.

This is of itself a small thing, but if the party caucus can be successfully bolted in small things, there is nothing to prevent the same thing being done when something important is at stake.
